No. 265 — 119th Year — VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1977 — 15c Daily, 30c Sunday

Regions probe panel named

A five-member committee has been struck to study the role of regional governments in B.C.

Chairman of the committee will be Phil Farmer of Kaleden, an eight year chairman of the regional board of Okanagan-Similkameen. He was also one of the original members of the Municipal Finance Authority.

Joining him on the committee will be Rendina Hamilton, Penticton; Alfred Hood, Victoria; Daphne Phillips, Dawson Creek, and Ron Thompson, Galiano Island.

Executive secretary to the committee will be Dick Danby, former senior administrator for the UBC faculty of commerce.

The committee's terms of reference will allow it to seek briefs from interested parties and to hold public hearings throughout the province.

The committee is expected to report its findings to the minister in 1978.

Seatbelt squeeze on now

The warning period for wearing safety belts is over.

The provincial government announced Friday that it had advised all police officers in the province "to ensure compliance" from this point on.

Seat belts became mandatory in B.C. on Oct. 1 but police were advised to take it easy in the early going until drivers had become accustomed to the new law.

The authorities now feel the "learning" period has been long enough. The maximum fine is $100.

Trudeau backs raids as PQ office break-in bared

Sometimes the law 'has to be broken'

Canadian Press

OTTAWA — Police sometimes have to break the law in the interests of national security and the law may have to be changed to make their actions legal, Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday.

Trudeau's statement came on the heels of the revelation that in 1973 members of the RCMP broke into the offices of the Parti Quebecois and stole computer tapes bearing a party membership list and financial data.

At his weekly news conference after the raid was exposed, Trudeau said the right of the police in some cases to use wiretaps and search warrants may not be enough. They may have to go beyond tha law.

Conservatives and New Democrats alike condemned the RCMP break-in.

Solicitor-General Francis Fox had told the House earlier Friday that the RCMP had stolen the tapes from PQ offices in Montreal Jan. 9, 1973.

Conservative House leader Walter Baker challenged the government to broaden the mandate of a royal commission inquiry into illegal RCMP activities to "get at the question of ministerial responsibility."

"We will get beyond the investigation branch and the part that the solicitor-general and his colleagues played" in illegal acts, Baker told the Commons.

Fox said he has referred the matter to the attention of Mr. Justice David McDonald, head of the royal commission inquiry that Baker said should be permitted to explore how much federal politicians and senior civil servants knew about this incident among others.

Baker asked if there could be anyone "who believes that in a city like Ottawa, where the public service, national agencies such as the RCMP, cabinet ministers and the business community are always communicating, there was no knowledge in the upper levels of government."

Fox had said that senior RCMP officers did not learn about the 1973 operation until this week and that his two preceding ministers had not known of the incident either.

Baker's reaction: "There is no one who would believe that they could be so incompetent as not to know, and even if they were so incompetent, then they should not hold that office."

NDP leader Ed Broadbent said Friday that charges will have to be laid against RCMP officers involved in the break-in.

Broadbent, in Regina when the disclosure was made, said it was an extraordinary development with extremely serious implications.

"If the break-in was authorized by senior officials, and I assume it is judged to be that by the solicitor-general . . . then all those up the line would be liable to charges under the Criminal Code," Broadbent said.

Falling back on time

Eight-year-old Kim Fox of St. Thomas, Ont., falls back to demonstrate the fact that the clock 'falls back' in autumn. Sunday morning at 2 is the official time when clocks are turned back one hour in the annual return to standard time. B.C. Automobile Association is warning motorists to be extra cautious Monday, Halloween, when darkness will come earlier owing to return of standard time.

'Civil War'

Customs plays the game

WASHINGTON (CP) — Thanks to a change of heart by zealous customs officials, Canadian board-game fans will get a chance to try their luck in a U.S.-produced game on the political contest between separatist and anti-separatist forces.

Copies of the game were unloaded Friday at a Toronto-area wholesaler's depot after being shipped from Simulations Publications Inc. (SPI) of New York.

An SPI spokesman said, however, two advance copies of the game were seized by Canadian customs officials a week earlier under laws prohibiting the import of "treasonable, seditious, immoral or indecent" material. They were returned later.

Part of the problem may have been the game's title — "Canadian 'Civil War.'" As the quotes in the title suggest, the game is not SPI's usual simulation of military conflict, but rather a game of politics.

Two innovation's accompany it — 10,000-word summary of Canadian history and a 1,500-word summary in French of game rules.

The game divides political forces into four schools of thought, ranging from advocates of a stronger federal government to separatists, and gives each equal abilities to win over any Canadian interest group or geographic area.

As a seeming afterthought, game rules include provision for a highly-abstract, simplified, brief military "endgame," with a note by SPI designers that any such conflict is extremely unlikely.

Dutch multi-millionaire Europe's latest hostage

AMSTERDAM (AP) — Kidnappers seized a Dutch-Jewish multimillionaire Friday and the West German Red Army Faction claimed responsibility. A telephone caller demanded release of a jailed German anarchist and abdiction of Queen Juliana, apparently as ransom for the magnate's freedom.

The abductors struck as police throughout Europe hunted 16 Red Army Faction anarchists wanted in West Germany for the slayings of its federal prosecutor, a kidnapped industrialist and a banker.

Witnesses said about five persons overpowered Maurits Caransa, 61, as he left Amsterdam's Continental Club at 1:15 a.m. after a bridge game. They drove him away in a red car, leaving his briefcase on the sidewalk near his chauffeur-driven Rolls-Royce.

Nine hours later, a German-speaking caller told the Amsterdam newspaper Het Parool: "We are the Red Army Faction. We have Caransa. You will hear from us."

A Dutch-speaking caller told another Amsterdam paper, Telegraaf, the abductors were demanding the queen's abdication and release of Knut Folkerts, 25, a Red Army Faction member detained for the slaying of a Dutch policeman in Utrecht on Sept. 22.

Folkerts is wanted in Germany on charges of taking part in the April slaying of prosecutor Siegfried Buback and the July killing of banker Jergen Ponto. He is also sought for questioning in the Sept. 5 abduction of industrialist Hanns-Martin Schleyer, who was found dead last week.

Dutch police have been searching for several other German terrorists believed to be in the Netherlands. Police in Sweden said acquaintances of Ponto reported seeing one of his alleged slayers, Susan Albrecht, in Stockholm on Thursday night.

Caransa owns a chain of hotels and other real estate valued at more thn $40 million. He was born in Amsterdam of a poor Jewish family of Portuguese descent and made his fortune selling army surplus equipment after the Second World War.

His parents and both brothers perished in Nazi concentration camps.

Meanwhile, West German parliament has opened debate on new anti-terrorist legislation by the liberal coalition government and a package of even stronger measures by the conservative Christian Democratic opposition.

The government wants tighter firearms laws, swifter trials for terrorists and exclusion from the courtroom of defence lawyers suspected of trying to help their clients escape.

The opposition presented bills that would end force-feeding of prisoners on hunger strikes, permit tapping of suspected terrorists' telephones and give the supreme court sole authority to try terrorists.

Former chancellor Willy Brandt, chairman of the ruling Social Democrats, urged parliament to "act moderately," saying existing anti-terrorist laws needed stricter enforcement. He said terrorists would eventually give up their struggle "because they have the people and particularly the workers against them."

Math doesn't count to too many teachers

VANCOUVER (CP) — There are too many mathematics teachers in B.C. with only a minimal background in the subject, says a University of British Columbia professor.

David Robitaille, who headed a provincial government survey of students and teachers, said this week that about 25 per cent of elementary math teachers had had no post-secondary math courses.

The study, which questioned 3,000 teachers and 100,000 students in grades 4, 8 and 12, found that about 14 per cent of the teachers had no mathematics training.

"One of the disturbing things we found in the teacher questionnaire was that at the Grade 8 level, a large proportion of teachers had a minimal background in math," Robitaille told a UBC class. "Too many people are teaching math just to complete their schedules — they may be language arts or physical education teachers."

He said the student portion of the survey found that fewer girls took a full 12 years of math classes than boys. Grade 10 mathematics is the minimum required for graduation.

"The performance by the group that had taken only Math 10 was rather disturbing because they performed poorly on all portions of the test," said Robitaille. "Two-thirds of that group were girls and that came as a surprise to me."

He said girls made up 65 per cent of the group that dropped math after Grade 10, while boys comprised 60 per cent of the Math 12 group.

"The purpose of the assessment was to find out how the (school) system is doing, rather than how individual students or the teachers are doing," he said.

The survey found that students not born in Canada and whose mother tongue is not English did better than native Canadians on all parts of the grades 8 and 12 tests, but the opposite was true with the Grade 4 test.

Referendums

Uncertainty PM's aim

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday he plans to ask Parliament for the power to hold federal referendums on such things as Quebec independence and the constitution in order to create "a great deal of uncertainty."

And, he added at a news conference, "I'm glad I did."

Trudeau was replying to a query asking him to clarify confusion surrounding his call for a federal right to sound out opinions through referendums.

The prime minister announced during the policy-previewing throne speech debate last week that he intended to introduce referendum legislation in the House during the current session.

Then he followed up the announcement last Friday with suggestions that a federal referendum on national unity might be conducted only in Quebec. Such a referendum, he said, would be legally binding on Ottawa.

Trudeau indicated last week that the referendum legislation is part of government strategy against Parti Quebecois plans to hold a provincial referendum on independence.

At his news conference, he made it clear.

"I had in mind creating a great deal of uncertainty."

UN condemns Jew outposts

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The UN General Assembly censured Israel on Friday for establishing Jewish settlements in occupied Arab territories and demanded an immediate end to such practices.

With Israel casting the only "no" vote, the assembly adopted 131-to-1 an Egyptian resolution declaring the settlements "have no legal validity and constitute a serious obstruction" to Middle East peace efforts.

The United States — Israel's chief ally, which voted against a border anti-Israeli measure last year — abstained. President Carter has called the settlements illegal and an obstacle to peace.

Canada voted for the resolution, as it had last year, but expressed some reservations about a couple of paragraphs including one that made settlement problems a responsibility of the 15-country Security Council.

Sixty-two countries in addition to Egypt sponsored the resolution denouncing the outposts in the West Bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza Strip. It was the first assembly censure of Israel for the settlements alone.

The resolution also asks Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to contact the Israeli government to ensure the document's "prompt implementation" and to report to the assembly by Dec. 31.

Israeli government officials said the resolution harms the prospects of peace in the Middle East.

Earlier, Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Israel would not consider itself bound by any UN resolution which condemns the establishment of Jewish settlements in the occupied territories.

THIS YEAR'S King Fisherman Contest ends Sunday at midnight. Weigh-in stations are asked to submit all entries promptly.

PQ office break-in bared

Will charges be laid? It seems to me they must be."

In Quebec Parti Quebecois House leader Robert Burns said PQ officials have suspected for some time that "federal agents" were spying on the party.

But Burns told a reporter he had no personal knowledge of a 1973 RCMP raid on PQ headquarters in Montreal.

When Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau was told of the news, he just laughed and said: "What, they only admitted to one?"

At his news conference Trudeau said the question of whether the law ought to be changed to give police broader powers is to be considered by the royal commission headed by Justice David McDonald.

He said he first became aware that the theft had occurred last week although he was told in 1973 or 1974 that the RCMP had been conducting surveillance of the Parti Quebecois and he had ordered it stopped.

He said he did not then consider it necessary for the RCMP to conduct surveillance of a legitimate democratic party but said there might be times when it would be necessary.

"Should there ever be any need to exercise surveillance of a democratic party, whether it be the Liberal party of any other, I'd tell them to go ahead and do it," he said.

He said the surveillance had been carried out because of criticism of the RCMP during the October, 1970, Quebec crisis for not having enough information about separatists to track down the kidnappers of James Cross and Pierre Laporte.

There was concern that some members of the Parti Quebecois may have been committed to the use of violence.

"You have to put yourself in the context of the times," Trudeau said.

Stairway to history in Paris

First, Louis XVIII and then Levesque

Colonist Wire Services

PARIS — Quebec Premier Rene Levesque will be accorded the unprecedented honor of climbing an historic staircase leading to the presidential box during a visit next week to the French National Assembly.

It was announced Thursday that the premier would climb the staircase on the facade of the Concorde and the Napoleon entrance, reaching the presidential box where he will observe an assembly session.

One report said no one had ascended the historic marble steps since King Louis XVIII almost 1⅛ centuries ago. Napoleon had reserved for himself the privilege of climbing the peristyle steps leading to the Imperial Salon before entering the assembly. There was no explanation why Levesque should be accorded such a signal honor.

Levesque will be welcomed by Edgar Faure, speaker of the national assembly, and members of his office at a reception at the presidential residence in the Hotel de Lassay.

Afterward, Levesque will visit the Palais Bourbon, seat of the assembly, where he will see an exhibition on Quebec in the assembly library.

He will then ascend to the presidential box and listen to a debate on current affairs. After the debate, he will be officially saluted in the hemicycle by the speaker, in the presence of Prime Minister Raymond Barre, and members of the government.

The parliamentary ceremony will continue in the reception gallery where, in the presence of the government, opposition members and delegations from the senate and the press, there will be an exchange of speeches by Levesque and Faure.

The events may be watched live by Canadians. A French television network will broadcast the ceremonies via satellite to Canada.

Levesque left Quebec in a shroud of secrecy last weekend, a week before his official visit to France was to begin.

Spokesmen in Quebec City said he would spend the week studying issues likely to be the subjects of discussions with French officials and otherwise preparing for the tour.

French sources had earlier indicated that Levesque might address the full assembly, an honor not extended to any foreigner since former U.S. President Woodrow Wilson.

However, spokesmen for the premier and the French government later said there had never been any question of Levesque addressing the assembly.

PM keeping cool on French plans for touchy visit

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday he will not react to French plans for receiving Quebec Premier Rene Levesque in Paris unless "something wrong happens over there."

He indicated at his weekly news conference that he has not been consulted by the French government on details of the Quebec premier's visit.

But he said he told French Foreign Minister Louis de Guiringaud during the minister's recent visit here that France should "make sure you don't give greater credence or greater credit" to Levesque than to other provincial premiers or previous Quebec premiers.

Levesque should be treated like any provincial premier as that was what he was elected to be, Trudeau said.

"I would be very concerned if France or any other country tookany action which indicated they were sympathetic to a secessionist movement or a secessionist leader within Canada."

The French government was reported planning to invite Levesque to speak to the French National Assembly, an unusual honor for a foreign leader. But this has been denied by both Levesque and the French government.

Trudeau said he informed de Guiringaud that he would not make an event out of the visit if Levesque were treated like any provincial premier.

The prime minister said he has been kept informed of rumors in newspapers about plans for the Levesque visit.

"But I guess that I will only know what the program is in a final sense when it takes place."

Blair signs

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran outfielder Paul Blair, who played a key role in New York Yankees' drive to the world baseball championship, has signed a three-year contract with the club. Blair, 33, was used mainly as a fill-in for Mickey Rivers and Reggie Jackson in the outfield.

Marion friend reveals nightmare of chains

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Kidnap victim Charles Marion wept continuously in the early hours of his freedom as he told family and friends about being chained up for nearly 82 days with only spiders and rats for company, a close friend of Marion's said Friday.

Raymond Gauvin said in an interview that Marion had been left alone for as long as seven days at a time, chained to a basement floor and enduring "inhuman" suffering.

Marion was resting in hospital in Sherbrooke, 90 miles east of Montreal, after being released near the Sherbrooke airport Thursday evening, following delivery of a $50,000 ransom paid by his family 24 hours earlier.

Meanwhile, police reported no leads to the identities of the abductors.

Marion's doctor said the 57-year-old credit union employee had not been allowed to change his clothes. He had grown a long beard and his overgrown fingernails had begun to curl. Moreover, he had no access to a toilet or wash water.

Although Marion made no public statement, his family issued a communique saying he had been kept in an eight by seven-foot corner of a basement at an undisclosed location.

The statement said he had been provided with a mattress, a few candles, a chamber pot and a plastic jug containing such provisions as cold meat and biscuits.

"For more than 80 days, Mr. Marion was always chained. He had as his companion only abundant vermin and, once every four or five days, one of the kidnappers would come and make him sign documents of all kinds," the statement said.

Dr. Bertrand Scalabrini said his patient had lost 26 pounds, lowering his weight to 149 pounds. Scalabrini said Marion showed a loss of appetite and had digestive and urinary troubles.

Marion's friend Gauvin told a reported that the family is considering taking steps to clear his name.

"The legal battles begin later," Gauvin said, indicating the family is angered at some news reports alleging that Marion may have engineered his own kidnapping.

Daniel Hebert, the family lawyer, said he was looking into the possibility of taking legal action against some journalists.

Pretoria defies arms ban

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — South Africa, in angry defiance of President Carter's call for a UN arms embargo, vowed Friday to fight to the "bitter end" and dared the United States to "do the same to big brother Russia."

Foreign Minister Roelof "Pik" Botha urged Carter to "reconsider" his "dangerous" policy and warned that if sanctions were taken further to include a ban on general trade and oil to South Africa, then "millions of blacks will suffer tremendously."

Defense Minister P. W. Botha said Carter's action as "not unexpected and South Africa will survive." He said the white-ruled nation manufactures all the weapons it needs to maintain control within South Africa. France and Israel are Pretoria's major overseas arms suppliers.

Premier John Vorster remained silent but a foreign affairs department spokesman said a "major" announcement would be made late Saturday. He declined to give details.

But foreign minister Botha, bristling with anger and lowering his voice with emotion, told a British television interviewer that virtual war had been declared on South Africa.

"When the Germans started the war, (Britain) fought it out until the bitter end. We will show exactly the same quality of resistance."

"We are prepared for everything," Botha said. "Our survival is at stake. What should we do, surrender? In order to become acceptable? We won't do it. If the only alternative is between surrendering and fighting it out, then surely you need not doubt what we'll choose."

Botha accused the United States and Britain of applying double standards.

"Why don't you do the same to big brother Russia," Botha said. "Because you're frightened of Russia. Because you can't stand up to Russia."

At the United Nations, Friday, Britain and Canada announced in the Security Council that they would join a mandatory arms embargo against South Africa.

But African delegates refused to accept a combined compromise proposal by five Western powers for a six-month ban of the sale of arms to the white-minority-ruled nation.

They said the suggested compromise resolution was too weak to make a major impact on the South Africans.

Pan Am 747 girdling globe

Jet flying for records

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Pan American World Airways jet took off Friday in an attempt to top the speed record for circling the world via the North and South poles and celebrate the 50th anniversary of U.S. international aviation.

The flight carried 165 passengers on the attempt to complete the globe-circling flight in 48 hours and 40 minutes. Twenty-four of those aboard were on the same Pan Am jet last year when it set an equatorial speed record of 46 hours and 50 seconds.

The special performance Boeing 747 headed for the North Pole and then an initial refueling stop in London. Next, Capetown, South Africa, then over the South Pole to Auckland, New Zealand, and back to San Francisco Sunday night.

It was 50 years ago Friday that a Pan Am Fokker F-7 Trimotor made the U.S.'s first scheduled international flight — a 90-mile hop from Key West, Fla., to Havana, Cuba.

Present speed record over the 26,642-mile polar orbit course is 62 hours, 27 minutes, 35 seconds, set by a Boeing 707 cargo jet Nov. 15-17, 1965.

Passengers paid $3,333 for first-class tickets and $2,222 for economy on the one-of-a-kind flight.

One couple, Karl and Margaret Macklin of Delray Beach, Fla., said it was their fourth record-setting flight in less than two years.

"We do it because I'm getting pretty gosh-danged old, and there's a lot of this world I want to see before I die," said Macklin, 65. He said he and his wife put their savings into such flights instead of buying new cars.

Charles skips Hookers' Ball

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Prince Charles' schedule brought him almost to the steps of the annual Hookers' Ball where he had a standing invitation Friday, but a spokesman politely turned it down. "I'm afraid we have another engagement," said press spokesman John Dauth with a smile, just before the festivities were to begin.

Charles spent the day sightseeing, riding the Bay Area Rapid Transit subway system and visiting at the University of California in Berkeley before his stop at city hall for a reception.

By a coincidence of scheduling, the reception for the Prince and the function put on by prostitutes were held in city's Civic Centre at the same time.

While Charles was greeting the mayor and meeting dignitaries in city hall, a hookers' party was scheduled across the street in Civic Auditorium. The party and the ball that followed, a four-year-old San Francisco tradition, are open to the public at hefty prices.

The prince was invited to the ball earlier by Margo St. James, former prostitute and leader of pro-prostitute causes.

Dealer's gems recovered

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The FBI said Friday it had arrested five persons and recovered nearly all of $2 million in precious gems stolen from a San Francisco dealer in Seattle last Monday.

Charles McKinnon, special FBI agent in charge, said two men were arrested at a parking lot Friday when they attempted to sell the stolen items to an FBI undercover agent. He said another man and a woman were arrested at her San Francisco home and a fourth man was arrested at his job in Oakland. A sixth person is being sought.

Agents said the small amount missing was believed to have been sold.

Be it ever so humble

EUROPEAN TRAVEL for Canadians has ceased to be the care-free and affordable pleasure of a year or two ago. There is the continuing "work-to-rule" of air traffic controllers in Britain, to say nothing of the ever-present threat of sky-jacking. And prices are going out of this world at the same time as our dollar plummets in value.

On prices, in Vienna for instance, it now costs in the region of $30 to see the Lipizzaners perform, or hear the famous boys' choir sing, or attend the State Opera. It's $5.50 for a cup of coffee and a pastry at the nearby cafe while you're mulling over that. So on to Sweden and what's up? Everything. The charge for a double-room in a respectable hotel in Stockholm for a night starts at $55. Enough of that, but Belgium offers no relief. What you have to pay in Brussels is even more startling.

Bully for Britain? Not b-likely. Where the doubling of the cost of accommodation over the past few years has been offset by the devaluation of the pound, today's Canadian visitor is at a distinct disadvantage with the value of the currency there now rising and the dollar sliding.

For the actual travelling between countries there are constant delays. Not unusual, apparently, is the recent experience of an elderly couple in not only having to wait nine hours at London's Heathrow Airport before their flight to Vancouver got off the ground, but in what they had to go through in that period. They and scores of other people of all ages had to queue for hours to obtain food and to reach a rest-room; and had to take turns for space on waiting-room floors to stretch out for a rest of weary bones.

It has reached a point where anyone contemplating a trip over there will be having closer-to-home thoughts. But even a holiday in the United States is not nearly as attractive financially that it was at one time. The much-lower-than-Canadian costs of meals and accommodation are lost with the spread in value of the two countries' dollars.

Home is growing sweeter all the time.

A fizzled rocket

SYMPATHY for the two Soviet cosmonauts who took off for a major space mission recently and had to return to earth only 26 hours later when something went wrong. They lost their chance to figure in a space spectacular timed to coincide with the 60th anniversary of the October Revolution that brought the Bolsheviks to power in Russia in 1917.

The cosmonauts are home safe, but who would want to be in the shoes of whoever gets the blame for the mission's failure? Or in the shoes of the government minister in charge of anniversary celebrations, who had to come up with an alternative event to call attention to the achievements of Soviet technology after 60 years of communism.

The moral is that space spectaculars occur when a spacecraft and back-up systems are all in go condition. This may or may not be the time when the calendar says go to celebrate a revolution.

So be it

ENGLISH has become the unofficial universal language, not because of any concerted attempt to make it so but simply because of the wide-ranging interests of English-speaking people throughout the world.

The Second World War, in particular, was responsible for the spread of English to many French, Spanish and German-speaking people in Europe and to Japan and other parts of Asia. Wide-ranging business and cultural interests in more recent years have expanded familiarity with and use of English.

But if language popularity is the mark of universality, it is Mandarin Chinese, not English, which deserves the world title. The Guinness Book of Records says Mandarin is spoken by almost twice as many people as English.

As far as some aspects of world dimplomacy are concerned, the world's leaders might as well be speaking in Mandarin. But for the balance of world discourse, Guinness notwithstanding, English will do nicely, thank you.

To get them safely through an election

OTTAWA — Look for an election next June 26 — the date closest to the tenth anniversary of Prime Minister Trudeau's first victory in 1968. Mr. Trudeau, who is getting more like William Lyon Mackenzie King all the time, including longevity in office, is copying his predecessor's penchant for picking personal anniversaries in the timing of important events. He had the Queen open the current session of Parliament on the occasion of his 58th birthday. So it is not unlikely that he will pick another significant date for the next vote.

His idea of holding a national referendum on constitutional matters and national unity also has the W.L.M.K. touch. King used the device when his back was against the wall on the conscription issue. Now Trudeau, who is on the record as being firmly opposed to government-by-referendum, has reversed himself again in the hope of escaping from a constitutional impasse.

It has been assumed that the question to be put to the Canadian people is whether Quebec should or should not remain a part of Canada. Consequently, Rene Levesque, Rodrigue Biron, (leader of the Union Nationale) and Quebec Liberals have reacted unanimously in saying no: Quebec's future must be decided by the people of Quebec.

But I don't think that is what Trudeau had in mind. He rejected the idea of referring Quebec's Language Bill 101 to the Supreme Court on the grounds that a negative decision would allow the Pequistes to benefit politically by saying "what do you expect from an anglophone majority?" Consequently, although there is little virtue in consistency, he isn't likely to start a real riot by insisting that Quebec's future be determined by the people of Halifax, Prince Albert and Victoria.

Far more likely is a binding referendum on the question of entrenching minority language rights in the constitution. That would be more consistent with Trudeau's constant pitch for language equality across Canada.

And equally important, it is the kind of question that might get people's minds off economics long enough to see the government safely past another election.

The importance of a diversion has been painfully obvious in the early days of the current session of the House of Commons. The PM floundered badly for the first hour of his first speech when he was discussing the economy. So much so that Senator Keith Davey, who was sitting in the Speaker's Gallery throughout, looked slightly pained. It was only in the second half of Trudeau's speech, when he got into the more familiar ground of language and constitution, that he appeared comfortable.

Nor did Jean Chretien's mini-budget the following night recover the situation. Chretien was wise not to label his statement as a budget. If he had, the let-down would have been worse than it was. His changes were labelled as "tinkering" and are considered grossly inadequate to get the economy moving again.

The $100 tax relief for low and medium wage-earners scarcely will be enough to pay January and February installments on Christmas purchases, although psychologically it is good for a spring election.

And the timing of "decontrols" could hardly be more political. By choosing April 14, the government hopes to prevent an explosion in wage demands before ballot-day while enjoying the luxury of a campaign with controls off.

But the basics are still troublesome — high unemployment, high inflation, a plummeting dollar and a whopping $9,000,000,000 deficit. So it's not surprising that Chretien and his boss emphasize that we "have nothing to fear but fear itself." What we need is a change of attitude. The Canadian economy is basically strong, so down with despondency — we must think positively.

As I listened, I thought of a car I bought last winter. Its basic design is solid — the product of years of experience and development. But sometimes the clock didn't work, the cigarette lighter didn't work, the engine leaked oil, the gas mileage wasn't as advertised, the vinyl roof came loose and puffed up and down like a balloon to the amusement and amazement of passing cars, and one of the tires kept going flat.

So it is difficult to concentrate on the fact that the car is fundamentally safe and comfortable when one is so often distracted by so many defects caused by sloppiness, poor workmanship, poor quality control and bad management.

It's the same with the economy. It may have a strong frame and a good potential. But people still are suffering. We're losing markets at home and abroad — and consequently jobs — because our wages, interest rates, energy costs and taxes are all higher than those of our competitors. Yet the government either can't or won't persist in policies to bring them into line.

So it's difficult to concentrate on our excellent potential when our mediocre performance is so distracting.

Which explains why a spring referendum is in the cards to erase from our minds the woes of winter.

He's the style-setter

OTTAWA — Ah, there it was again, more hints not just of the mailed fist in the velvet glove, but the sledge-hammering: "Do it or else."

If Canadians couldn't straighten up and discipline themselves, purred Prime Minister Trudeau, "we'll do it for them."

As things have gone from bad to worse, he's taken more and more to this line, blaming Canadians at large for the economic mess in which his government has involved them.

The man, mildly observes Walter Baker, the Conservative House Leader, "seems to have forgotten that he's been the one in charge these last 10 years."

It's Walter Baker's view that if Canadians are undisciplined, this style of self-indulgence was set by Pierre Trudeau in both his public and private life.

His lack of discipline in his public affairs can be read on the bottom line of the Finance Department and Treasury Board accounts: spending more than quadrupled in 10 years.

And in his private affairs it's there for all to see in the multiplication of his staff, his offices redecorated with costly furniture and art, his use of the taxpayers' aircraft for personal holidays and political missions, and in that $300,000 swimming pool which came indirectly out of tax funds.

Yet the prime minister demands that we all cut back, work a little harder, live a little less.

And he's right. We should.

"But he's the leader," says Walter Baker. "And a leader should lead."

Pierre Trudeau resents that he is obligated to do what he is asking of others.

There is a touch of irritation in the soft purr when he complains that each time he lectures on the need for discipline "there is always some clown to say: 'Oh, well, it's easy for him to say be content with less because he's got those big cars, the rich house, the swimming pool (see, it bothers him that people still talk about it) and so on and so on.' "

But he does concede that "the clowns," as he calls them, "may be making a few political yards."

Which may be the reason Walter Baker, when it comes to "discipline," tells the prime minister to do himself what he lectures others.

Today in History

Sir Walter Raleigh, English courtier, explorer and colonizer, was executed 359 years ago today — in 1618 — for conspiring against James I. Sir Walter had not conspired against the king, but his enemies at court convinced James that Raleigh had opposed his accession to the throne after the death of Elizabeth I. Raleigh was found guilty of treason in 1603 and spent 12 years in prison. He tried to redeem his favor at court by sailing to Guinana in an attempt to bring back great riches to James. The effort failed and one of his captains burned a Spanish settlement on the return voyage, both of which angered James. Raleigh was beheaded upon his return.

France insisting on role as world's nuclear 'dustbin'

By PAUL WEBSTER
the London Observer

PARIS — Despite a summer of violent protest, the French government has not only rejected pressures to slow down its £20 billion ($34 billion) nuclear power progam but has accepted the role of the world's nuclear dustbin.

The already controversial waste-treatment plant at La Hauge near Cherbourg is to be tripled in size to deal with nuclear waste from Japan, West Germany and Sweden while France looks for other contracts from Swiss, Belgian and other European governments.

Scientists, backed by a former director of the Atomic Energy Commission, Lew Kowarski, have warned that the plant is not safe to treat even the 650 tons of enriched uranium from France's own nuclear power program which it is expected to receive by 1985. The left-wing Cherbourg City Council has opposed extension of the plant on safety grounds while Channel Islanders have joined the French protest movement after reports of pollution in the Channel.

Trade unions claim that the only imperative for the French government and the private company which runs the plant is commercial gain. Only 15 tons of uranium of the type France will have to treat from the 1980s has been successfully dealt with at La Hague, but this did not stop France signing an agreement with Japan this month to treat 1,600 tons of waste starting in 1982.

Setbacks to British, American and West German nuclear waste-treatment plants, which inspired President Carter's pressures for a complete rethinking on nuclear technology, do not carry much weight in France which is placing its entire faith in nuclear power to ensure energy independence before the end of the century.

The recycling of uranium waste to recover plutonium is a key to its second-phase nuclear power program in which 20 American-designed light water reactors using enriched uranium are built over the next 10 years. La Hague was built to treat waste from the first generation of heavy water reactors using un-enriched uranium.

The second generation reactors will be followed by fast breeder reactors which produce more plutonium than they use. These are being developed in Fance in co-operation with West Germany and Italy. It was the first of these, at Creys Malville near Lyon, which was the centre of violent fighting between police and demonstrators in July in which one man died and 100 were injured.

But the more immediate danger comes from the recycling part where workers went on strike last year as a protest against what they claimed was a lack of safety measures. Since then the police have been on constant alert as a series of protests were staged with support coming from Britain, Germany, Switzerland, Belgium and Holland.

The effect on the government's determination to go ahead with expansion has been restricted to a promise by President Giscard d'Estaing that more information will be made available. A plan to have a parliamentary debate on nuclear power has been discreetly dropped while details of safety measures are still covered by state secret. The main publicity campaign for nuclear power is carried out by the state-owned electricity authority which insists that French technology is far ahead of the rest of the world.

On the international front, the president has agreed to discuss a world code on nuclear technolgoy proposed by President Carter if Russia is included in its preparation, but has rejected American pressure to stop the sale of a nuclear teatment plant to Pakistan. Internal protests have been set back by the reluctance of the Socialists and Communists to back up demonstators, leaving the government's hands free to negotiate lucrative deals.

The Japanese recycling contract is worth up to £500 million ($850 million) and concerns 1,600 tons of uranium. The Germans want France to accept 1,000 tons and the Swedes 700 tons. By 1980 La Hague will already have doubled its capacity to 1,600 tons and by 1982 will be able to treat 2,400 tons. Nearly a third of this will be French nuclear waste.

This is 10 times as much as scientists speaking on behalf of trade unions have said is the safety level for La Hague. In a continuing protest they have published claims that the plant is still in an experimental stage and the sea water pollution is already too high for divers to be able to work near the plant in safety.

Like the government, the private company, Cogema, which runs La Hague, rejects these allegations out of hand and invokes the secrecy laws to avoid having to explain the safety measures.

If there is any delay in the expansion program or the development of recycling techniques it says that the uranium can be stocked around the 500-acre factory without danger. Uranium waste already has to be kept in water for several months before it can be treated.

There is also an official silence on what precautions France will take to ensure that the plutonium it recovers from the nuclear waste will not be used by its foreign clients to manufacture bombs.

No more Kickapoo

From The Globe and Mail

Guy Lombardo has been heard to say that when he goes, he's taking New Year's Eve with him. We know he's kidding, but it's clear that Al Capp is not. As he goes into retirement he's taking (choke, sob) the whole hillbilly world of Li'l Abner with him.

It's a world that overlapped our own slightly crazier world for 43 years in the comic-strip sections of newspapers — about 900 of them when the strip was at its peak. The denizens of Dogpatch rejoiced in names that displayed the rich inventivenss of their creator: Moonbeam McSwine, Hamfat Gooch, Clamwinkle McSlop, Available Jones, Romeo Scragg and Earthquake McGoon, all of whom shared space with the central characters of Li'l Abner himself, Daisy Mae, Mammy Yokum and Senator Phogbound.

Capp was something more than a creator of people with funny names; more even than a talented illustrator. Dogpatch (and, of course, Lower Slobovia) served to hold a cracked mirror up to our own affairs upon which Capp bestowed his own caustic commentary. He was an excellent story-teller and the odd affairs of Dogpatch often left the audience tantalized by hints of untold stories.

Writer, artist, satirist, outraged rightwinger — see him as you will — he certainly made an indelible mark on the popular culture of North America over a longer period than most other people could manage; and perhaps it is natural that at 68 he should feel entitled to take his friends into retirement with him.

The last of the daily-strip appearances will be next month and doubtless a great many addicts will be crying into their Kickapoo Joy Juice.

Saving the taxpayers' money?

Victoria school trustees place economy, low mill rate ahead of educational value

By PAUL De GROOT Colonist Reporter

Can public officials go too far in trying to save the taxpayers' money?

If so, it is being done at the Greater Victoria school board, where a few misanthropists are doing long-term damage to the school district's educational programs and its staff relations.

It was downright pathetic to see them at work there in the last week. This is budget time, and they have carefully sharpened their fangs and honed their nails to give the best performance during this period.

Bunn
...mind made up

Their first victim was the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, which wanted a chance to work with trustees on the budget. To be sure, the teachers' brief was hardly calculated to make friends of school trustees--it criticized their efforts at education as "meagre," told them they are not making the taxpayers "work hard enough," and used some rather dubious statistics to make its point.

But the idea behind the teachers' brief was a sound one. This school board does not care about education as much as it cares about mill rates, and its record during the last year gives ample evidence of that.

Take for example, the number one issue in the Greater Victoria school district--a declining enrolment and its implications for the district's structure.

To the present school board this is not an opportunity to get out from under the pressure of finding teachers and space for students every fall. It is instead an obligation to relentlessly force the school district budget down to reflect the fact that the number of pupils is going down, regardless of whether costs are going up or not, and regardless of the consequences for the classroom.

That is their be all, and end all, their reason for existence--to make sure that those scallywag teachers and school district administrators do not abscond with any more public funds than the devils need to survive.

In the next year, there are doubtless going to be school closures. The district lost more than 1,300 this fall, the equivalent of about 50 classrooms.

If school board performance to date is any indication, these factors will not count at school board meetings--the effect of a school closure on the local community, the effect on pupils of being shuffled around each year, the effect on school staffs that are constantly being forced into new working associations, and perhaps even the loss of several of the district's "alternative schools."

What will count is how much money they will save their real client, the taxpayers.

What went on last winter is a good example. The board had a planning report before it at that time which detailed some of the changes that could be made. As far as the school board was concerned, this was largely a mechanical question--how can the bodies best be fitted in the buildings?

The ramifications of going to middle schools rather than junior high schools, to take one of the many educational options before them, was not discussed, and the only concession to education that comes to mind from those discussions is a feeling that students should not be asked to attend three schools in three consecutive years.

It was at the first real 1978 budget discussions this past week, however, that the board's true colors came through. One could sense the tension in the air as these self-appointed experts on the taxpayers' dollar prepared to show everyone how tough they could really be.

Peter Yorke, whose knowledge of education has not peeked through at any meetings I've attended so far, told the administration that $41.5 million is all they need to run the district next year. Period.

Now this is a big district, including a lot of different schools, programs and what not, and just how Peter Yorke knows that $41.5 million will do the trick next year remains unexplained, even by Peter Yorke himself. He sounded more like a greengrocer haggling over the price of turnips than a school trustee talking about a very large and complicated educational system.

Next to speak was Peter Bunn at his petulant and peevish best. With his eye fixed firmly on Oak Bay taxpayers, he said he was simply going to vote against anything higher than the $41.5 million guideline the school trustees had set last summer. Don't confuse him with the facts, his mind is made up.

Once school trustees got down to the budget, the metaphor that immediately came to mind was an admittedly far-fetched image, but it persisted all night. Put bluntly, it looked as though someone had cast pearls before swine.

The educational programs they turned over, and nuzzled, and grumbled about, and generally ignored. These guardians of the public purse were after the real guts of the budget, things like why community relations co-ordinator Bill Stavdal was going to spend $450 on travel and conferences next year, and why he had lopped off $28 for association dues.

The sharp-eyed school trustees wondered: Are the superintendent of schools and his secretary (total budget: $71,824) really going to need $800 for mileage expenses this year?

Some of the questions were downright inane: Yorke wondering whether school district staff charged the district for their mileage from their homes to work for instance. Trustee Bud Smith's very first question was the impact that the budget would have on mill rates, and why couldn't the Camosun College budget be included in the summary, even though Camosun College hasn't prepared its budget yet, even though the school board has almost nothing to say about it, and any guess would only lead to more confusion than leaving it out entirely.

A somewhat mystified Mark Fisher had to ask Smith what he would do if the Camosun College budget pushed the school mill rate over his self-imposed limit. Did he intend to chop the Greater Victoria school board's budget to make up for an excess on the part of Camosun College?

At other times, the school trustees' behavior bordered on the juvenile.

The board agreed only a month ago (after setting its $41.5 million guideline, incidentally) that it would expand the services of special counsellors to elementary schools. It was a sound educational decision, brought about mostly through the persuasive arguments put forward by superintendent Allan Stables showing that the district has seriously neglected elementary education, a point also raised by the teachers' association.

Come budget time, however, and the news that the district's provisional budget was $400,000 higher than the trustees had asked for, several trustees were gung-ho to chop the program. While no decision was definitely made, the snide remarks made by several trustees about the program indicated their feeling that if the administration is going to exceed their guidelines, the trustees just might kill some of their pet projects, and hang the consequences to the children and schools, who don't seem to count.

Yorke
...$41.5 million, period

While the trustees generally had their facts right and raised some valid points, their attitude can only be described as frighteningly malicious.

The long-term consequences for the district could be serious. If good staff are driven away by school board philistinism the taxpayer will suffer, regardless of the the mill rate.

The trustees were elected, after all, to get the greatest value for the taxpayers' dollars, not just to spend as few of them as possible.

That option could ultimately prove to be the most expensive of all.

To the editor

Apology to Dr. Ney

As the unofficial and anonymous member of the physicians for life group quoted in one or two recent articles regarding the baby-buying advertisement, I would like to clear some misonceptions which may have resulted from my statements.

Although our group as a whole is still in the process of working out a proper strategy, most of us firmly support the intent of the advertisement and are committed to challenging easy abortion with whatever means we have. Particularly we wish to lay to rest the notion that abortions must be performed because the children would be unwanted.

Personally, I wish to extend an apology to Dr. Ney for any embarrassment my remarks may have caused him. The idea was in fact his in the first place and certainly his to act upon himself as he saw fit. In fact, we are in debt to him for a concept that may well demonstrate the anomalies and injustices of our present Criminal Code very effectively, and be instrumental in preserving lives.

Dreaming

I had a dream last night. I was on a familiar trip to Tsawwassen from Swartz Bay, but the ferry was a little different, and was the Queen of Liberia with a strange flag.

The crew members looked so smart and clean in their B.C. Ferry uniforms and I thought I recognized some of them as one-time crew members of a Hong Kong rust-bucket ship recently photographed in Vancouver.

The public address system informed me with a slight accent, that the ferries were making a good profit at the current one-half fares, and that there would be further reductions in fares; and that it would not be necessary, in future, for travellers to celebrate Thanksgiving day on a secret day some time between Oct. 1 and 31 to avoid blackmail. Then I woke up.

SINVERGUENZA.

Reprisals

When the ferry workers struck I was dismayed as personal plans collapsed. Following all the government's threats that the union would be fined for an illegal strike I laughed right out loud. I knew that would never happen.

As the week wore on we all got very angry. Then to find there was a settlement arranged "convenient" to both sides with no penalties was infuriating. Still no pertinent words from the premier's area to maintain our belief that justice would be done.

Now, days later when we are disgusted, the union elated, comes a couple of quiet little comments that indeed justice will be done, as there is a fine point of law re "reprisals". Can it be our government has been wily enough to outwit the union types, the press beagles and little us. Have they been "lying in the weeds" hoping cleverly that no one will read the fine print, or sad in my mind due to the time elapsed, that they moved because of our angry reaction.

My personal and much disillusioned prediction is that in no time at all talk of legal action against the union will quietly die away and hopefully be forgotten. That is until the ferry workers decide to strike again on Christmas Eve. What then?

An illegal strike is the same as a legal strike now. The ferry workers tested this theory and I sincerely believe have gotten away with it.

Lum plum

On Oct. 18, on the Tuesday at Nine TV show, Ald. Fred Severson, chairman of Saanich's planning committee, invited the viewers to the Thursday meeting of council which was to be a report of the planning committee. He said: "Come early because there will be standing room only."

On Thursday, when the council chambers were filled to capacity, the meeting was barely called to order when the fire inspector arrived and cleared the chambers because of the overcrowded conditions. This is very commendable of the fire department but why did they come on this night — did they get a phone call? Many times in the past year the same conditions have prevailed but this is the first time to my knowledge that they have attended and I have only missed one public meeting in the past year.

I think Ald. Severson owes all the candidates in the November aldermanic race and their supporters an apology for his remarks which were printed in Friday's Daily Colonist. He seemed appalled at the large turnout at the meeting and the actions of the crowd and then pointedly mentions that some of the candidates and their supporters were present at the meeting. As a candidate myself, I can only say that it is essential for any person seeking election to be informed of municipal affairs and I have been attending meetings regularly. At no time on Thursday did any of these candidates boo, jeer or shout insults.

Why did Ald. Severson, chairman of the planning committee, advertise this meeting so widely and then due to 'circumstances' cancel it? Was he planning or plotting — to pull out a plum for Lum?

Poor envoy

Ald. Robert Wright sounds like a poor ambassador of friendship, according to the report in The Daily Colonist of his trip to China.

What makes Mr. Wright qualified to recognize a good sense of humor? Is leaping out from behind a book shelf in a library with a bloodcurdling scream humor? No wonder his Chinese hosts were speechless for two hours.

How can we put much credence in his other reports when he is obviously overstating the case when referring to the Chinese as humorless?

Differences

Hubert Beyer in his column of Sunday Oct. 16, pointed out some of the important differences between Oak Bay council proceedings and proceedings at Victoria's City Hall.

Oak Bay council, for example, votes immediately after public hearings on the issues brought before it, whereas, city council does not.

Mr. Beyer congratulates Oak Bay council for making grass-roots politics accessible to the people. With Victoria city council grass-roots politics is essentially impossible. City business is conducted largely in secrecy and without desire or concern for the input of the average citizen.

One reason this situation exists is the fact that Victoria city council is not composed of a majority of local residents. In Oak Bay, where all the aldermen are residents of the area they serve, citizen involvement is optimized. When Oak Bay aldermen make decisions they must literally live with those decisions, both in terms of cost to their pocket books and in terms of the quality of life in their community. They must also live with their fellow taxpayers and neighbors who will not hesitate to let their representatives know how they feel about particular decisions.

A majority of Victoria's aldermen leave the city after their business is transacted. As a result they never fully understand the ramifications of their decisions on the residents of our city.

The Union of B.C. Municipalities conference made the right decision when they voted to support a resolution calling for a "residential requirement" for municipal candidates.

To deal with the problem of secrecy at city hall Victoria requires a Freedom of Information Bylaw guaranteeing access to city hall information. The voters and taxpayers have a right to know.

'Baby farm' proposal will increase suffering

The proposal to use women as paid 'baby farms' is surely in the realm of science fiction. Do they seriously want us to return to the "good old days" when women served primarily as incubators?

Of course, proposals such as this support the traditional patriarchal system where one half of the adult population serves as a support structure for the other half, and where some of the favored half use the leisure time gained to become "so-called" experts on women's problems.

In this great age of technology, when we can produce a monster called Trident, when we can produce bombs which will kill people but leave their property intact, we still are unable (or unwilling) to produce a safe, effective method of birth control. As long as this remains true, unwanted pregnancies will occur.

Is this group attempting to restore the concept of women as property? Are they also trying to reinforce the traditional sense of alienation which has led women to view the social problem of unwanted pregnancies as an individual problem? Actions like this, when coupled with the increased difficulty women are experiencing in receiving abortion counselling since the closing of the Victoria Women's Centre, can only increase the amount of needless suffering created by unwanted pregnancies.

Some women may respond to the offer of money. Unfortunately, women have been socialized to live vicarously with the result that some have internalized their oppression. These pro-lifers, or more correctly anti-abortionists, should be free to bear any children they wish. It is indeed unfortunate that we have no functional method of fetal transplants, so that these people — male and female — could experience all unwanted pregnancies.

Toronto trading

TORONTO (CP) — A sharp surge in financial and oil issues sent the Toronto stock market moderately higher at the close of active trading Friday.

Analysts attributed the optimism to the federal government's announcement of a $1.5-billion standby fund to bolster the Canadian dollar if necessary.

A total of 42 contracts were traded on the options market compared with 682 Thursday.

Provincial Bank of Canada led the 41 block trades with 56,162 shares at $12⅛ a share, followed by 20,000 Class A shares of Maclean-Hunter Ltd. at $11 a share.

Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. was in third place with 19,900 Class A shares at $14.00 a share, followed by a 3,300-share block at $15.50 a share.

Among industrials, Na-Churs International gained 1 to $7⅛ on the sale of 30,410 shares and Westburne International 1 to $14½ on 15,405 shares.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted another significant gain Friday, continuing its dramatic rebound from a two-year low and ending the week ahead for the first time in four weeks.

The Dow began the day with a small increase, but then fell a bit on a report from the United States commerce department that the index of leading economic indicators posted a slim 0.3-per-cent gain in September.

But it soon recovered, reacting to favorable recent developments. Among the positive news were reports that the money supply was down, the U.S. trade deficit in September reached its lowest point since May and productivity in the private sector was up in the third quarter.

Analysts found a bit of profit-taking in the afternoon, but it was not enough to drive the Dow below Thursday's closing.

Among the factors believed responsible for the surge since Tuesday's low was the triggering of many stock purchase plans.

Analysts said some investors apparently had left buy orders with brokers that were to be put into action when the Dow fell below 80p.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was up .18 at 50.77.

Among Canadian issues in the New York Stock Exchange, McIntyre was up ⅝ at 23, Massey Ferguson ¼ at 16¾, Canadian Pacific ¼ at 15 and Alcan ¼ at 23½.

Livestock

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts Friday at the Calgary public stockyards: 3,850 cattle and calves, mostly good quality yearling steers and stock calves. Trade active on all classes of cattle. There were insufficient slaughter steers and heifers on offer to establish marketing trends. A light number of slaughter cows traded at steady prices. Good bologna bulls were steady. D1-2 cows 25.50-27, D3 23.50-25.50, D4 21-24. Good bulls 28.50-31. A heavy run of yearling steers and stock calves in good condition were offered. Yearling steers $2 higher to both local and Eastern demand. Stock calves steady, appearing a little spotty. Good feeder steers over 800 pounds 42-45.20, 700-800 pounds 42.50-45.20, 600-700 pounds 43-46.50; common and medium over 600 pounds 38-42. Good feeder heifers over 700 pounds 35-38.25, 600-700 pounds 36-38.70, 500-600 pounds 36-40.75, common and medium over 500 pounds 31-36. Feeder cows 26-32.50. Good stock steer calves 500-600 pounds 44-49.90, 400-500 pounds 44-48.25. Good stock heifer calves 400-500 pounds 36-39.90.

Dollar helps BCFP

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Forest Products Ltd. reports net earnings for the nine months ending Sept. 30 increased 26 per cent to $21.9 million or $2.84 a share, from $17.4 million or $2.25 a share in the same period last year.

Sales were $330.8 million, up 21 per cent from $274.3 million last year.

In the third quarter this year, the company earned $7.9 million or $1.02 a share on sales of $120.7 million, compared with $5.4 million or 69 cents a share on $99 million in sales a year ago.

Chairman Ian Barclay said that the improved earnings resulted from a high level of lumber and newsprint sales, the contribution of recently-acquired Blandin Paper Co., of Grand Rapids, Minn., and the favorable dollar exchange rate.

Blandin's earnings for September were included in BCFP's results and amounted to a net contribution of $1.2 million or 16 cents a share. Foreign exchange transactions increased after-tax earnings by 88 cents a share this year, compared with a reduction of 33 cents in the nine months last year.

These factors helped offset a drop in pulp sales and earnings, which were down significantly due to lower demand and sharply eroded prices.

M-B profit increases

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel reported Friday net earnings of $15.9 million for the nine months ending Sept. 30, 1977, up from $13.4 million in the first nine months of 1976.

MacMillan Bloedel also showed a reserve of $22.3 million in its consolidated statement of earnings. The reserve was established against the company's investment in La Cellulose ed'Aquitaine, S.A., a French pulp producer.

The company said the full reserve provided against La Cellulose d'Aquitaine was made to improve the French company's position, which has been adversely affected by price and volume fluctuations, and the recent collapse of pulp prices in Western Europe.

Apart from the reserve, MacMillan Bloedel said it experienced good demand for its building materials and newsprint operations, although prices for corrugated containers in North America and for lineboard and pulp were unsatisfactory.

Based on the operating results for the nine months, the company's directors have declared a dividend of 10 cents a share, payable Dec. 15.

Dollar firmer

TORONTO (UPI) — The Canadian dollar gained ground Friday, following an announcement by the federal government it was prepared to support the currency if necessary.

However, early increases were offset later in the day by a renewed spurt of selling which brought the dollar's value only one point above Thursday's close when trading ended on international money markets.

After weeks of steady losses and several days of slight gains, the dollar Friday closed at 90.31 in terms of U.S. currency. Earlier, it had opened at 90.83, the high for the day.

"engineer" ? or Professional Engineer

All "engineers" are not professional engineers.

The title "Professional Engineer", or its abbreviation "P.Eng.", may be used legally in B.C. only by men or women who are registered by the Association of Professional Engineers of British Columbia.

To be registered by the Association and authorized to practise, the applicant must be a graduate in applied science from a recognized university, or have passed written exams set by the Association, and in addition have had a number of years' practical experience.

This process helps to ensure that persons authorized to act as Professional Engineers are in fact, competent and adequately trained, thus guarding against the possibility of unqualified people being put into positions of authority on projects requiring professional engineering knowledge.

Sail home saved?

By JIM BRAHAN
Colonist Marine Reporter

The recent sale of the B.C. coastal ship Northland Prince to an English firm for use in the South Atlantic has made one Saanich man very happy.

Jack Jeffries, 60, of 2511 Maynard has been on a waiting list for more than a year to visit the place of his birth, St. Helena.

Until about a month ago the Union-Castle Mail Steamship Co. operated a monthly service between South Africa and two South Atlantic island, Helena, and Ascension. It carried only 12 passengers.

Jeffries had been told by the shipping company his passage was booked for this month but the company cancelled the booking when it decided to withdraw the service to the islands.

The 3,150-ton Northland Prince, used in B.C. coastal service until last October, has been bought for about $2 million by an English merchant bank and leased to a Cornish shipping company which hopes to sail the ship to Britain by Nov. 2, provision and sail to the South Atlantic in time for Christmas.

Jeffries said he will contact the new owners and try and book passage to the island that is too mountainous to attract an airline.

Pulp ships may be calling at Ogden Point for cargoes by the end of January if the federal government approves the construction by Westcan Terminal of a 100,000 square-foot concrete warehouse to replace the facility destroyed last summer by fire.

The Colonist learned Friday that the company is expecting government approval by Nov. 15.

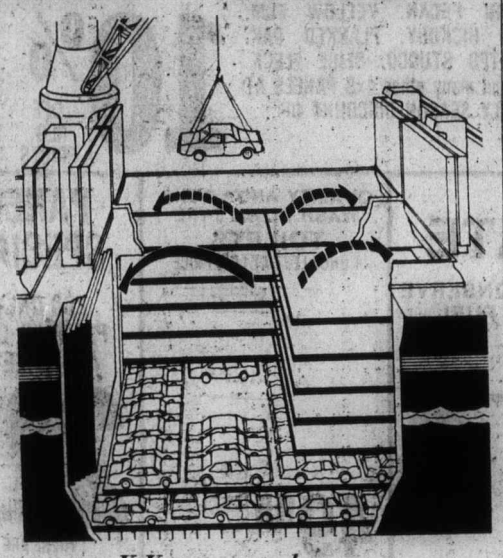
NKK (Nippon Kokan) of Japan recently signed a contract with Kvaener Brug A-S of Norway giving NKK access to the technology for designing bulk carriers capable of transporting cars by means of temporary conversion of holds.

The basic operating concept



K-K system stacks cars

of the technology is fitting holds with large steel plate temporary decks, which when the ship is used to haul bulk cargo, are stacked in the vertical position alongside the hold bulkheads.

When the ship is used to carry cars the temporary decks are put in place beginning from the bottom of the hold. A layer of cars is loaded and the next upper temporary deck is emplaced. This process is repeated until the hold capacity is reached.

It is becoming an economic necessity to deepen the St. Lawrence River between Quebec City and Montreal so ships with a draft of 50 feet can use the port of Montreal, according to Richard Strauss, president of Agro Co. of Canada.

Strauss told a meeting Wednesday of the Canada Grains Council that the maximum draft of 35 feet along this 250-kilometre stretch is not enough for vessels transporting bulk commodities such as grain, iron ore, coal and oil in tankers.

With deeper water into Montreal, some U.S. producers of grain would be tempted to export grain through the seaway rather than through the Gulf of Mexico, said Strauss, whose company handles grain for export and domestic use.

However, Paul Normandeau, president of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, said later in an interview he doubted a deeper channel is practical because dredging costs of "at least $2 billion" wouldn't be offset by economic benefits.

"I'm not ruling it out entirely," he said, "but the seaway system is working well and the government has other priorities for major undertakings."

'Assist community'

Engineers told of human need

By GEORGE GIBSON
Colonist Business Editor

An engineer Friday morning told about 300 of his fellows how they could and should be involved in community affairs.

Engineer and city alderman Murray Glazier, up for re-election next month and seeking a third term, was the lead-off speaker for the day's theme which was the role of the engineer and his responsibilities.

The delegates are attending the combined annual conference of the Association of Professional Engineers of B.C. and the Canadian Society for Civil Engineering. The events conclude today at the Empress Hotel.

Glazier said that engineers, as a group, don't follow the route of other groups such as lawyers and businessmen who often operate on the assumption that they can best serve a community's interests.

"Engineers . . . have not done this with emphasis and conviction. Neither have medical people or other technical and science-oriented groups. As highly-trained specialists, they tend to leave community affairs to imagined, but non-existent specialists. We should not, because we have as much at stake and as much to contribute as anybody else," Glazier said.

"In balance, there is a very good correlation between the qualities and abilities of engineers and today's community affairs requirements. The dominant community problem now is allocating limited resources to overwhelming needs.

"Better ways have to be found to do things. Options have to be evaluated and some present systems changed or dropped. Engineers, with their special approach to problem solving and their standards which they apply, are particularly well suited for that role. The engineering approach to problems is becoming more and more the political approach," the alderman stated.

"The engineer's role is to assist the community to find the best solutions . . . but he can only do that if he understands the feelings of the community and the human side of the issue," he added.

Dr. Charles Paris of Vancouver, executive director of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, reminded delegates that they should look upon the world as a gift, not as a source of raw material.

"The tragedy of the layoffs at Sudbury is not the closing of the plant, but the closing down of a town and its people," the theologian said.

"The heresy of the worship of Apollo can lead to such mistakes . . . the result is frightening but it can be avoided because those who possess the skills can change the result if they stop and think," he added.

Charles Brawner of Vancouver spoke earlier of the problems facing the internationally-minded engineer who would seek contracts in faroff places — especially in Third World countries. He had some good things to say about the Canadian image abroad such as the fact that we get a friendly welcome almost everywhere.

"And you should always leave something behind. Our firm was able to get a contract even though we were fourth-highest bidder because we had a training program that had the locals involved," he said.

New heritage board will advise on policy

A new provincial Heritage Advisory Board, consisting of 12 public representatives, was announced Friday by Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf.

The board will advise the ministry on policies for the preservation of B.C.'s heritage. Created under the recently-proclaimed Heritage Conservation Act, the new body replaces the historic sites and archaeological sites advisory boards.

There are no civil servants on the new heritage advisory board, which consists of seven members from the former advisory bodies, and five new appointees.

Dr. Willard Ireland of Victoria, retired provincial archivist and librarian, and a founding member of the two former advisory bodies, is the new chairman of the heritage advisory board.

Also on the board are Dr. Donald Mitchell and Dr. Jim Hendrickson of Victoria; Dr. Roy Carlson, Ronald Sutherland and Ardyth Cooper of Vancouver, and Dr. Margaret Ormsby of Vernon.

New appointees are Gloria Cranmer-Webster of Alert Bay, co-ordinator of cultural programs for the Nimpkish Indian band; Dr. Edward Gibson, associate professor of history at Simon Fraser University; William Lougher-Goodey, former architect-planner with the B.C. public works ministry; Martin Segger, an architectural historian in Victoria, and Dr. Margaret Prang, head of the history department at the University of B.C.

Fisheries charge stayed

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — A stay of proceedings has been entered in a fisheries case against Homer Stevens, former president of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union.

Stevens was charged last June with illegal fishing in a closed area after fisheries inspectors checked a number of boats congregated for the sockeye net fishery off Bamfield.

Two counts of fishing in a closed area were laid against Stevens, who was one of a number of fishermen charged with infractions of the fisheries regulations. Stevens pleaded not guilty.

A stay on the charges was entered at request of crown counsel George Badovinacon a technicality raised by defence evidence.

YOU & THE NEW RENT INCREASE LIMIT

The New Residential Tenancy Act

NEW FORMS:
Effective November 1st, 1977, the forms required for termination of tenancies and non-payment of rent have been changed and the new forms MUST be used.

TERMINATION FOR NON-PAYMENT OF RENT:
A tenant is required to pay his rent on the date due. Failure to do so may result in his being served with a Notice of Termination.
He then has 5 days to pay the rent and if he does so within this period, the Notice becomes void.
If rent is not paid within the 5 days or a dispute is not filed with the Rentalsman, the tenant must vacate the premises on the date shown on the Notice of Termination.

RIGHT OF DISPUTE:
When a tenant receives a Notice of Termination, he has the right of dispute before the Rentalsman.
If he fails to file a dispute, or in the case of non-payment of rent, still does not pay, he is considered to have accepted the termination of his tenancy and must vacate the premises.

REASONS MUST BE STATED:
Every Notice of Termination MUST contain the specific reasons why the landlord is terminating the tenancy.

NEW SECURITY DEPOSIT PROCEDURES:
At the termination of a tenancy, a landlord must, within 15 days, either:
(A) have the tenant's written permission to retain all or part of the security deposit;
(B) file a claim upon the tenant and the Rentalsman;
(C) or commence a court action against the tenant.
Failure to do one of the above will result in the landlord forfeiting his claim, in which case the tenant's security deposit MUST be returned.
A landlord is no longer required to send the security deposit to the Rentalsman, but the Rentalsman will continue to resolve any disputes.

MOBILE HOME PARKS:
Entry & Exit Fees: A landlord may not charge, directly or indirectly, any fee for the assignment or subletting of residential premises, including a mobile home pad.
He may not arbitrarily or unreasonably withhold consent to the assignment or subletting of a pad.

FOR FORMS REQUIRED OR FURTHER INFORMATION WRITE OR CALL:

The Office of the Rentalsman
525 Seymour Street
Vancouver, B.C. V6B 3H7
Phone 689-0811

Retroactive to May 1st, 1977, rent increases are now limited to 7% annually.

HERE ARE THE NEW PROVISIONS FOR RENT INCREASES:
(1) Notices of rent increases must be given on the forms supplied by the Rent Review Commission;
(2) A copy of the form must be sent to the commission within 7 days of serving the tenant, even if the premises are exempt from the 7% limit;
(3) All increased rents must be rounded to the nearest dollar;
(These 3 provisions apply to rent increase notices to be given during November or after, that would take effect on or after March 1st, 1978.)
(4) Additional occupancy charges are not allowed on or after January 1st, 1978;
(5) A tenant may apply to the Rent Review Commission for a rent reduction when a service is substantially reduced or discontinued, and
(6) A tenant may deduct any rent overpayments from future rent payments or contact the Rent Review Commission.
The old provisions of 3 months notice of an increase and a minimum of 12 months between increases still apply.

EXCEPTIONS:
(1) Landlords may apply to the Rent Review Commission for an increase greater than 7%;
(2) Landlords may apply before January 1st, 1978 to have additional occupancy charges retained;
(3) Certain expenditures, such as major repairs and improvements, may also qualify a landlord for an additional rent increase.

PREMISES EXEMPT FROM THE 7% LIMIT:
(All other provisions apply.)
(1) Premises other than mobile home parks first rented after January 1st, 1974;
(2) Premises that have been substantially renovated;
(3) Premises renting for more than $500 a month;
(4) Premises that have been owner occupied for 24 consecutive months since January 1st, 1972;
(5) Owner-occupied duplexes;
(6) University residences, non-profit societies, summer cottages, winter chalets.
Other exemptions may change with time.

Slew's back on track after shaking ailment

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — What ever happened to Seattle Slew?

The U.S. Triple Crown champion, inactive since his 16-length beating on the Pacific Coast July 3, galloped at Belmont Park Friday for the first time in five weeks.

"He's coming along fine," said Dr. Jim Hill, co-owner of the three-year—old bargain colt who became the first horse in history to carry an all-winning record through the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

"We are getting him ready for the winter season, hoping to have him on the track in early December. We will race him five or six times next year in important races and then retire him."

Asked about recurring rumors that Slew might be syndicated for stud purposes without ever running another race, the veterinarian said:

"Absolutely not. This horse is not through running. He will come back and prove what a great champion he is."

The mahogany thunderbolt, purchased for $17,500 by Hill and Washington lumberman Mickey Taylor in the Lexington, Ky., yearling sales, won nine straight races without a defeat before his disastrous venture into the $316,400 Swaps Stakes at Hollywood Park.

Against the advice of trainer Billy Turner, who argued the colt had been drained by the rigorous campaign, Hill and Taylor chose to go in the rich, highly publicized race. It was won by J.O. Tobin with Seattle Slew finishing fourth 16 lengths back.

"He was never in the race," Hill acknowledged Friday at Belmont's barn 54. "Something happened to him. He ran but never competed. In hindsight, I would have to say it was a mistake on our part. Without benefit of hindsight, I think we would do the same thing again."

After the loss, Seattle Slew was brought back to his Belmont Park quarters where he was allowed to loaf while the great stakes runner, Forego, mounted a challenge for Horse of the Year honors. Forego has taken the title the last three years.

"We would have liked to have had a shot at Forego, with both horses at their best, but this wasn't possible," Hill said. "Maybe next year."

It was the hope of both the owners and Turner to have Slew ready for the Travers at Saratoga and the Jerome at Belmont this fall. But the colt failed to come around properly. Forego himself had to take sick leave because of sweling of the ankles after winning the Woodward Stakes in early September.

"Slew has had an upper respiratory ailment for the last few weeks and we haven't had him on the track since Sept. 18," Hill said. "He's fine now."

He said Slew would start racing at Aqueduct probably the first week in December and then go to Florida for the Hialeah Challenge Cup and perhaps the Seminole and Widener.

Group has funds to buy Athletics

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A group in New Orleans has promised to put up almost half of the $12 million purchase price for the Oakland A's American League baseball team, a New Orleans newspaper reported Friday.

The report, in the New Orleans State-Item, quoted a source close to negotiations with A's owner Charles Finley as saying the $5.4 million promised by the group is more than enough to finance the down payment for the ailing franchise.

"We have the money necessary to make the deal," said the source who did not identify the investors.

The A's, who were world champions in 1972, 1973 and 1974, finished near the bottom of the American League West Division this year. The team also has been plagued by low attendance in recent seasons.

The newspaper quoted its source as saying the group would give $1 million to Finley, followed by $2.4 million two months later. That $3.4 million would constitute the downpayment.

The source said the remaining $2 million would be kept in an account with the American League as operating capital for the franchise.

The newspaper also quoted its source as saying he is optimistic that an announcement confirming the group's intention to buy the A's would be made next week.

Host golfers hog lead

VICTORIA FALLS, Rhodesia (Reuter) — South African golfers, led by John Bland, held the first 10 places in the $50,000 Victoria Falls Golf Classic at the end of the third round Friday. Bland shot a one-under-par 72 after earlier rounds of 70 and 69 to top the field at 211. Hugh Baiocchi was second with 68-72-73—213 and John Fourie third with 74-71-69—214.

Linseman eligible says judge

HARTFORD, Conn. (CP) — Ken Linseman, 19, became eligible to play for Birmingham Bulls of the World Hockey Association Friday.

The WHA's rule prohibitin the signing of under-age players was declared to be in violation of the United States anti-trust laws, according to a decison entered Friday by U.S. District Court Judge T. Emmet Clarie.

The ruling came in response to a suit filed on behalf of Linseman, who signed a contract with Birmingham Bulls last spring. Linseman asked that a restraining order be issued that would prevent the WHA from barring him from playing.

"As a result of the court's decision, there is no way that the WHA can prevent the Birmingham Buls from playing Linseman," said WHA president Howard Baldwin.

In a related matter, Hockey Canada has threatened the WHA with a loss of sanction for the league's scheduled series with European teams during the 1977-78 season should Linseman play in any league game. The loss of Hockey Canada's sanction could prevent any WHA-international games from being played in Canada.

"The league is aware of Hockey Canada's threatened action," said Baldwin. "The WHA has done everything in its power to comply with the dictates of Hockey Canada."

Bennett traded

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Centre Harvey Bennett of Philadelphia Flyers was traded to Minnesota North Stars Friday in exchange for centre Blake Dunlop and a 1978 third-round draft pick.

Bennett, 26, had played in two National Hockey League games for the Flyers this season after being acquired last season from Washington Capitals. Bennett, 6-foot-4 and 215 pounds, recorded 12 goals and eight assists for Philadelphia in 51 games last year.

Life in prison for 'murder for fun'

RENSSELAER, Ind. (UPI) — A judge Thursday sentenced David Smith, 18, to four concurrent life prison terms for "murder for fun and excitement" in the slaughter of four brothers.

Smith was the second of four defendants to come to trial for the Feb. 14 savagery at the Keith Spencer residence near Hollandsburg, Ind. Spencer's three sons and his wife's son by a previous marriage were killed by shotgun.

In sentencing, Judge Michael Kanne said, "This crime represents nothing less than permissiveness carried to the ultimate extreme — murder for fun and excitement.

"There can be no more devastating proof of the depravity of the permissive philosophy than the horror disclosed by the evidence in this case."

Delesalle stands eighth in world meet

OVIEDO, Spain (CP) — Nikolai Andrianov of the Soviet Union won the men's combined event while Philip Delesalle of Victoria, placed eighth Friday on the opening day of the World Cup gymnastics meet.

Andrianov scored 57.45 points to lead a Soviet Union sweep of the top three places in the combined. He was followed by Vladimir Markelov with 57.40 and Roman Tkatchev with 57.35. Delesalle scored 56.10.

The World Cup is an invitational event featuring the top 18 ranked men and women in world gymnastics.

Delesalle showed dramatic improvement as a world class gymnast with his eighth-place showing. In the 1976 Montreal Olympics he placed 22nd against virtually the same opposition.

Delesalle, who at 19 is the youngest of the 18 gymnasts to qualify for the meet, finished fourth in the parallel bars, fourth in the high bars, seventh in the pommel horse, sixth in the vault, 12th in the rings and 13th in the floor exercise.

He also qualified in the high bar, parallel bars and pommel horse for Sunday's finals in individual apparatus events.

"I think I have matured a lot since Montreal," he said. "I hadn't been competing very long internationally before the Olympics but I realized there that I could compete with the best in the world."

Hawks and Rockies win to tighten division race

Chicago Black Hawks passed Vancouver Canucks Friday and Colorado Rockies moved closer to their Smythe Division rivals in the National Hockey League.

Backup goaltender Mike Veisor turned in a sparkling performance as the Black Hawks downed Cleveland Barons 4-2 in a penalty filled game at Richfield, Ohio and the Rockies blasted visiting Washington Capitals 8-1 at Denver.

The win moved Chicago one point ahead of the Canucks while Colorado is two points back of Vancouver and plays the Canucks tonight at Pacific Coliseum.

Chicago took 46 of the 62 minutes in penalties handed out in the first period but the Barons were unable to take advantage and scored only once despite seven power-play opportunities.

The Barons moved into the lead midway through the period on a power-play marker by Mike Fidler but Chicago tied the score a few minutes later on a power-play goal by Darcy Rota.

Veisor stopped 23 shots in the first period but had to face only five shots in the second period and gave up a goal to Kris Manery which put Cleveland ahead 2-1.

Chicago rookie Ted Bulley tied the score again with his first NHL goal, a power-play shot at 11:19 of the second period. And Pierre Plante put the Black Hawks ahead to stay with just 2:27 left in the period as a shot by John Marks deflected off a tangle of players in front of the net and Plante deposited it behind goaltender Gilles Meloche.

In the opening period Chicago received eight minor penalties, two majors and two misconducts while Cleveland received three minors, two majors and one misconduct.

At Denver the Capitols scored after just 11 seconds of play on Walt McKechnie's unassisted goal.

But from then on it was all Colorado. The Rockies eight goals equalled the highest total in their history and the win was their most lopsided ever.

Washington's lead lasted exactly 48 seconds as Gary Croteau scored at the 59-second mark. A short-handed goal by Brian Lefley at 9:18 gave Colorado the lead.

The Rockies dominated the second period, building their lead to 6-1 on goals by Paul Gardner, Croteau, Barry Beck and Tom Edur. Colorado recorded 20 shots on goal during the second period while Rockies goalkeeper Doug Favell had to stop only five Washington shots.

Colorado added to its total at 3:50 of the final period as Lefley scored his second goal of the night. Ron Andruff closed out the scoring.

CAPITAL TRY is made by Washington centre Walt McKechnie during action Friday night in Denver but Colorado goalkeeper Doug Favell makes the stop with a bit of help from defenceman John Van Boxmeer. McKechnie beat Favell in the opening seconds of the game but it was the only goal scored by the Capitals. Rockies stormed to an 8-1 win.

Penticton awarded Games

The city of Penticton has been chosen over seven other bidders to host the first British Columbia Summer Games next August, recreation and conservation minister Sam Bawlf announced Friday.

Bawlf said the Penticton bid demonstrated tremendous enthusiasm and included a list of thousands of people who have already volunteered to help the Interior city stage the games.

The games, to be held from Aug. 16 to 19, were expected to attract 3,000 athletes in 25 different sports. An estimated 47,000 people will participate in playoffs leading to the games.

The provincial government will spend $180,000 on the games and provide another $70,000 to the host community for capital costs.

Meanwhile, the government will send out invitations to bid on the 1979 B.C. Winter Games to about two dozen communities in the next few days.

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Friday that he had granted permission for suspended Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner to participate in the hiring and selection of a new manager for the National League club.

The Braves, who finished in last place in the NL West during the 1977 season, are seeking to fill the managerial spot after firing Dave Bristol earlier this week.

Turner is under a one-year suspension until March 23, 1978, for tampering with Gary Matthews of San Francisco while the outfielder still was under contract to the Giants. In addition to the suspension, Turner was fined and the Braves had to forfeit their first-round choice in last June's free agent draft.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Redskins probably will have Joe Theismann at quarterback in place of veteran Bill Kilmer on Sunday when the injury-riddled club takes on the improved Philadelphia Eagles in an National Football League game here.

Theismann, a four-year man who played with Toronto Argonauts after a successful career at Notre Dame, has done most of the work in practice sessions this week, a clear indication that he will be at the helm although coach George Allen says he will not make a decision until game time.

Philadelphia coach Dick Vermeil said Ron Jaworski likely will start at quarterback for the Eagles despite a broken thumb on his passing hand. However, should he run into difficulty, Vermeil has veteran Roman Gabriel ready.

Eight clubs left in title search

Five teams from the Greater Victoria high-school field-hockey league are still in the running for the Vancouver Island Senior High championship following opening-day action Friday in the 12-school round-robin at Lansdowne Junior High.

Mount Douglas, Norfolk House, Spectrum, Oak Bay and Parklands were among the eight teams advancing to quarter-finals, set to open at 10:30 a.m. today. The remaining four teams fight it out in a consolation round starting at 9:30 a.m.

Also moving to quarter-final play are Brentwood, Nanaimo and Cowichan.

The teams fought it out within four sections of three teams each, with two entries in each advancing. In section A, Mount Douglas blanked Brentwood 2-0, as Sharon Laturnus and Heather Kirker scored goals, the duplicated the score against Alberni as Miss Laturnus and Michelle Morrison collected one goal each.

Brentwood blanked Alberni 1-0.

Cowichan won twice in section B, defeating Courtney 4-0, then came right back with a 1-0 decision over Norfolk House as Allison Jones scored. Jennifer Bland scored the only goal in Norfolk's 1-0 win over Courtney.

Spectrum got by Nanaimo 2-1 as Susan Jay gained a pair of goals with Kathy Marshall replying, then drew 0-0 with Victoria High. Nanaimo's 1-0 win over Vic High sent the Victoria entry to the consolation round in Section C action.

Oak Bay and Parklands emerged victorious in section D, dropping St. Margaret's to the consolations. Gail Hoskins and Chris Monaghan scored three goals apiece as Oak Bay trimmed St. Margaret's 4-0 and blanked Parklands 2-0.

Following today's consolation and quarter-final rounds, semi-finals are slated for 12:30 p.m. with finals at 2:30 p.m. The top four finishers represent the Island in the B.C. championships at Kelowna, Nov. 3-5.

Spectrum wins but ace stopped

The Greater Victoria high school soccer league has not dealt kindly with Spectrum this week.

First, Mount Douglas Thistles eliminated second-place Spectrum from the race for the first division title with a 3-1 victory Tuesday. Then Esquimalt Dockers stumped league-leading scorer Tim Achtzner in his bid to extend a personal scoring streak Friday.

Even though Spectrum, now 7-2-1, eked out a 1-0 decision over the Dockers, Achtzner saw his string snapped at seven games, during which he pumped in 15 goals. His total of 18 tops all league scorers.

Pat Going scored Spectrum's lone goal Friday, after watching his scoring string of seven games go by the boards Tuesday against the Thistles.

The Spectrum-Esquimalt affair was the only first-division game of the day but Oak Bay Bays dumped Parklands Panthers 5-3 in second-division action.

Graeme Tolson, Paul Docherty, Ken Martin, Eddie Lowe and Mark Keith divided scoring for the Bays, who lead division II by a healthy four-points.

Reynolds Roadrunners and Belmont Braves scrapped to a 1-1 deadlock, with both goals coming in the first half. Brian Dominique converted a penalty kick for Roadrunners' goal and Bill Merriman replied for Belmont, slamming a team-mate's net-front cross into pay dirt.

The draw moved Reynolds into a third-place tie with the Panthers, the first time this season Reynolds has departed the cellar. Reynolds picked up its first win of the season Tuesday against Parklands

Caudwell, Collins claim top speedway awards

By REG REYNOLDS

For Jim Caudwell and Bob Collins Friday night was a night to enjoy the hard-earned spoils of winning seasons.

The veteran Victoria drivers carried off a big share of the silverware during the Vancouver Island Track Racing Association's annual awards banquet at the Empress Hotel.

They were the leading drivers in the Island championship series all season and were duly honored for their efforts. Caudwell, who finished second to Collins in the series standings, received four awards including the prestigious "driver of the year" award for the second straight year.

Collins was called to the podium three times and got his most satisfying reward from the Western Speedway fans who named him the most popular driver.

Considered one of the more gentlemanly drivers, Caudwell was honored by his peers in being named winner of the Dick Willoughby sportsmanship trophy and he added the super-stock championship race trophy and the best-looking super-stock award to his long list of honors.

Caudwell started racing at Western in 1967 and earned his first major award that year capturing stock-car "rookie-of-the-year" honors. He graduated to super-stocks in 1970, retired in 1972 but returned in 1975.

Collins, who was driver-of-the-year in 1975 and 1969 and sportsmanship winner in 1969, picked up the Island championship trophy for super-stocks and the Corby Cup, which is presented annually to the driver (any class) winning the most main events.

One of the most consistent performers over the past decade Collins, who is always in the top 10 at the end of the season, introduced the "pony cars" to the super-stock class this season and campaigned his 1968 Cougar to his first points championship.

Island hobby-stock champion John Robillard of Campbell River took the first major award up-Island in some years when he was named hobby-stock driver-of-the-year.

VITRA president Dan Wade was named "member-of-the-year" and was awarded the President's Cup, Russ Blackstock was selected "mechanic-of-the-year," Dave Johnson of Nanaimo captured the super-stock top rookie award and Pat Phillips of Victoria was named the outstanding hobby-stock rookie.

Johnson drove a '64 Ford to eighth place in the Island series while Pat Phillips piloted a '57 Pontiac to ninth-place finish.

The best-looking hobby-stock award went to Ken Alexander of Duncan while George Shillito of Victoria was picked for having the best-looking crew.

Victoria's Al Miller took home the hobby-stock championship race trophy and Alexander also received the promotors trophy.

Pats share east lead, Broncos top division

Regina Pats grabbed a share of first place in the Western Canada Hockey League's Eastern Division Friday night but Lethbridge Broncos broke free from a two-way tie for the top in the Central Division, taking first place all for themselves.

Darryl Sutter scored two goals before 4,001 fans in Lethbridge to lead the Broncos past Medicine Hat Tigers, 4-2. In Regina, the Pats rode a two-goal performance by Larry Ell to a 6-4 victory over Flin Flon Bombers and in the only other game, Calgary Wranglers downed Saskatoon Blades, 4-2.

Sutter scored what proved to be the winner at 16:20 of the second period, then added an insurance goal into an empty net with five seconds remaining in the game.

The Broncos outshot the Tigers 45-22, coming back from a 1-0 first-period deficit to lead 3-2 after two periods.

Lethbridge now stands two points ahead of second-place Billings Bighorns in the Cental Division and four points in front of the third-place Tigers.

The Pats' victory moved them into a tie with the Bombers, each with 18 points.

A crowd of 2,117 home-town fans went away disappointed in Saskatoon as the Blades, already 12 points behind Regina and Flin Flon with a 3-10 record, allowed Calgary to go ahead 1-0 and 3-1 by periods.

Dave Morrison's two goals paced the Wranglers, who still inhabit the Central Division cellar.

Hoop champions cease to exist

Home Lumber, a team that won the national senior A women's basketball title for the last two years and was a major power in the sport for a decade, is disbanding.

Coach Jack Lusk said this week the players made the decision at a recent meeting for "a variety of reasons . . . but mainly retirement."

The team, which played under a variety of names including the Maplettes, the Centennials, Western Homes and Home Lumber, took the national title six times, including four of the last six years.

The team relied basically on the same nucleus of players, including Mary Coutts, a member of all six senior championship teams as well as a member of a junior title-winning team. She is a former member of Canada's national team.

Taking part in five of the wins were former national team members Diana Morris and Angie Dobie, the latter commuting from Nanaimo for practices and games.

Other team members include Lorna McHattie, Diedre Freethy, Rose Jossul, Donna Blackstock and Lorraine Tutte.

Lusk emphasized that sponsorship had no bearing on the team's decision, and said the Jawl brothers, owners of Home Lumber, were taken aback by the decision.

City horseman in multi-role for today's Sandown racing

By STAN COOPER

● Friday's Formchart, Page 47

George Harknett will be wearing two hats today at Sandown Park — one as vice-president of Capital City Turf Club and the other as owner of two of the top thoroughbreds on the nine-race card.

The Victoria breeder sends Devil Darren out in the second race and presents his outstanding four-year-old filly Major Hike, in the feature seventh, the six-and-a-half furlongs Times Speed Handicap.

Major Hike won the event in 1976 and faces four challengers, although 11 were nominated earlier in the week.

On Friday, Victoria-owned Lee's Craig Seven and Saucy Verdict were scratched, leaving Rusty Scupper, Pesty Kid, Pickle Pie and Little John Brown, winner of the Colonist Handicap last weekend, to battle Major Hike.

It's believed to be the first time in recent history that three of five starters in a major stakes race at Sandown are Victoria-owned.

Pickle Pie, second in the Colonist, is owned by Derek Green, and Fraser McColl, owner of Lee's Craig Seven, also owns Pesty Kid.

"I'm sure that's a first," Harknett said Friday after the completion of a highly-entertaining eight-race card.

Harknett was disappointed that Lee's Craig Seven was scratched as he felt the four-year-old would set the pace in the $2,500-added event for three-year-olds and up.

"Major Hike will probably run off the pace and let the front-runners drop back to her," Harknett said.

Major Hike, purchased from Jack Diamond in 1976, is the top earner for Harknett, bringing home $26,635 this season from competing at Exhibition Park in Vancouver and Longacres in Seattle. She won four of 10 starts, including the $11,150 Cover Girl 'Cap in Vancouver, placed once, and was out of the money on only four occasions.

"We plan to run her once more at Sandown this meet then ship her to Santa Anita to campaign on the turf course," Harknett said. He added he would like to have the Wayne Isbister-trained filly compete for one more year then retire her for breeding purposes.

Major Hike has had only two starts at six-and-a-half furlongs this year, winning both by a nose, on May 14 and May 30 in Vancouver.

Rusty Scupper, owned by R. J. Bennett of Kelowna, has had a similar year while Little John Brown, Pickle Pie and Pesty Kid have had more starts at the shorter route.

Thursday grading of the Sidney oval left it in fine condition Friday and five of the eight winners went wire-to-wire on a fast track.

Dale Manning, who will ride Major Hike today, piloted Charlie George to a four-length victory in the feature seventh race, the United Way Appeal Lottery Purse. Scornful Pride came from well back to grab place money and Major's Dream was third.

The 4-7 combination returned the highest payoff of the day, $84.30 for a $2 quinella.

In the final race of the afternoon, Jesus Munoz booted Hardly Fair to a nine-length victory — the widest winning margin in the first six days of the 19-day meet.

The 2,530 fans wagered $175,078, only $1,000 less than the corresponding day last year on a nine-race program.

BREAKAGE . . . Winner of the $1,000 top prize in the United Way Lottery was Irene Hungle of Shawnigan Lake . . . Racing-director Aubrey Davies expects several thoroughbreds to arrive here on the weekend, boosting the population at the track to about 305 . . . Today's nine-race card starts with first post parade at 12:30 . . . there should be fewer problems at the mutuels today as Doug Mitten and his crew are hitting mid-season form . . . Go Peg Go has been confirmed for the Remembrance Day feature . . . Bird of Courage and the Harknett-Bowman owned Ole Par were second and third in the Times Handicap last year . . . Munoz won twice Friday to move into a tie in the jockey standings with Alan Cuthbertson and Danny Williams, all with six victories.

Louis has aneurism

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis, hospitalized last Saturday after being stricken with chest pains at his home, was flown late Friday to Houston for specialized treatment.

Officials at Sunrise Medical Centre, where Louis spent six days in the coronary care unit, said his ailment will be treated by noted heart surgeon Michael DeBakey.

Louis, 63, is suffering from a dissecting aortic aneurism. An aneurism is a weakness in the wall of an artery. The aneurism is believed to be in Louis' midsection, near his spine.

Hospital officials here also reported that Louis' condition improved Friday.

Vikings top DataTech

University of Victoria Vikings turned on the power in the second half to whip Victoria DataTech 102-77 in an exhibition men's basketball game at McKinnon Gymnasium.

Newcomer Rene Dolcetti, a transfer from Laurentian University, scored 22 points to pace the Vikings, who outscored their Senior "A" opponents 59-32 following the break.

Ian Hyde-Lay scored 16 points, Gary Budd added 12 and Ted Anderson and Bill Loos contributed 10 each for the Vikings.

Bob Burrows led DataTech with 24 points, Mike Bishop scored 13 and ex-Viking Jim Duddridge hit for 12.

The teams play a return engagement tonight at 8:30 in McKinnon Gym.

Trios earn 4-4 tie with Legion

Rob Wilson scored at 3:01 of the third period Friday night to give Oak Bay Trios a 4-4 tie with Esquimalt Legion in a South Island Junior "B" Hockey League game before 266 fans at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

After Trios took a 2-1 first-period lead on goals by Ed Garic and Brent Udel, Esquimalt came back to outscore Oak Bay 3-1 in the second period.

Brian Matvenko collected Oak Bay's remaining goal, while Terry Parsons sparked Oak Bay with two goals. Murray Allen and Gary Bechtold completed Esquimalt scoring.

Pau Vaeson steered away 40 shots in the Oak Bay net, while his counterpart Ron Allan saved 38 shots.

The tie enabled Esquimalt to move to a first-place tie with idle Saanich Braves, while Oak Bay moved to a tie for second with Fuller Lake Flyers.

Pate rallies for pals

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Jerry Pate, a hometown hero followed by a big mob of friends, relatives and neighbors, pulled his game together on the back nine and shot a four-under-par 67 for a share of the lead Friday in the second round of the $125,000 Pensacola Open golf tournament.

Pate, a winner last week in the Southern Open, put together a 36-hole total of 135, seven under par on his home course, the tree-lined, 6,549-yard Pensacola Country Club layout.

He shared the top spot with Leonard Thompson and Jim Simons. Thompson's six-under-par 65 was the best round of the day.

Simons, winner of the New Orleans Open earlier this season, had a 67 and owned the lead alone until he bogeyed his 17th hole with an approach shot "that never even sniffed the green."

One shot back at 136 was little Nate Starks, who had a 66.

PGA champion Lanny Wadkins moved into strong contention with a 66. He was tied at 137, only two strokes off the lead, with first-round leader Mac McLendon, who slipped to a 71, John Mahaffey, Steve Melnyk, Pat Fitzsimons and Fuzzy Zoeller. Melnyk had a 66, Mahaffey and Zoeller 68s, Fitzsimons a 70.

Arnold Palmer improved to a 68 and qualified for the final two rounds with a 141 total. Johnny Miller, who tied for second behind Pate last week, didn't make it. He shot a 73 and missed at 143.

"I still haven't hit the ball as well as I'd like to," said Pate, who won the U.S. and Canadian Open titles last season as a rookie but was troubled by a pinched nerve most of this season.

"You're hard put, at home, to just go ahead and freewheel it. On the back nine I finally started relaxing a little bit and hit it at the hole."

He played that side in four-under-par 32, hit his approach inside of three feet on three holes and dropped another from about 15 feet.

The husky Thompson didn't make a bogey and said the key to his round was "a couple of really critical putts at just the right time." Those were a pair of 15 footers to save par.

Canadian ski coach dismissed

OTTAWA (CP) — Scott Henderson, who helped bring Canadian downhill skiers to international stardom in 1975-76, has been dropped as head coach of the men's Alpine team after a disappointing, strife-ridden season.

John Ritchie of Grand Forks, B.C., since 1976 the special women's coach on the national team, has been named acting coach in charge of the men's program with special responsibility for the World Cup downhill skiers.

"I'm being blunt and straightforward, the results in 1976 were super and in 1977 they were lousy," Andrzej Kozbial, national ski team program director, said Friday in announcing the moves.

"Due to the importance of the coming world championships in Garmisch-Partenkirchen, West Germany, and the 1980 Olympics in Lake Placid, and after a serious review of the men's program, we felt that if any coaching change had to be considered it had to be made now."

Kozbial said Henderson, a 34-year-old native of Calgary whose home is in Banff, Alta., is in the last year of a two-year contract and will be paid until the end of the year.

Henderson was Canada's top skier until a training accident in France in which he broke his right leg and suffered a concussion put an end to his career in 1969. He has coached the Canadian men's team for five years.

Under Henderson's direction, Canadian downhillers earned a reputation as daredevils in Europe where they were treated as major celebrities.

Hypersonic jet takes shape

BURBANK, Calif. (UPI) — A spokesman for the Lockheed-California Co. said this week that company engineers were working on plans for a commercial jetliner twice as fast as the current world's fastest plane, the SSR71 high-altitude reconnaissance plane which has been clocked at 3512 kmh.

Working under a $270,000 NASA contract, engineers at Lockheed-California, a branch of the Lockheed Corp. aerospace firm, are drawing up a design concept for a "hypersonic" commercial jetliner that could take 200 passengers from Los Angeles to Tokyo in two hours and 18 minutes.

It would be powered by liquid hydrogen, a standard fuel of rockets.

Dan Brewer, Lockheed's manager for hydrogen studies, said the plane would be designed to take off and land at airports at conventional speeds, creating no more noise than aircraft now in operation. Once in flight, five powerful ram jets would boost the plane to a hypersonic cruise speed of 6,400 kmh and an altitude of 110,000 feet.

By comparison, today's jumbo jet travels at just under 960 kmh, if it gets a good tailwind, and cruises at 20,000 to 45,000 feet. Brewer said many aerospace engineers believed that the problemof sonic booms might be solved by high altitude flight.

"An aircraft such as the one we are studying would cruise at altitudes of 110,000 to 120,000 feet," he said. "From that height, the intensity of any sonic boom should be so disspated by the time it reached the ground that it would not be objectionable to anyone hearing it."

At the Mach 6 cruise speed of 6400 kmh, the aircraft could fly the 8,672 kilometres between Los Angeles and Tokyo in two hours and 18 minutes, or the 5,496 kilometres between New York and London in one hour and 56 minutes.

"Actually, the plane could travel the distance much faster, but it will take off and land at conventional speeds, which will slow it down."

The plane would also feature five conventional turbojet engines, to accelerate the aircraft to a speed at which the ramjets could take over.

Joe journalist next?

OTTAWA (CP) — Maureen McTeer, wife of federal Opposition Leader Joe Clark, says she and her husband will not be in politics in another 10 or 12 years.

In a radio interview this week, she said Clark would have another career by then—possibly in journalism.

She said Clark thought that after 10 years, he and his wife would have used up their energies and it would be time for someone else to look after the Conservative party.

On charisma, she said Clark was not charismatic because he did not wear flowers in his lapel, slide down banisters or do pirouettes behind Queen Elizabeth.

Asked about Industry Minister Jack Horner's defection from the Tories, shesaid: "Well he's a Liberal and that's their problem."

Adventist pastor is changing roles

Pastor Donald Melashenko of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in Victoria, has accepted an appointment as director of the church's B.C. conference youth department.

Melashenko, who came to Victoria from the Alberta conference, has been pastor here for 18 months. Arrangements for his replacement are nearing completion.

At a church supper Oct. 16, farewell gifts were presented to the Melashenko family from the membership by Dr. Reuben Matiko, first elder of the Victoria church.

The Melashenkos will make their new home in Abbotsford, where the B.C. conference headquarters is located.

Perspectives

By Rev. J. A. Davidson

"We of the twentieth century have been habituated to horror as perhaps no other since the Great Plague and the Black Death — themselves relatively local incidents." That observation was made by Sir Robert Watson-Watt, the developer of radar, in his book of a few years ago, Man's Means to His End.

Have we become habituated to horror? Have we lost a capacity to be shocked by incidents of man's inhumanity to man — at least, to those which are large-scale and pervasive?

We have created so many serious problems for ourselves that, although we are aware of them, we tend to develop protective callouses on our sensitivity. It is only when a horror comes very close to us that our easy habituation tends to break down.

We all at times, and in our various ways, seek escapes from the horrors of life today. This need for escape has much to do with the fantastic development of the entertainment industry and with the careless use of alcohol and drugs and with the development of religious and quasi-religious agencies of escape. But the anesthetics we administer to ourselves soon wear off — and we wake up to confront the horrors.

And the horrors are real. Nuclear weaponry is real. Dangerous tensions between nations and blocks of nations and between races are real. Famine in many parts of the world is real. The population explosion is real. Environmental pollution is real. And terribly real is the anxiety which cuts into our hearts.

But our sense of horror tends to diminish. We tend to blur the distinctions between good and evil, between the life-affirming and the life-denying, between the creative and the destructive. We have learned to take almost for granted many things which should horrify us to the very depths of our being. The horror of our time is all the more appalling because so many of us have become incapable of being appalled by it. Yes, we have, to alarming degrees, become habituated to horror.

But nothing in life is inevitable — even that which may seem highly probable. As long as nuclear war has not broken out, it is still possible to avoid it. Famine throughout the world is now technologically avoidable. We have the expertise to resolve the pollution problem, to deal effectively with the population explosion, to relieve much of mankind's gratuitious suffering.

The great religious and moral traditions of mankind have resources which can help us through and beyond the horrors we have let develop and to which we have become so easily habituated. We who stand in the Judaeo-Christian heritage, we who profess biblical faith, must be careful that we do not use our religions primarily as agencies of escape rather than as agencies of creative concern and of redemption.

'Joyous' group coming back

For the third time in recent memory, the internationally known Gospel music group The Joyous Celebration will be returning to Victoria. The group, composed of five men and two women, will be giving a full-length concert at Central Baptist Church, 833 Pandora, on Thursday night at 7:30 p.m.

The two other trips The Joyous Celebration has made to Victoria have been as part of the Terry Winter Crusades. This is the first concert trip, as such, made by the group.

According to Don Fladland, the group's executive director, "... the public appearances of The Joyous Celebration are considerably more than a concert performance. They are as the name implies, a 'Celebration'.

"Joyous Celebration has played not just in Canada, but throughout the United States, Europe, and even as far away as Japan. They've been together as a musical group since 1971.

The Joyous Celebration is composed of Dan and Mili Nelson, Mike Hathaway, Kathy Herivel, Scott Warrender, Steve Van Atta and Bruce Hawker. Hawker is the only Vancouver Islander, hailing from Nanaimo.

There will be no charge for Thursday night's performance, although organizers intend a free will offering.

Lutherans remember

Reformation observance

"I beg that my name may be passed over in silence, and that men will call themselves not Lutheran but Christian. What is Luther? My teaching is not mine. I have been crucified for nobody. . .Let us root out party names and call ourselves Christians, for it is Christ's Gospel we have."

On October 31, 1517, 460 years ago, Dr. Martin Luther, whose words are quoted above, nailed 95 theses to the door of the Castle Church of Wittenberg University.

Although his reasons for doing so were academic — he had prepared the theses for discussion and debate — when the hammer fell, the sound of it reverberated around the world.

Sunday at 11:15 a.m., Lutheran churches of Greater Victoria will hold an inter-Lutheran Reformation Service in Oak Bay High School auditorium on Cadboro Bay Road.

Congregations from Good Shepherd, Grace, Church of the Cross, Peace (Sidney) and Redeemer (Langford) will attend. There will be no services at the regular churches this Sunday.

Rev. Raymond Olson, a Lutheran evangelist from Camrose, Alberta, will deliver the sermon. A mass choir will be led by Grace church director John Bergbusch.

For Lutherans, Reformation Sunday is a time to celebrate their heritage and justification by faith. Luther's claim "The just shall live by faith" was based on his conviction that Reformation of the church had to begin in the heart and mind of each believer, from the parish pastor to the person in the pew.

Involved in the events of the Reformation was the very message of the gospel that God's word must not be lost in the noise of the world or the activity of the Church.

Massed concert Sunday

A massed choir under the direction of Charles Palmer and Ian Galliford will present The Magnificat composed by Jack Lenaghan, well known Victoria organist and choir conductor Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

The concert will be in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Blanshard and View streets, and will be preceeded by an organ recital by Edward Norman.

This will be the premiere performance of Lenaghan's Magnificat.

Two organs will be used during the concert, the grand pipe-organ along with the smaller antiphonal organ in the sanctuary.

There will be two choirs, the gallery choir and the antiphonal choir comprising together more than 150 voices.

Soloists are Faith Webster, soprano; Richard Margison, tenor, and John Bray, bass.

Lenaghan has been heard in recital both in Canada and the United States and has done extensive radio broadcasting. His compositions include two Masses, several anthems and motets, one of which, Clap Your Hands has been sung in concert and recorded by the Victoria Choral Society.

'Building bridges'

Building Bridges will be the theme of a sermon at Garden City United Church Oct. 30 by Dr. Bob Elliott who is a volunteer with the parent encouragement program of the B.C. human resources department.

Elliott, whose sermon will be at 9:45 a.m., comes to Garden City as a guest of the outreach committee of Wilkinson Road—Garden City Pastoral Charge.

Various aspects of fostering will be discussed at this service of worship in the joyful message of sharing and caring

Fostering is not easy; it means makimg room, moving over, changing lifestyle, understanding unusual behavior and developing patience and a sense of humor.

Many foster parents, when asked how they feel about looking after other people's children, say they feel "enriched" through fostering.

Janet Simard, a fairly new foster parent, put it this way: "Fostering has made our whole family more tolerant. It's been good for our kids. They appreciate more what they have, the benefits of a home and a family of their own. They have learned to be more accepting of others. We are considering fostering an additional handicapped foster child."

Sheila Reynolds, who has fostered retarded children for many years, feels it has been a rewarding and joyful experience for her family.

"We have found a great deal of joy and satisfaction in looking after our retarded foster children. Everything they do is an accomplishment—and they are capable of more than you think. With every achievement, you feel proud of yourself and of them and the whole family celebrates. To show you how much our family thinks of our retarded foster children, our first grandchild was named after one of them.

"I just can't say enough about the George Pearkes' clinic and how they have helped with speech training and physiotherapy. It is amazing what they can do."

Pentecostals set 1979 date for meeting

Vancouver's Coliseum has been chosen as the site of the next world conference of the Pentecostal Church, Oct. 2-7, 1979, the chairman of the advisory committee, Rev. T. F. Zimmerman, has announced.

Thousands of guests are expected for the event, held once every three years.

In 1976, more than 80 countries were represented and crowds filled Royal Albert Hall, London, England.

Evangelist here Sunday

Evangelist Bill Burkett, of Waxahachie, Texas, will conduct a one-week crusade at Glad Tidings Church, 842 North Park St., from Oct. 30 to Nov. 6.

Burkett was brought up in Christian Science before conversion. He served in the strategic air command atomic bomb squadron in the Korean war and while in military service heard the Gospel for the first time.

After graduating from Bible College in Greenlane, Pennsylvania, he served as pastor, evangelist and missionary, travelling in five continents of the world.

He believes society is suffering from a lack of spiritual therapy that is found only in the wisdom of the Bible. He has developed ministry themes which include Kouples Klinic counselling seminars, salt talks of Christian ethics, science and the Bible and chart studies.

Burkett has dedicated himself especially to fields considered difficult and remote with a message of freedom for bound peoples. The public is cordially invited to share in this spiritual series at the regular Sunday service times and at 7:30 p.m. on week nights.

Rev. E. E. Austin is the pastor.

Central Baptist of Victoria has edged another point ahead in the Sunday school attendance competition with First Baptist of Yucaipa, Calif., for the International Challenge trophy. The score going into this fifth and final week is Victoria 490, Yucaipa 477. The contest is part of Central's 50th jubilee celebrations which have been taking place all through the month of October.

□

A special series of meetings will be held in Lutheran Church of the Cross, 3781 Cedar Hill Road, Sunday through Nov. 3 with evangelist Raymond Olson of Camrose, Alberta, as guest speaker.

A graduate of Augsburg College, Minneapolis, and Luther Theological Seminary, St. Paul, Minn., Olson has served his entire ministry in Canada in Clareholm, Edmonton, Calgary, St. Albert and Saskatoon.

Raymond Olson

For the past two years he has trevelled as an evangelist with the Lutheran evangelsitic movement, a free movement within Lutheranism which has as its purpose the revival and deepening of spiritual life and fellowship of believers and to reach and win the lost for Christ.

Services will be held nightly at 7:30 and will feature special music, followed by a time of coffee and fellowship.

Church Chronicles

Each evening will conclude with a period of Bible study in the book of James.

Heroic Germans of many faiths who suffered and died rather than compromise with Nazism should be among those honored on Remembrance Day, the United Church Observer says in its current issue.

"We seem to have forgotten that vast numbers of German Christians accepted imprisonment and death rather than give in to Hitler," the Observer pointed out. At least 4,000 Catholic priests died by "hanging, starvation, lack of medical aid and as victims of medical experiments."

□

Special speaker Sunday at the 86th anniversary of James Bay United Church will be Mrs. Jara Smith.

Coalition picks chief

Dr. Charles Paris, executive director of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, has been elected chairman of the newly-formed Coalition for a Fair and Responsive Media in B.C.

The group, composed of 30 B.C. religious and community organizations, was formed in response to recent controversy over the role of advertising in accurately representing the B.C. community.

Cries of 'maudit anglais' in Quebec

Soldier beaten savagely

GATINEAU, Que. (CP) — The career of a young soldier, who joined the army seven months ago for travel, good times and security, may have ended on the blood-stained floor of a local bar.

Bert Reed, 18, was brutally beaten Sept. 25 by a group of local toughs and says he faces the possibility of surgical castration, long-term brain damage from a fractured skull, and loss of an eye.

Reed may face a medical discharge because his unit, an armored combat regiment at CFB Petawawa, requires its men to be in top physical condition.

Four Gatineau men have been arrested and charged with assault causing bodily harm.

Police said Reed had no sooner sat down in the bar when an ashtray hit him on the head, thrown by one of several men at another table.

When Reed tried to reason with them in English, they attacked him, first tearing off his glasses so he couldn't get away, police said.

"One word from him was all they needed," said Inspector Yves Pregent. "Accounts we have received indicate all 10 hit him at once."

"It might seem pretty low now," said Reed, "but I actually begged them to leave me alone. All I heard was 'maudit anglais' before I passed out."

Sgt. Andre Dupere, one of the investigating police officers, said the attackers were both brutal and ruthless.

"They kicked him many times all over his body, including several times between the legs," said Dupere. "He was unconscious after the first few blows, but they kept on for quite a while."

"Then they stood on his face with the heel of their boots," Dupere said.

An army spokesman said Reed was released from the National Defence Medical Centre Oct. 6 and was taking annual leave.

UN staff protests pay cuts

GENEVA (Reuter) — About 2,000 staff members of the seven United Nations organizations located here marched in the grounds of the UN's European headquarters this week in a silent protest against a proposed 17-percent cut in salary scales from Jan. 1.

The reductions were recommended by a UN International Civil Service Commission, which said pay rates for secretaries, office workers and maintenance staff of the UN's general service grade were too high.

South Africa cutoff urged

BRUSSELS (Reuter) — The world's largest grouping of non-Communist labor unions has urged the UN to apply economic sanctions, including an oil embargo, against South Africa following recent bannings and arrests of black leaders. The International Confederation of Free Trade Unions asked UN Secretary General Kurt Waldheim to express "horror and dismay."

THEN YOU REALLY MATTER TO US

M. V. Chesnut's Garden Notes

The other day I mentioned the strange fact that quite a few folks who read this garden column regularly don't have any gardens.

These are persons who hunger for contact with the soil, but whose fate it is to be living in apartments, condominiums, rooming houses, hotels or institutions.

I am more than a little touched by the letters I receive from these ardent ex-gardeners, and I had these folks especially in mind when I wrote those recent columns on growing bulbs in pots or bowls indoors.

There is one difficulty here. Most of the bulbs commonly recommended for indoor culture — hyacinths, tulips, trumpet daffodils, crocuses — must have a long period in cold darkness after they are potted up.

It is very important that these bulbs be induced to make plenty of healthy roots before they are permitted to push up any topgrowth, and this is done by keeping them in complete darkness and at a temperature well below 10 degrees Celsuis for a period of between two and three months.

It is useless to attempt growing these bulbs without such a cool, dark storage place, and in the case of apartment dwellers and rooming house occupants, the problem is that no such storage space is available.

Fortunately, there are a few bulbs — all of them narcissi — which can be grown successfully without a prolonged rooting period in cold darkness. The indoor gardener without a root cellar, cold basement or a cool fruit cupboard, then, would be well advised to stick to these easy and less demanding kinds.

Another advantage to the gardenless gardener is the fact that you don't need any soil for these bulbs; they will grow and bloom quite satisfactorily in bowls of pebbles and water.

Probably the best known of these pebble-culture bulbs is the Paper White narcissus, a grand oldtimer, sweetly fragrant in bloom, and usually readily available wherever bulbs are sold. It lends itself admirably to soil-less culture and can be brought into bloom without any special need for prolonged storage in cold darkness.

I do find the plants tend to get a bit floppy in the leaf when grown in a too-warm room, and it seems to me they make sturdier growth — and the fragrant white flowers tend to remain in bloom longer — if you give them their start in a coolish room, perhaps a spare bedroom where the temperature can be held somewhat lower than in the regular living quarters.

This is not strictly necessary, though, and it is quite possible to bring the Paper White narcissus into bloom at ordinary room temperatures.

In the same branch of the family as the Paper White is one called Grand Soleil d'Or, probably the showiest of all the bulbs that can be grown in stones and water and without cold darkness.

Bearing anywhere from 8 to 14 flowers per stem, the blooms are a bright golden yellow with an orange cup, richly perfumed. The bulbs are a little more expensive and somewhat harder to come by than the paper whites, usually costing from 50¢ to 65¢ per bulb.

Even quicker and surer to come into bloom is the Chinese Sacred Lily, known also as the Joss Flower, Flower of the Gods, Good Luck Lily and Water Fairy Flower. These are, of course, vernacular names; the plant is not a lily but another narcissus, botanically Narcissus tazetta orientalis.

The growing of these bulbs for export is the principal industry in a group of 10 villages lying to the south of Chungking, in the heart of the People's Republic of China. Grown from offsets in irrigated fields, they take three to four years to make a flowering-size bulb. After harvesting, they are shipped to world markets through the port of Hong Kong.

When I was a youngster, our neighborhood Chinese laundryman would always have a stock of these bulbs in the fall, presenting one to each of his regular customers as a goodwill gift. Started in pebbles and water in mid-November, the creamy white, lemon-centred blooms would be in full flower in time for Christmas.

Jack Smith

In referring the other day to the Buttonwillow Sound in country rock music, I said that Buttonwillow was of course a suburb of Bakersfield, a description whose only purpose was to give readers some idea of where Buttonwillow is.

To my surprise, I have received several complaints on that point, one or two of them churlish; and while it may not seem a matter of wide concern, I should think most of us would be interested in the question of what a suburb is, since most of us live in one.

One of the complaints was from Gordon Anderson, a reporter for the Bakersfield Californian. "Your column . . . referred to Buttonwillow as a suburb of Bakersfield. 'Of course,' no less. Since Metropolitan Buttonwillow (pop. 1,200) is about 30 miles northwest of Bakersfield, it seems either your skull has been addled by that L.A. air (wheeze!) or you were once too often exposed to (bleep)-kicking music here at the Blackboard.

"Buttonwillow's as much a suburb of Bakersfield as I'm related to Jack Anderson — meaning, not at all . . . And to think you were up here not too long ago. If your column's geographical accuracy is any indication, you must've gotten here by way of Needles."

That I erred is also alleged by David C. Maxwell of Temple City, who encloses a map of the San Joaquin Valley as exhibit A. "The fact that both towns are on State Route 58 does not always mean that one is the suburb of the other (as is the case here in Los Angeles County)," says Maxwell, rather ambiguously, it seems to me. "Plus, Bakersfield is on and east of State Route 99, while Buttonwillow is west of Interstate 5. I do hope you will retract this obvious error . . . This incident brings to mind the time you drove north on Colorado Blvd. in the city of Pasadena."

I'm afraid Maxwell has merely muddied the water. I am quite lost among all those highways he cites. Like most people, he evidently sees maps merely as guides for getting from one place to another, and not as signposts to the cultural and demographic nature of the area traversed.

If he were to look to one side or the other, instead of straight down those numbered highways, he would see that the space between Bakersfield and Buttonwillow is not merely a potato patch, but one uninterrupted urban sprawl, contiguous with Bakersfield and Buttonwillow, and joining them into a single teeming urb, one primary, the other sub.

Immediately to the northwest of Bakersfield, for example, we find ourselves not in the boondocks but in Fruitvale, and if we simply follow the old Rosedale Road (now grandly renamed State Route 58), we will soon be in Greenacres, then Rosedale, then Cris's Corner, then Kilowatt, and finally, without having lost sight of civilization, in metropolitan Buttonwillow itself.

Oh, true enough, between Cris's Corner and Kilowatt we do run along Goose Lake Slough for a while, through a rather sparsely populated neighborhood, but of course Goose Lake Slough must be considered a natural ornament, like the Los Angeles River, which actually brings its environs together, rather than splitting them apart. In this sense, Goose Lake Slough may be compared with the Thames and the Seine, as well as the Los Angeles.

As for reporter Anderson's complaint, evidently he assumes that my only knowledge of the Bakersfield metropolitan area comes from a recent visit to a country music dancehall called the Blackboard. True, I am familiar with that place, but I am also familiar with Buttonwillow and other Bakersfield suburbs such as Oildale (where I once ran 26 balls at Al's Poolhall), Smith Corner, Weed Patch, Wasco, Shafter (where I used to go to Saturday night movies at the Women's Clubhouse), Pond (where my wife was born), McFarland and Delano. I used to live in Delano, and rode a yellow Kern County Union High School bus into Bakersfield every day to attend Bakersfield College. Even then, I thought of myself as a suburbanite.

The first time I was ever in Buttonwillow, as I remember, was when I went duck-hunting with a friend in Goose Lake Slough. It was the only time I have ever been duck hunting. I didn't like it. But I am a good shot, and on my first shot, with a borrowed gun, I winged a duck that flew over on the rise, and he fell in Buttonwillow. I have never shot another duck since, nor any other creature. However, I do remember going into Buttonwillow to look for my duck, and having a beer at the general store instead.

At that time I was a reporter on the Californian, as Anderson is now, and to those of us with vision there was no question that Oildale, Smith Corner, Weed Patch, Wasco, Pond, Buttonwillow and the others were "Forty Suburbs in Search of a City" — a phrase I adapted to the local scene — and that in time they would grow until their borders were contiguous. That vision has come to pass, of course, in what we know today as Greater Bakersfield.

The way Buttonwillow has got out of hand, though, perhaps the metropolis should be called Greater Buttonwillow, instead, and in that case, of course, Bakersfield is the suburb.

Sydney Harris

It's interesting the different ways that different people will regard historical characters on the stage or screen. Some expect them to behave as if they knew they were historical, with period posturings and quaint mannerisms. Others, like myself, expect them to behave and sound much like us.

Watching a new musical play about ancient Egypt not long ago, I was impressed with the fact that the author gave the characters a simple humanity that we could identify with, even though separated by several millenia. But one critic protested that the performers seemed too much like contemporary North American youngsters thrown into an antique setting.

Yet every era to itself has seemed contemporary and even modern. The breeches and powdered wigs worn by the worthies of the 18th century were not historical or old-fashioned, but as up-to-date as today's jeans and tank-shirts. And the language they used, although sounding strange and stilted to us, was as demotic and idiomatic as our own speech.

People, and periods, do not change that much. One age may be a little more formal, and another more casual, but old people in Shakespeare say much the same things old people say today, and youngsters have always taken liberties with costume, comportment and conversation.

Not only do age distinctions remain pretty much the same over the centuries, but social distinctions even more so. In As You Like It, written some 400 years ago, one of the nobles complains that servants aren't what they were in the olden days, when they could be relied upon to be loyal and dutiful to their employers.

And, of course, the Elizabethan drama is shot through with references to upstart merchants, cheating mechanics, insolent children and wayward youth. Old people felt neglected then, just as now, while those rising in the world felt their way blocked by the old and entrenched. Lear's two daughters are scarcely examples of filial piety; Juliet, at 14, is hardly a model of obedience and rectitude.

No, the people in Nefertiti's Egypt may have dressed oddly, and worshipped beetles and cats, but to themselves they sounded just like we do to ourselves. Royal families squabbled in the same way, priests were just as minatory or unctuous, generals as blunt and belligerent, and lovers uttered much the same inanities in Thebes as in Brooklyn.

It was, indeed, in high antiquity that Terence, the Roman playwright, exclaimed, "Homo sum; humani nil a me alienum puto." ("I am a man, and hold that nothing human is alien to me.") Strange customs or costumes or turns of phrase are only the veneer of a culture; beneath these, Washington in a wig felt little different from Eisenhower in a field cap.

James Bacon's Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD — Pat Burke, erstwhile actor and football star, now owns the Las Vegas Sports Service which supplies the point spread on weekly football games, pro and college.

Pat played 58 minutes as tackle for Michigan State when they beat UCLA in the 1955 Rose Bowl, one of the few times the Big Ten ever won that big one.

It apparently is legal to disseminate point spreads for football game wagering these days. The Union Plaza in Las Vegas even has a weekly TV show on cable TV after the Monday night Pro football game on ABC-TV.

By the way, the Union Plaza opened Neil Simon's Last of the Red Hot Lovers two weeks ago, starring comedian Marty Brill and former X-rated queen Marilyn Chambers.

Marty Allen is working with five chimps called the Allen Brothers in Michael Viner's Circus of Stars TV special.

Here's an unknown fact: Marty was one of the Second World War's great heroes.

Marty, only 17 at the time, jumped into a flaming fuel truck and calmly drove it away from trapped pilots who were about to make that famed bombing raid on the Nazi oil fields in Ploesti, Rumania.

"What really scared me," said Marty, "was the parade they gave me when I got the Soldier's Medal."

That's the medal, one of the most coveted in the military, that is awarded for extreme heroism in non-combat situations. Few have it. Had he been in a combat situation, Marty probably would have gotten the Medal of Honor for what he did.

Comedians are a funny breed. Marty never talked about his heroics — just the jokes that made his fellow soldiers and later his audiences laugh.

Montreal Olympics still unwinding

MONTREAL (CP) — "It is like dissolving any other non-profit organization," says Gerry Snyder, as he surveys the once-busy offices of the Montreal Olympic organizing committee.

"And who knows more about non-profit than us?" he adds with a grin.

While the fervor has subsided and a year has elapsed since the Games, the organizing committee's skeleton staff still is busy with the final stages of the phasing-out operation.

The beehive of workers who once hurried through the central offices on Notre Dame Street has dwindled to 31.

Heading the crew is committee president Snyder, Mayor Jean Drapeau's right-hand man.

There still is a steady flow of inquiries about details on different aspects of the 1976 Montreal Games.

But, as Snyder concedes, the pace has slackened.

"It's much more difficult to get psyched up about taking it (the committee) apart. Without pressure, there's always a tendency to put something aside until tomorrow."

The main task is the compilation of the final three-volume report for the International Olympic Committee, due early next year. The report will retrace the entire evolution of the Montreal Games for the guidance of future Olympic organizers.

Extensive archives with millions of files will be turned over to the province for the perusal of historians and researchers.

If the winding down isn't as frantic as the buildup, it is a vital process.

Even when the charter is dissolved, explains Snyder, the committee will remain a viable corporation.

It has 20 lawsuits worth $1 million against individuals or companies for unfulfilled contracts.

There are also suits against the committee totalling approximately $500,000 from employee accident claims and contractors who feel they have been short-changed.

At least one problem has been solved—refunds on tickets, mainly due to the withdrawal of the black African countries.

Two more directors' meetings and a rubber stamp from the Quebec government cancelling the committee's provincial charter will bring it all to a tidy conclusion next spring.

Despite the huge deficit run up by the Montreal Games, the non-profit organizing committee will close with a surplus.

In its interim report last summer, it declared an excess of revenue over expenditures of 126 million, as distinct from the construction deficits run by the City of Montreal.

A practical judgment of the entire Olympic venture is being rendered by the McGill University department of economics, whose in-depth study, begun in 1973, should determine its significance in pure economic terms.

Snyder said the study will add a new and positive dimension because the findings will be from a third party.

"We keep in close contact with Lake Placid site of the 1980 Winter Games (and Edmonton site of the 1978 Commonwealth Games)," he said. "They want our advice, our ideas. So we couldn't have been all wrong."

Bigger port 'dead duck' —alderman

Victoria Ald. William Tindall recently attended a seminar on Western Canadian ports and says he came away with the distinct impression that Victoria's days as a port city were numbered.

Tindall
. . . cruises a hope

The seminar was held in Vancouver and was attended by shipping company officials and government representatives.

Tindall said there was general agreement that Victoria was last on the list of Vancouver Island's nine ports. The experts, he said, predicted that Nanaimo would become the island's major port.

Tindall said Victoria's importance as a port city was already declining before fire destroyed the Ogden Point warehouse this summer.

Since then, business has been diverted to other ports and Tindal doubted Victoria would ever get it back.

He said Victoria's only chance was to capitalize on its potential for cruise ships.

Vancouver was port of call for 100 cruises last year, compared with only 28 in Victoria. There was no reason Victoria shouldn't be included in the schedule of every cruise ship coming to Western Canada, Tindell said.

Although he hated to be pessimistic, he couldn't help but get the message from the seminar that plans for expanding Victoria's port facilities were "a dead duck," he said.

"That, at least, was the general view of the symposium," he added.

That's it for me —Bourque

Saanich alderman Joe Bourque created a little breathing room in a very crowded Saanich election contest by announcing Friday that he would not be seeking a third term on council.

Bourque said the demands of his family and his job did not leave enough time to devote to council as well.

Noting that Saanich faces "the critical stages in its growth and development," Bourque expressed confidence in incumbent members of council and endorsed another candidate, Geoffrey Vantreight.

Bourque gave him high marks to his colleagues on council for their support of municipal bikeways and the Garth Homer Achievement Centre.

Bourque also said he found press coverage during his years on council to be fair.

"I have never been misquoted, nor can I find any fault with the coverage provided in Saanich."

He intends to continue as board chairman for the G. R. Pearkes Clinic and as finance chairman for the Garth Homer Achievement Centre.

Bourque's departure from council means that at least one seat will be open to a newcomer. Incumbents who intend to make another try on Nov. 19 are Mayor Ed Lum and aldermen Fred Severson and David Paterson.

One other incumbent, Sandy Noel, said Friday night that he would announce his intentions today.

Challengers in the contest are James Maxwell for mayor, and Jack Fry, Richard Gauthier, Hal Knight, Howard Sturrock and Vantreight for aldermen.

Nominations close at noon Monday.

Ex-director planning comeback

Albert Beasley, who served as Capital Region director from 1965 to 1971, will try to make a comeback.

Beasley announced Friday that he'll seek election to the regional board as representative for View Royal. That will assure a contest, since incumbent director Patricia Massy says she will seek re-election.

Beasley said View Royal was facing "the most critical period" in its history, and he would be able to help the community make the right decisions in the next few years.

Beasley was View Royal's fire chief for 21 years from 1948 to 1969.

He has been involved in numerous amateur sports associations and was chairman of the View Royal Parks Board from 1974 to 1976.

'Spring of the 50 MPs'

Tap women's mainstream for lobby, 'give society a mighty shove' our way

By STEPHEN HUME
Colonist Reporter

Next spring there could be 50 women MPs in Parliamest if the women's movement had the "mainstream of women" behind it, feminist and journalist Lisa Hobbs of Vancouver said Friday.

"It's time for the formation of a women's electoral lobby," she told an overflow audience of about 250 women at the University of Victoria's Elliot building.

She urged women to consider the electoral lobby during workshops at the two-day Women's Conference, sponsored by Victoria and UVic Status of Women Action Groups.

"BY THIS TIME next week," she said, there could be chapters of the lobby on the West Coast and in at least two other Canadian cities.

She said it was time for women to consider new tactics in their struggle for social equality.

The present social structure will not change unless women are represented in government and "give society a mighty shove in the direction we want it to go."

Women must share "total and equal representation at the government level" before change will take place.

"This means equal representation on the great issues of the day — uranium sales, nuclear disarmament, international banking, national unity, law and criminal reform — these are the things that change lives, yet we have no say in them," she said.

"I'm not saying we have to vote as one voice on these issues. I'm saying that now we have no voice in these issues."

HOBBS SAID it was a fact that the women's movement didn't have the "mainstream of women" behind it, and women should ask themselves why.

By mainstream, she said, "I'm not talking about the women who have a live-in housekeeper and who take their kids to the daycare in a taxi when it rains.

"I'm talking about the army of women you see on the bus every day coming from work, facing more work at home.

"New tactics must be implemented, devoid of the rhetoric of revolution. We should consder seeking the support of the mainstream of women . . . we need the sympathy and wholehearted support of every woman voter in the country.

"The effort women must make in this day and age to get the smallest piece of the pie is staggering," she said.

"The present commercial and industrial structure is anathema to the smooth functioning of the family.

"IT IS NOT DESIRABLE to all women to work. It is only desirable if the support structures are there — daycare and wage security — and they don't exist.

She opened her talk by saying, "I don't have an unreserved admiration for Freud, but I hold that he was right when he said that the two great tasks of a man and a woman were to love and to work.

"Love frees us to be creative. Our freedom to work in the occupation of our choice enhances our capacity and ability to love," she said.

The "male-dominated media has taken advantage of our predicament and has turned the movement into a caricature, and will do so at every opportunity," she said.

She said women have been taught to feel ashamed of themselves, and taught that it was a weakness to feel the "satisfaction of a love affair, and the tenderness and affection women feel for men and for other women."

"THE BATTLE will be won not by the goodwill and sudden perception of men, but by social forces today that are moving toward an inevitable change in the roles of men and women."

She urged women to "take control" of these forces and "move thoughtfully and calculatingly forward to gain control of our entire lives . . ."

Job tracker sets sights on Quebec

If he could say after 12 months that through his efforts 200 jobs were created, he'd be happy, says Barry Mayhew, Greater Victoria's first industrial development commissioner.

Mayhew, who will take up his new duties Dec. 1, is somewhat reluctant to commit himself to exact figures and predictions.

But he did outline his priorities at a press conference Friday morning.

Expansion of existing industries and attraction of technological industries with a high labor content are at the top of his priority list.

Mayhew told reporters that Quebec would be a "very fertile ground" for him to convince companies that Victoria was a good place to move to.

Asked to elaborate, however, Mayhew said he wouldn't try to "take advantage of someone else's problems" by luring industry away from Quebec at any cost.

But the fact remained, he added, that a lot of Quebec firms were contemplating relocation because of that province's uneasy political and economic climate.

He singled out the pharmaceutical industry as one possible candidate for location in Victoria, although he didn't have any specific company in mind.

Mayhew said he would give early attention to the problem of Victoria as a port city. Retention of existing port facilities and, he hopes, expansion at a later date, would be one of the things he'd be looking at.

Mayhew admitted that he felt "a certain pressure" to produce visible results during his first year, because future financing of his office hadn't been secured.

Mayhew will have a budget of $65,500 for the first year. Half of that amount is financed by the provincial government, the other half by the four core municipalities.

Before zeroing in on specifics, Mayhew said, he would gather all available data about the region's economic base.

Ald. Larry Ryan, who with Ald. Frank Carson has fought for months to get financing for the establishment of an industrial development commissioner's office in Greater Victoria, said a survey of the health of existing industry was important before Mayhew could begin working on attracting new business and expanding the present economic base.

"His main task will be to stop the decay of the region's economy," Ryan said.

He said Mayhew would be given as free a hand as possible and political interference would be contained.

Munro-Pollen showdown is 8 tonight at arena

Greater Victoria's political showdown of the year, the Donald Munro-Peter Pollen matchup for the federal Conservative nomination for Esquimalt-Saanich takes place tonight at the Memorial Arena.

The meeting opens at 8, and voting is not expected to take place until 9:30 or 10, a party official said Friday.

Munro, a former diplomat, was first elected to the Commons in 1972 and was re-elected in 1974. Pollen is a former Victoria mayor.

Police probing kidnap mystery

The head of Victoria city police detective division said Friday he was treating a reported abduction of a young woman Tuesday night as a serious matter but didn't rule out the possibility of a hoax.

Insp. Angus Stewart said his men were actively working on the case but was puzzled because there have been no reports of any disappearance of a young woman matching the description given by Helen Gillie, who said she saw the incident.

Mrs. Gillie told police she was driving along May Street shortly before 11 p.m. Tuesday when she spotted a black van pull over and cut off a young woman who was walking across the street at an intersection on Linden.

The van, described as black with two bubble windows on the back doors and a half moon rising in clouds on the side, contained at least two men who jumped from the back, grabbed the girl, ripped her clothing and punched her before hauling her into the back of the van.

The victim, Mrs. Gillie said, was screaming, "Who are you? . . . would you stop it . . . Oh God, somebody help me . . . help . . ."

One of the men then jumped onto the hood of the witness' vehicle and intimated in vulgar language that if she stayed there she'd also be a rape victim, Mrs. Gillie reported.

She described one of the men as "a savage-looking person."

After putting her car in reverse and stepping on the brake pedal, which caused the man to fall off, she saw the men push their victim into the van and the vehicle speed off, almost before the two men could close the back doors, indicating there was at least one other person in the van.

The victim was described as 18 to 20 years of age, with her hair in a pony tail and wearing a yellow jacket and blue jeans.

The two men she saw are described as heavy-set with dark complexion and slight with fair complexion and a wild, unruly Afro hair style. Both were estimated to be in their 20s.

Restaurant worker robbed of $500

Esquimalt police are still investigating a holdup early Friday morning which netted a lone gunman $500.

A man lurking in shadow near the door of the A and W Restaurant, 860 Esquimalt Road, accosted employee Robert Bell as he was leaving with the night's receipts at about 1:30 a.m. and pointed a rifle at him, demanding that the cash box be handed over.

Bell gave the robber the box and the man fled, police said.

The cash box was found minutes later in the middle of the 800-block Old Esquimalt Road. The $500 in the box was made up of bills and silver, Det.-Sgt. Douglas Sproxton of the Esquimalt police said.

It was the second armed robbery in Greater Victoria in less than three days.

A lone gunman wearing a Halloween mask and carrying a pistol got away with about $5,000 Tuesday afternoon from the B.C. Teachers' Credit Union, 3023 Shakespeare.

Victoria city police are still working on that case, which is not believed to be connected with the Esquimalt holdup.

Moving the mountain

Mountain looming in background of Government Street, facing south from Yates Street intersection, isn't normally as prominent as it is in this photo, nor are lamp standards so close together. A 400 mm telephoto lens has done the trick. Mountain is on Olympic Peninsula about 25 miles across Juan de Fuca Strait.

Helmcken Split battle rages on

By PAUL DE GROOT
Colonist Reporter

A little of the old, and a little of the new, will be on the table next Wednesday at a special general meeting of the Victoria General Hospital Society.

The new will be the hospital's future — a spanking new 300-bed hospital planned for Helmcken Road which will eventually be expanded to 469 beds, according to present plans.

The architect for the hospital as well as others involved in its planning (with the exception of the prime mover, Health Minister Robert McClelland, who has very wisely elected to find another commitment for that day), will attend the meeting and give the society its first official look at what the new building might be like.

It is probably the old, however, that will generate the most interest from the society's membership — namely the battle over the Helmcken Road site, and the question of the split hospital facility.

That question dominated the society's annual general meeting last April, and caught the hospital board by surprise. The society's anger resulted in its rejecting any names including those of three incumbents, put forward by the official nominating committee, and electing four new board members from the floor.

Board member Dr. Eugene Kaellis served notice at a board meeting on Thursday that the split hospital issue cannot be ignored by the board.

He reiterated his stand of last month's board meeting — that he would abstain from any votes relating to the split hospital — by telling the board that he would dissociate himself from a board policy position that was to be included with the agenda at the special meeting.

That statement says, after listing some supporting clauses, that "one modern, single hospital as a replacement for the present Victoria General Hospital should be constructed on one site as "expeditiously as possible."

"If staging is required, it should be in accordance with the recommendation of the hospital consultant. Upon completion the present hospital should be phased out for acute in-hospital care purposes."

The statement does not follow from its supporting clauses, and puts forward an unrealistic position, Kaellis said. There is going to be a split hospital the way things are going, he noted.

Further checking showed the statement was passed at a Jan. 27 board meeting, before the heated annual general meeting in April, and before four new trustees, including Kaellis, were elected to the board.

With that discovery, the board began scouting around for something a little more current, and came up with a position adopted after the annual general meeting which affirmed the society's stand against the split hospital, and urged the government to bring forward some specific commitments on both the old and new hospital facilities.

Wednesday's meeting will be held in the Newcombe Auditorium at 8 p.m., with a 10:30 p.m. termination deadline.

Rats, foiled by neighbors

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Dozens of rats roamed through Leonard Frantz's home, but the self-employed chemist wasn't upset. The rodents were "just like hamsters or gerbils," he said

District Judge James Denato didn't see it that way, however, and ordered Frantz this week to get rid of all but 24 of his dozens of pet rats—and to keep those in cages.

"There is a well-founded prejudice against the wild rat, the sewer rat," Frantz said, "but my rats are domesticated. They cause no trouble." He said he would appeal the order.

Frantz, 54, said he was trying to breed a strain of tame rats with "the ability to relate to a person in a manner similar to a dog or cat." The best way to do that, he argued, was to keep them out of cages.

During the hearing, which followed neighborhood complaints about the rats, Frantz was asked whether he was ever bitten by his rodents.

"Oh yes—hundreds of times," he replied.

"What do you do?" asked an assistant county attorney.

"Nothing. It gets well in a few days. It might take a week. They'll bite right through your finger if they don't hit bone. But there's no diseases carried by these rats."

Officials of the Des Moines-Polk County health department testified that rats could carry numerous diseases, some of which could be transmitted to humans.

After the ruling, Frantz said that "the purpose of the experiment is dead."

"My rats are in a cage, of sorts—a walk-in cage," Frantz said. "They're no problem. The health department is causing the problem."

Swimsuit parade good 'trade-off', says Miss America

Miss America Friday blasted critics of the pageant for their "ignorance" and said the four minutes she had to parade in a swimsuit was a good "trade off" for more than $70,000 and a year of free travel. "I think all the anti-pageant sentiment is just due to ignorance on the part of the public," said 23-year-old Susan Perkins at a news conference before being paraded around Middletown, Ohio, her hometown of 50,000 people. "They don't understand the judging, that the swumsuit counts least and the interview is the most important. They don't know it's the largest scholarship program for women in the country."

Angry husband zapped by electric Taser

Dart-gun lawyer cleared

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — West Vancouver lawyer Howard Victor Ross used Flash Gordon techniques to protect himself from the husband of a woman he was representing in a divorce action, a county court judge ruled Thursday.

Judge D.B. Hinds also acquitted Ross of assault causing bodily harm after the court was told the lawyer fired electrified darts at the husband, Horst Thielman, and hit him twice.

The judge said Ross fired the "20th-century imitation of a Flash Gordon ray gun" at Thielman in self-defence. He rejected Thielman's evidence that the electrified darts from the Taser Public Defender gun were fired without provocation.

The court was told the darts had the ability to immobilize a man within a range of 18 feet. After he was zapped, Thielman went first to the police and then to hospital. Ross dumped the dart gun into the Fraser River.

Judge Hinds found that Ross believed Thielman had twice threatened his life while Ross was representing Thielman's wife, Maria, in their divorce action.

During an interview with the plaintiff, Thielman glared at Ross, "took a bullet from his pocket, and told the accused that if his wife divorced him, he would use the bullet," the judge said.

"The accused construed that outburst as a threat to him, rather than a threat by Thielman to commit suicide."

He said there were other incidents that Ross might construe as threats, including two incidents in which Ross said he was almost run down by a car resembling the one Thielman drove.

Thielman's Coquitlam cabinet-making business had become an issue in the divorce, and Ross went there on the day of the incident with his Taser gun inside the front of his ski jacket.

"He took the Taser for self-protection," said Judge Hinds.

Ross, wearing a wig to disguise himself from Thielman's partner, unexpectedly met Thielman but didn't recognize him because he was thinner and better dressed than on the two previous occasions he had seen him.

Thielman, the judge found, asked Ross what he wanted and the bewigged lawyer said he needed a piece of wood.

Thielman accidentally dropped the wood on the lawyer's leg, the wig came off, Thielman recognized Ross then began swinging at him with a two-by-two piece of wood.

The chase ended when Ross fired the electrified darts.

The judge found the Taser to be primarily a defensive weapon and said that if Ross had intended to injure Thielman, he could have taken one of the pistols he owned.

Deportation scare blamed on RCMP

MONTREAL (CP) — A Guyanese student living here says he and his disabled common-law wife have been threatened with deportation because he refused to act as an RCMP informant on West Indians living illegally in Canada.

Milton Azore, 31, said this week that he had been in Canada since 1974 on a student visa and was given permission to work after his wife Lilith lost both hands in an accident last year, while she was working illegally to help support the family, which includes two small children.

Shortly after the accident, Azore took a job at the same firm, Trans World Record Co. On his second day at work, the plant was raided by the RCMP and immigration officials and Azore was arrested.

Last Monday, Azore said an immigration officer took away his work permit and said his student visa would likely not be renewed because he did not have enough money to support his family.

Robert Lefebvre, a federal immigration department official here, denied that Azore's problems resulted from unwillingness to act as an informant.

An aide to Quebec Immigration Minister Jacques Couture said Thursday that Quebec officials had been following the case and were "very conscious of the way in which (the Azores) have been exploited."

Stop whining, says minister

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Judd Buchanan, federal minister of public works, said this week it was time Canadians stopped blaming all their problems on the federal government.

"We've got to take a close look inside ourselves," the Liberal MP for London West told a meeting of management accountants.

"We'll have to be prepared to ask a little less of our economy and put a little more in."

He said he saw nothing alarming in the devalued Canadian dollar, and suggested it had helped make the country more competitive on international markets.

Buchanan said Canadians had experienced a large increase in purchasing power and standard of living and added that a higher percentage of adults was employed today than 20 years ago.

However, accountant John Cook of London said there was a lack of leadership in the country.

Cook said the public was fed up with Ottawa bureaucrats "tenured, with indexed pensions, isolated and, to a high degree, making government policy."

Housing job in Algeria

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian Kellogg Co. Ltd. of Toronto has received a $110-million contract to build a village of 744 homes to house about 5,000 engineering and construction workers at a plant for liquefying natural gas in Arzeu, Algeria.

Economic pact or chaos—Burnham

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Forbes Burnham of Guyana expressed doubts Friday that a new economic arrangement could be worked out between rich and poor nations in time to avoid worldwide upheaval.

"I'm not very hopeful," the 54-year-old leader said in an interview when asked about chances of an agreement on a new international economic order.

Burnham, one of the leading Third World spokesman in the economic discussions now under way between rich and poor nations, said the world has five years to settle the issue.

"The alternative to doing this is to see the whole world going up in chaos because overwhelming poverty is bound to create instability.

"The matter is very urgent. A poor man is a desperate man. If you have upheavals throughout the development world that's going to lead to world instability."

The Guyanese leader was in Ottawa for talks with Prime Minister Trudeau. He is to visit Montreal and Toronto this weekend before returning home on Sunday.

Burnham, who is leader of a country of 800,000 people on the northern edge of South America, touched on the rich-poor issue in Halifax earlier this week when he received an honorary degree from Dalhousie University.

He told a news conference Friday he also reviewed the problem with Trudeau in discussions Thursday. He declined to reveal details of his meeting with Trudeau.

Third World countries have been demanding with increasing insistence that the industrialized world help underdeveloped nations develop greater economic strength.

Inco dashes final hope of delay in mass layoff

OTTAWA (CP) — Inco Ltd. appears to have dashed the hopes of union and civic leaders in Sudbury for a three-to-six-month delay in massive layoffs it plans among its miners and plant workers.

After a high-powered meeting of more than two dozen to discuss the issue Friday, some of the politicians and union leaders felt the company was ready to talk about delays.

But Inco said later in a statement that it has not agreed to negotiate a delay in the layoffs scheduled for February. It says they result from a poor world market for nickel.

The company said a suggestion for such talks came up at the meeting with government and union representatives here, but it agreed only to continue Tuesday with "normal and already arranged" negotiations with the union.

"I think there is a possibility that is going to happen," said Dave Patterson, president of Sudbury Local 6500 of the United Steelworkers, referring to a delay.

Commons Speaker James Jerome, MP for Sudbury, said following the meeting that negotiations between the company and the union must be completed before governments could see if there is a role for them to play in creating a cooling off period to allow more time for negotiations.

Schoen Lake now park

Northern Vancouver Island got a new provincial park Friday when Schoen Lake and 8,170 hectares (20,243 acres), surrounding it were declared the Schoen Lake Provincial Park.

In addition to the new Class A park, 4,172 hectares (8,745 acres) of parkland were added to the northwest corner of Strathcona Provincial Park.

The creation of the new park ends part of the long-standing dispute on the use of land in the Tsitika - Schoen region. All of the forest in the Tsitika-Schoen Valley have been under a moratorium for several years while the decision between conservation and logging was made.

Friday's announcement from Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf and Environment Minister James Nielsen noted that the forest in the Schoen Creek area would be released from the moratorium. About 9,300 acres are involved.

A further 84,839 acres will remain under the moratorium until an integrated management plan is approved.

Bawlf said creation of the park is the culmination of "an interest which began in 1959 when the provincial parks branch first examined the area and was made aware of its scenic and recreational potential."

The new park is part of the Insular Mountain Range with Schoen Lake lying at an elevation of 400 metres surrounded by forests and mountains, the highest of which is Mount Schoen at 1,862 metres.

Access to the park will be from the new North Island Highway now under construction. The park boundary near the west end of the lake is 12 kilometres east of Woss Camp.

Access to the eastern section of the park will be by a new logging road on the east side of Adam River.

"Visitors will find an area of virtually unspoiled wilderness," Bawlf said. "They will find hiking, camping, fishing and mountain climbing areas easily accessible. Rudimentary trails and camping facilities are already in place."

Bawlf said there were no definite plans for development of the new park but that improvements would be made as use demanded.

The addition to Strathcona Park basically comprises the inclusion of Gold Lake and the wilderness area surrounding it. It has been under consideration as a natural extension of Strathcona since 1969.

Within the new area are alpine meadows, mountain landscapes and natural grazing for the Roosevelt elk. Total size of Strathcona now is 231,384 hectares.

Tight reins a must —McGeer

Education Minister Pat McGeer told school boards Friday to keep budget increases to the increase in provincial revenues or local taxpayers will have to make up the difference.

Because of this, the minister appealed to "community and education-minded citizens" to seek positions on local school boards. Nominations close Monday.

"There is probably a greater demand for strong management at the local level of education than at any time in our previous history," McGeer said in a news release. "The school population is not growing over-all in B.C., which means that improvements in education can only be obtained in many communities through better use of available resources."

He said that during the 1976 school year, operating budgets grew 19.2 per cent province-wide, while operating grants from the government went up by 14.3 per cent. In 1977, province-wide budgets increased 9.3 per cent and provincial grants by 8.8 per cent.

Street closed

Lampson Street will be closed at the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway crossing from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, Esquimalt municipal engineer M. H. Campbell said Friday. The closure will facilitate track repairs.

Forest fires dip despite weather

B.C.'s long, hot summer resulted in less forest fire damage than had been anticipated.

Although the forest fire season won't end officially until midnight Monday, forest officials felt there was little danger of adding to the total of 1,854 fires already on record.

All those fires destroyed 3,519 hectares (less than 8,700 acres), which officials say is remarkably low for the type of summer weather experienced.

Forest protection officer Don Owen said simple division brings out the average of less than a five-acre loss per fire.

He said Friday he attributed it to the care and caution exercised by the public in the woods and to extremely quick reporting of fires. Other factors included improved fire detection systems and a fire-fighting fleet of 12 aircraft which his 433 fires shortly after initial reports with 1.4 million gallons of chemical retardant.

The improved detection systems included heat-sensing infra-red scanners carried by helicopters and capable of detecting heat buildup when there was no visible fire or smoke. "They prevented many serious outbreaks," Owen said.

As a backup, the Forest Service offered its free fire reporting number, Zenith 5555, throughout the province. "It was highly effective," Owen said. "It results in almost immediate action on any forest fire report."

As of Tuesday, burning permits will no longer be required unless there's a heat wave.

Hostage-taking accused 'denied medical aid'

A 21-year-old man who was charged in Victoria provincial court Friday in connection with the six-hour, hostage-taking incident which began Wednesday night at Wilkinson Road jail told Judge Harold Alder that he and other prisoners were denied medical treatment because of the incident.

Rodney George Berry appeared before Alder and was charged with the unlawful confinement of guard Paul John Crozier Smith, 24, at the Vancouver Island Regional Correction Centre, 4216 Wilkinson Road.

Smith was jumped and held captive with a pillow over his head and torn bedsheets tying his hands behind his back after entering the east wing of the cell block shortly before 10 p.m. Wednesday to lock up the inmates for the night.

Defence lawyer Derek Brindle, who asked for a remand until next week for election of Berry's trial method, spoke first, informing the court that his client had been denied any communication to the outside since the night of the incident and had also been denied health facilities despite injuries received since that time.

Berry then spoke up and told the judge that he and "certain number of other prisoners" had been confined since the incident.

He asked Alder to sign "some kind of writ" to enable himself and the others to receive medication and medical attention. Berry said that there were prisoners with "50 or more stitches" from self-inflicted wounds who were not getting medication.

When asked to specify, Berry said that he was only getting "bug pills" and not pain killers.

Berry was not taken in with the daily truckload of prisoners from Wilkinson Road jail but was transported separately in a sheriff's sedan under extra security.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: May I make a comment on chain letters? I refer to those similar to the one I am enclosing—The Good Luck Prayer.

I've been asked to send 20 copies of the prayer within four days. (Postage alone is $2.60—not to mention the time and trouble.)

I can't think of 20 people I dislike enough to hand them such a bothersome burden. The chain letter I am now looking at threatens death to anyone who breaks the chain. How would I feel if I sent this terrible thing to a friend and she died shortly after?

Since I am not acquainted with any of the signatures on the letter, who knows if it has been around the world nine times or whether the extravagant claims are true? Please comment. — Mad in Unionville, Ontario.

Dear Mad: Chain letters are a racket, a crashing bore and a pain in the ankle. They are also illegal. My advice to one and all who receive these trashy annoyances is to feed them to the nearest goat.

Dear Ann Landers: Was I right or wrong? I'll leave it to you.

My husband and I were invited to my mother-in-law's home for Sunday brunch. She was a little late with the preparation so I offered to help.

I went in the back of the house to get my eyeglasses out of my purse and passed the bedroom. I was shocked to catch a glimpse of my husband lying on the bed and my mother-in-law's stepdaughter was sitting on the edge of the bed beside him. It looked very cosy.

After I regained my composure I walked back there, stood in the doorway and gave my husband a go-to-hell look. When we got home I told him a thing or two. He said I was out of my mind — to "grow up" — that a mature woman wouldn't throw a fit over "nothing."

Does that sound like "nothing" to you? Answer soon. I am — Furious in Anson.

Dear Fury: Sorry, there are too many missing links in your story. (1) How old is the girl? (2) Why was your husband lying down? Was he ill? (3) What do you do when you "throw a fit"? Yell? Belt him? If I had more information I might be able to give you a reasonably intelligent answer. Write again, please.

Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: We have four grandchildren who are hyperactive and talk incessantly. We love them very much but cannot stand to be around them very long.

Can a child's diet affect his personality? These children lunch continually between meals on pop, cookies, and popsicles. Their breakfast foods are the fancy-colored kind. Naturally, they are light eaters at mealtime. Do they need counselling on this?—Mrs. E.M.

This whole business of hyperactivity in youngsters is rapidly becoming one of my pet peeves. Why? Because like a lot of other fancy terms it's becoming a handy-dandy label for what in other days might have been accepted as simply normal, healthy, youthful exuberance.

It might be unfair of me to make this comment in a specific case such as yours, where to judge by your brief letter so little is really known. In many situations, though, the problem may be more one of hypersensitivity on the part of the parents (or grandparents) than of hyperactivity on the part of the children.

As to your other questions, sure, there has been some evidence that some of the food additives, preservatives, and colorings may contribute to true hyperactivity. However, we see youngsters who gorge themselves on such items as you mention and can be either lethargic and fat or healthy and robust specimens.

What I'm saying, in short, is don't hang out the "hyperactivity flag" so readily. Chidren seldom fit into our nutritional molds of three squares a day. They devour whatever looks and tastes good and is available. The common sense approach is to limit the sources of snacks. When hunger strikes they will come around and eat some of the "square" food with the rest of us.

What makes me suspect you are pushing the alarm button too hastily is your implication that all four of these youngsters are "hyperactive." That seems unlikely to me.

Natural gas price up 10% March 1

By JIM HUME
Colonist Reporter

The provincial government Friday authorized a 10 per cent increase in the retail price of natural gas effective March 1, 1978.

At the same time it requested the B.C. Energy Commission to step up investigations into ways and means of getting natural gas to Vancouver Island.

Both announcements came from Energy Minister Jack Davis.

At present, the average price paid for natural gas throughout the province is $2.15 per thousand cubic feet. Next March the price will increase by 21 cents a thousand to $2.36.

The retail price increase is part of a general reshuffle of natural gas prices from the wellhead to the domestic user.

As of Nov. 1, field prices for natural gas will increase by 18 cents per thousand for new gas and 13 cents a thousand for old gas, Davis said.

It is as a result of the increased field prices that the wholesale price paid by provincial distribution utilities will also increase by 21 cents, Davis said he had ordered this "pass through" delayed until next March to avoid the full impact falling on residential, commercial and industrial consumers this winter.

Davis didn't have too much detail on the provincial cabinet's request to the commission to try to find economical ways of getting the natural fuel to Vancouver Island.

But he said that, with 1989 the final year for exporting B.C. natural gas, it was only logical that all of B.C. should be served by its own natural resources.

Davis said that despite the latest increases, natural gas remained the lowest-priced energy source in B.C., "in fact anywhere in North America except Alberta."

The minister said that "while B.C.'s gas reserve position is improving we still have a long way to go. We want to be sure that enough gas is proven up to look after our needs over the next 30 years at least."

Davis said the higher field prices were required to maintain incentive in exploration and drilling.

"It's a fact of life that Alberta increased its prices recently," he said. "We either stay equitable or lose the drilling rigs."

He said there was one other factor in the price increase: "It can be defended on the grounds that this premium fuel should be used more sparingly in the future."

In addition to the price increases recommended by the energy commission, the government also approved suspension of the gas credit system as it affects producers. The suspension will be effective Tuesday.

In effect, it means that gas producers will no longer have their prices tied to reinvestment in new exploration and development. "The industry is reinvesting its earnings in B.C. anyway," Davis said.

A recent increase in the price of natural gas for export pushed the wholesale price at the U.S. border to $2.28 per thousand cubic feet compared with the $1.17 per thousand now being paid wholesale in B.C.

Retail prices in the U.S. vary, but range from 50 to 100 per cent higher than retail prices in B.C.

Davis said the energy commission recommendations also confirmed that B.C.'s annual supply of natural gas "does not appear sufficient to fulfil the province's obligation of 189 billion cubic feet per year to the export customer (the U.S. (in every year remaining in the term of the current licence. Nor does the cumulative surplus from 1977 to 1989 (the year the export licence expires) appear sufficient to fulfil the province's total remaining export obligation of approximately 2.4 trillion cubic feet."

As a result of those contractual obligations, the commission recommends that the 2.4 trillion target be met by scaling down the annual export amount but carrying it beyond 1989 until the contract is completed.

It states, however, that no attempt should be made to export gas over and above the contractual obligations. "But consideration should be given to altering the term and profile of the delivery of this remaining export obligation in such a way as to minimize any dislocations that would result from the abrupt termination of export deliveries."

The commission also states that looking beyond the export contracts, "reserves should be developed in a manner that fosters orderly growth in domestic requirements and a smooth transition out of the export market.

ENGLISH PLACEMENT TEST for
POST-SECONDARY STUDENTS

Students entering most post-secondary institutions in B.C. are now required to write an English Placement Test. Scores from this test will be used to assist in assigning students to English courses appropriate to their needs.

Students planning to enrol in post-secondary level courses at Camosun College, January, 1978, are encouraged to write the English Placement Test.

The test will be offered at 7:00 p.m. on November 1 at Lansdowne Jr. High School, located at 1765 Lansdowne Road (Room 101).

Detailed information regarding the requirement, purpose and format of the English Placement Test may be obtained from the Counselling/Admissions Centre, Camosun College, phone 592-1281, local 241.

U.K.'s globe-trotting Bob seeks world turf heights

LONDON (Reuter) — From a retreat demurely called The Nunnery on the Isle of Man, multimillionaire British sportsman Robert Sangster is harnessing the hemispheres in quest of international turf dominance.

All you have to do, he says, is travel the world, buying and selling high-class racehorses as you go.

His strategy involves "the rhythms of the hemisphere," which means taking advantage of different breeding cycles half a world apart.

This enables stallions to spend longer at stud, dividing their romantic dalliance between Australia in the Southern Hemisphere and Europe or America in the north.

"Mobility is the name of the game," Sangster said. "In the jet age, you can move the thoroughbreds around the globe like pawns in a chessboard."

He wants to be No. 1 in the world as breeder-owner, and he is moving up fast. Already his three-year plan for turf supremacy has produced The Minstrel, a Canadian-bred $9-million wonder horse which now goes to stud in the United States.

Clean-cut and crisply businesslike, a 41-year-old heir to English Football Pools millions, Sangster made up his mind three years ago to "go global" in search of turf perfection, using a network of world contacts and applying rigorous commercial methods.

To spread the risks in a chancy business, he formed a syndicate with Irish breeder John Magnier, millionaire Scots landowner Simon Fraser and renowned Irish trainer Vincent O'Brien.

They hit it rich. In the first year, the partners came up with the Minstrel, a four-legged gold mine purchased in the U.S. for $200,000 and recently sold to a syndicate including Canada's E. P. Taylor for a record $9 million. It was Taylor who originally sold The Minstrel to Sangster as a yearling.

A gaudy chestnut colt with four white socks and cotton wool stuffed in his ears to muffle crowd noise, The Minstrel won both the English and Irish Derby as well as the King George and Queen Elizabeth Diamond Stakes, a prestige race bringing together the best of all various ages.

He won total prize money of £315,211 (about $620,000), tops for a horse trained in England or Ireland.

Today, Sangster surveys an equine empire stretching from Britain, Ireland and France to Australia and North America. He clocks more than 200,000 miles a year, keeping half a dozen deals on the go and visiting yearling sales around the world.

With financial interests in more countries than he can count and an appraising eye on intriguing new possibilities in South America which he won't talk about — "We don't want people stealing our ideas" — Sangster finds the sporting life enthralling.

"It's all very exhilarating," he said. "There aren't enough hours in the day.

"For me, racing is not just a rich man's whim. What I am trying to do is prove that I can make racing a commercial success. I've had some sleepless nights — this can be a risky business."

Straddling the hemisphere offers scope for flexibility. Stallions with the air fare can remain active during the off-season at home.

"They used to spend seven months chewing grass," said Sangster. "That's why we started shipping stallions to Australia in June.

"The old breeders threw up their hands in horror. They thought extending the stud period would overtax the horses. But in fact, fertility improved."

In the Northern Hemisphere, the breeding season starts Feb. 14 and ends June 14. In the Southern, it runs from Aug. 14 to Dec. 14.

With experts at his elbow, Sangster can pick yearlings for their stallion potential, let their turf exploits send the sales prices soaring and decide in which part on his global empire the horse will be best employed, whether at stud or on the racecourse.

Last year, the syndicate sold $600,000 worth of yearlings to world buyers. Sangster bought the most expensive yearling at all four major U.S. sales this year.

Sangster's Emerald Green and Royal Blue Silks have been carried by stars such as Durtal, Oodswalk, Lady Capulet and River Dane as well as The Minstrel. Another classy colt, Alleged, won the Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe in Paris on Oct. 2.

He sees his bloodstock investment as a hedge against inflation.

"It's an international currency," he said. "It's like antiques. You can move it around the globe. With a Derby winner, you can get bids from America, Australia, Japan. When sterling drops, horseflesh stays put. There's always somebody ready to pay extra for a horse that can run fractionally faster than most."

Iran leading soccer trials

TEHRAN, Iran (Reuter) — Iran defeated Kuwait 1-0 in a World Cup soccer qualifying match today on a second-half goal by Ghaffour Jahani.

The victory, before a crowd of 100,000, gives Iran a record of three wins and a tie for seven points in the Asian zone. South Korea is second with six points, followed by Australia with five, Kuwait four and Hong Kong zero.

South Korea and Australia have played five matches while the other three teams have played four.

Belmont turf vet suspended again

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — Dr. Mark Gerard, the veterinarian alleged to be involved in a switch of two race horses at Belmont Park, has been suspended for a second time.

The action was taken by Appellate Division Justice Vito Titone in Brooklyn.

On Thursday, the suspension was lifted temporarily by a restraining order signed by Justice L. Kingsley Smith. The order had directed the State Racing and Wagering Board to show cause next Wednesday why the suspension should not be permanently lifted until a hearing is granted Gerard.

Titone's decision had the effect of reimposing the suspension. He set Monday for hearing on the case.

Neil T. Shayne, counsel for the veterinarian, said the board acted illegally last Tuesday when it suspended Gerard and Jack Moran, an owner-trainer of a horse that won a race at Belmont last month under the name of Lebon.

Investigators said they believe the horse was not really Lebon but Cinzano, a much faster Uruguayan import that supposedly died at Gerard's farm on Long Island in June. But authorities concede that the identification of the mystery horse, under guard at Belmont race track, is not yet positive.

THE ACES® ON BRIDGE

by IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

Today's swing hands were played in a challenge match between The Aces and a group of top stars from Chicago and Los Angeles. Match your competitive bidding judgment against that of the experts and compare your results.

Question No. 1: You are South, both vulnerable, and hold:

♠ A Q 9 8 7 6 4 3 2
♥ A 10
♦ 6
♣ 10

What do you bid after opponents' use of the unusual no trump to show minor suits?

South	West	North	East
1♠	2NT	Pass	4♣
4♠	5♣	Dbl.	Pass

Answer: Pass is a winner. Bid five spades and go down. The entire hand:

NORTH 10/27-B
♠ 10
♥ 9 8 7 6 2
♦ A J 3 2

WEST
♥ Q 4
♦ K Q 8 5 4
♣ J 9 7 6 3 2

EAST
♠ K J 5
♥ K J 5 3
♦ 10 9 7

SOUTH
♠ A Q 9 8 7 6 4 3 2
♥ A 10
♣ 10

In the match, Ace Paul Soloway made the winning pass, but The Aces lost on the deal anyway. Five clubs was defeated only one trick for 200 points when the defense took only a diamond and a diamond ruff and the ace of hearts. In the replay, Eddie Kantar and Bill Eisenberg made an unmolested spade game and The Aces lost a 420-point swing.

Question No. 2: You are South, no vulnerabilty, and hold:

10/27-C
♠ Q 8 2
♥ A Q J 6 4
♦ 9 4
♣ K J 10

What do you bid after?

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1♥	Pass
1NT	Pass	Pass	?

Answer: Double for a large profit, pass for a small plus. The entire hand:

NORTH 10/27-D
♠ 9 7 5 3
♥ 7
♦ K 10 8 6
♣ A 5 3 2

WEST
♠ J 10 4
♥ 9 3 2
♦ A Q J 7 2
♣ 7 6

EAST
♠ A K 6
♥ K 10 8 5
♦ 5 3
♣ Q 9 8 4

SOUTH
♥ A Q J 6 4
♦ 9 4
♣ K J 10

In the match, Billy Rosen doubled aggressively and, when Soloway (West) escaped to two diamonds, Norh dropped the axe on that. The net result was down three and 500 points to the challengers. In the replay, The Aces played in one heart with the North-South cards, made two, and The Aces lost a 390-point swing.

Jets, Oilers win

Winnipeg Jets scored two power-play goals and withstood a furious last-minute counter-attack as they defeated Cincinnati Stingers 3-2 in a World Hockey Association game Friday night before 9,141 spectators at Winnipeg.

Bobby Hull and Dan Labraaten scored the power-play goals in the first and second periods while Willy Lindstrom got his first goal of the year with both teams playing at full strength.

Richie Leduc and Robbie Ftorek scored for Cincinnati.

In the only other game, Bryan Campbell scored once in each period to give Edmonton Oilers a 3-2 win over the Bulls at Birmingham.

Ken Linseman, a 19-year-old forward, scored one of the Birmingham goals. He was playing his first game because earlier in the day a U.S. district court ruled the WHA rule prohibiting the under-age signing of a player was in violation of U.S. anti-trust laws. Tim Sheehy was the other Birmingham scorer.

DENVER (AP) — Veteran running back Jim Kiick has rejoined Denver Broncos of the National Football League. General manager Fred Gehrke said linebacker Rick Baska was placed on the injured reserve list, making room for Kiick.

Vikings and Bears to play for crown

University of Victoria Vikings and University of Alberta Golden Bears do battle today for the Canada West University Athletic Association soccer championship.

Both the Vikings and Bears scored lopsided wins Friday but the Bears need only a tie today to clinch the championship of the four-team, round-robin tournament while the host Vikings need a win in the game set for 2:30 p.m. at Centennial Stadium.

Vikings stayed in the title race by whipping Saskatchewan Huskies 7-0 Friday while the Bears surprised UBC Thunderbirds 4-0.

Alberta has a 2-0 record, Vikings have a win and a tie, UBC has a tie and a loss and Saskatchewan is 0-2. In games played last week, UBC and UVic played to a 1-1 draw while Alberta beat Saskatchewan 4-0.

Stu Holroyd and John Leier led the Vikings Friday with a pair of goals each and Jim Palm, Jim Hunter and Dave Secco scored once each while goalkeeper Ted Van Waes had an easy time in earning the shutout.

Graham Fisburne scored three goals for Alberta, Doug Petiuk scored once and Ian Haslam assisted three times.

UBC and Saskatchewan play at 11 a.m. today.

LANDLORDS & LEGAL RENT INCREASES.

To ensure a rent increase is legal under the new Residential Tenancy Act, a notice of rent increase, given during November or after, is valid only if:

(1) the notice is given on the form provided by the Rent Review Commission, and,

(2) a copy of the form is submitted to the Rent Review Commission within 7 days of notifying the tenant.

(3) a prospective tenant is advised of any outstanding notice.

These 3 stipulations apply to all residential tenancies, including those exempt from the 7% rent increase limit.

Rents must be rounded to the nearest dollar for all increases taking effect on or after March 1, 1978.

Charges for additional occupants must be discontinued as of January 1, 1978. A landlord who may experience financial hardship as a result of this discontinuance must apply to the Rent Review Commission before January 1, 1978 to retain the charges.

Landlords may apply to the Rent Review Commission at any time for an increase greater than 7%.

Copies of the new Residential Tenancy Act are available from the Queen's Printer, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, V8V 4R6 at a cost of 45¢.

Province of British Columbia — Ministry of Consumer and Corporate Affairs

Too many workers are being taken for a ride.

It's happening far too often. Somebody forgets. Somebody doesn't pay attention. Somebody knows his job so well he could "do it blindfolded".

We see the results.

Job-related injuries and deaths continue to occur at a depressing rate. And there's one person who can do a lot to change that.

You.

If you see a job hazard, remove it or report it. If you should wear protective equipment, wear it. If you're not sure how to do something safely, ask. It's your life.

Your health.

It's up to you to protect yourself.

Provincial Court

Two of three men charged in a July 7 incident at the Oak Bay Marina in which a luxury cruiser valued at $300,000 was taken for a joyride, pleaded guilty to a lesser-included offence of taking a vessel without the owners' consent and were remanded Friday until Nov. 21 for a pre-sentence report and sentence.

Timothy Arthur Soutiere, 24, of 1189 Roslyn, and William Anthony Thistle, 25, of 930 Bank, appeared in Victoria provincial court before Judge Harold Alder and entered guilty pleas.

The two and Harvey Mark McLeod, 24, of 2320 Windsor, were originally charged with breaking and entering and two counts of theft over $200. They were charged with the theft of the 60-foot Mahalo-Nui belonging to Betty and Ron Douglas of 1881 Beach Drive, and a rubber Zodiac vessel, which belonged to two other people. McLeod is expected to enter a plea next Tuesday.

Stay of proceedings on the original charges were directed by crown counsel Nicholas Lang.

●

Gary Leigh Chatten, 20, of 2232 Windsor, who admitted to 11 charges Oct. 7, pleaded guilty to six more charges Friday, and was remanded until next Friday for sentencing.

Chatten entered guilty pleas Friday through defence lawyer Dean Wilson to a charge of indecent assault, driving while suspended, resisting a peace officer, theft over $200 (auto), possession of marijuana, and impersonation.

Crown counsel Donald Laughton entered stays of proceeding on charges of rape and obtaining transportation by fraud.

Wilson entered guilty pleas earlier this month to four counts of false pretences, two counts each of impaired driving and failing to appear for court, and one count each of attempted theft of an auto, prowling by night, and possession of marijuana.

Laughton also informed the court that three more charges were expected to be brought in from Calgary to be dealt with next week.

●

Two men who pleaded guilty to driving while their licences were suspended received 30-day sentences.

Robert Douglas Simpson, 23, of R.R. 2, Nanaimo, and John Peter Doucet, 29, of 1708 Newton, were both handed intermittent sentences.

Lang said Simpson was stopped behind a car at a traffic light at Foul Bay and Fort streets Oct. 16 and, when the light turned green, passed the vehicle in front of him on the inside, where there wasn't a second lane. When he was pulled over by Oak Bay police, Simpson admitted he didn't have a valid driver's licence. Lang told the court Simpson's licence was suspended for three months on July 26 for a hit and run accident in Vernon for which he was also fined $200.

Doucet, Lang said, went through a red light on Richmond Road and hit another car going through on a green light. When Saanich police arrived, Doucet said he didn't have a licence. He was also suspended for hit and run, fined $500 and wasn't due to get his licence back until Jan. 29, 1978, Lang said.

●

Thomas James Greig, 19, of 948 Esquimalt, was fined $300 after pleading guilty to a charge of dangerous driving.

Court was told he was speeding on Esquimalt Road in a 1971 Camaro on Oct. 16 at speeds over 70 mph when he hit a curb, rock wall and utility pole in the 900-block Esquimalt, causing $4,000 damage to his vehicle and $500 damage to the wall and pole.

Lang said Esquimalt police measured Greig's skid marks at 202 feet before the accident.

●

Two shoplifting convictions netted two heavy sentences, including a $200 fine.

Michael Douglas King, 19, no fixed address, pleaded guilty to stealing a carton of cigarettes Thursday from Woodward's, 3125 Douglas. When asked why by Alder, King replied: "I needed cigarettes."

Court was told King had a lengthy criminal history which included a conviction on July 8, 1977, for theft under $200 for which he received a suspended sentence and was placed on 10 months' probation. Lang drew to Alder's attention that King was still on probation when he committed the latest offence.

Alder sentenced King to six months in jail and recommended that the sentence be served at the Boulder Bay prison camp.

Lloyd David Conrad, 55, of the Yates Hotel, pleaded guilty to the same charge. Court was informed he took cigarettes as well as a Mother's Day card May 7 from Shopper's Drug Mart, 1302 Douglas. Value of the items was placed at $6.96. Lang also said Conrad received an absolute discharge after conviction on the same charge Nov. 23, 1972, in Ontario.

Alder levied the $200 fine, or in default, 14 days in jail.

Dry-rot deal costs $2,500

Erwin Beebe of Victoria bought himself more than a place to live when he acquired Hiyu, a 40-year-old former Columbia River gillnetter in November, 1973.

He didn't know it at the time, but he was also buying what B.C. Supreme Court Judge Jack Ruttan called "an advanced stage of dry rot," which Ruttan judged to be worth $2,500 in damages.

In a judgment received this week, the court failed to find the negligent or wilful misrepresentation alleged by Beebe. But Ruttan said the vendor, knowing the vessel to have had dry rot, should have mentioned it to Beebe: "it was his duty . . . to reveal all he knew of its past history."

Beebe had sued defendants Donald S. Robb of Sidney, the former boat owner, and marine surveyor H. C. R. Davis of Nanaimo, alleging that when he paid Robb $4,600 for Hiyu, it was misrepresented as being a sound boat.

Davis had conducted a survey of the boat at Robb's invitation, but Davis was not aware that Robb was selling the vessel and believed at the time that he needed the survey for a bank loan.

When Beebe found the rot he sought damages for depreciation and the cost of repairs to make the vessel habitable.

He also alleged breach of the Sale of Goods Act, fraudulent misrepresentation, breach of warranty and negligence in the giving of expert advice.

Ruttan said he failed to see any duty owing by Davis to Beebe, and therefore no liability for Beebe's loss. The Sale of Goods Act did not apply because it was limited to specific situations, and there was no negligent misstatement by Robb because he was not an expert or professional vendor.

The court, which had heard circumstances of the case in Victoria Sept. 19 and 20, noted that current value of the vessel was $3,500 and it was still habitable, as Beebe intended. Ruttan also ordered Beebe's court costs be paid.

Regions probe panel named

A five-member committee has been struck to study the role of regional governments in B.C.

Chairman of the committee will be Phil Farmer of Kaleden, an eight year chairman of the regional board of Okanagan-Similkameen. He was also one of the original members of the Municipal Finance Authority.

Joining him on the committee will be Rendina Hamilton, Penticton; Alfred Hood, Victoria; Daphne Phillips, Dawson Creek, and Ron Thompson, Galiano Island.

Executive secretary to the committee will be Dick Danby, former senior administrator for the UBC faculty of commerce.

The committee's terms of reference will allow it to seek briefs from interested parties and to hold public hearings throughout the province.

The committee is expected to report its findings to the minister in 1978.

Seatbelt squeeze on now

The warning period for wearing safety belts is over.

The provincial government announced Friday that it had advised all police officers in the province "to ensure compliance" from this point on.

Seat belts became mandatory in B.C. on Oct. 1 but police were advised to take it easy in the early going until drivers had become accustomed to the new law.

The authorities now feel the "learning" period has been long enough. The maximum fine is $100.

Trudeau backs raids as PQ office break-in bared

Sometimes the law 'has to be broken'

Canadian Press

OTTAWA — Police sometimes have to break the law in the interests of national security and the law may have to be changed to make their actions legal, Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday.

Trudeau's statement came on the heels of the revelation that in 1973 members of the RCMP broke into the offices of the Parti Quebecois and stole computer tapes bearing a party membership list and financial data.

At his weekly news conference after the raid was exposed, Trudeau said the right of the police in some cases to use wiretaps and search warrants may not be enough. They may have to go beyond tha law.

Conservatives and New Democrats alike condemned the RCMP break-in.

Solicitor-General Francis Fox had told the house earlier Friday that the RCMP had stolen the tapes from PQ offices in Montreal Jan. 9, 1973.

Conservative House leader Walter Baker challenged the government to broaden the mandate of a royal commission inquiry into illegal RCMP activities to "get at the question of ministerial responsibility."

"We will get beyond the investigation branch and the part that the solicitor-general and his colleagues played" in illegal acts, Baker told the Commons.

Fox said he has referred the matter to the attention of Mr. Justice David McDonald, head of the royal commission inquiry that Baker said should be permitted to explore how much federal politicians and senior civil servants knew about this incident among others.

Baker asked if there could be anyone "who believes that in a city like Ottawa, where the public service, national agencies such as the RCMP, cabinet ministers and the business community are always communicating, there was no knowledge in the upper levels of government."

Fox had said that senior RCMP officers did not learn about the 1973 operation until this week and that his two preceding ministers had not known of the incident either.

Baker's reaction: "There is no one who would believe that they could be so incompetent as not to know, and even if they were so incompetent, then they should not hold that office."

NDP leader Ed Broadbent said Friday that charges will have to be laid against RCMP officers involved in the break-in.

Broadbent, in Regina when the disclosure was made, said it was an extraordinary development with extremely serious implications.

"If the break-in was authorized by senior officials, and I assume it is judged to be that by the solicitor-general . . . then all those up the line would be liable to charges under the Criminal Code," Broadbent said.

Falling back on time

Eight-year-old Kim Fox of St. Thomas, Ont., falls back to demonstrate the fact that the clock 'falls back' in autumn. Sunday morning at 2 is the official time when clocks are turned back one hour in the annual return to standard time. B.C. Automobile Association is warning motorists to be extra cautious Monday, Halloween, when darkness will come earlier owing to return of standard time.

'Civil War'

Customs plays the game

WASHINGTON (CP) — Thanks to a change of heart by zealous customs officials, Canadian board-game fans will get a chance to try their luck in a U.S.-produced game on the political contest between separatist and anti-separatist forces.

Copies of the game were unloaded Friday at a Toronto-area wholesaler's depot after being shipped from Simulations Publications Inc. (SPI) of New York.

An SPI spokesman said, however, two advance copies of the game were seized by Canadian customs officials a week earlier under laws prohibiting the import of "treasonable, seditious, immoral or indecent" material. They were returned later.

Part of the problem may have been the game's title — "Canadian 'Civil War.'" As the quotes in the title suggest, the game is not SPI's usual simulation of military conflict, but rather a game of politics.

Two innovation's accompany it — 10,000-word summary of Canadian history and a 1,500-word summary in French of game rules.

The game divides political forces into four schools of thought, ranging from advocates of a stronger federal government to separatists, and gives each equal abilities to win over any Canadian interest group or geographic area.

As a seeming afterthought, game rules include provision for a highly-abstract, simplified, brief military "end-game," with a note by SPI designers that any such conflict is extremely unlikely.

Dutch multi-millionaire latest gang hostage

AMSTERDAM (AP) — Kidnappers seized a Dutch-Jewish multimillionaire Friday and the West German Red Army Faction claimed responsibility. A telephone caller demanded release of a jailed German anarchist and abdiction of Queen Juliana, apparently as ransom for the magnate's freedom.

The abductors struck as police throughout Europe hunted 16 Red Army Faction anarchists wanted in West Germany for the slayings of its federal prosecutor, a kidnapped industrialist and a banker.

Witnesses said about five persons overpowered Maurits Caransa, 61, as he left Amsterdam's Continental Club at 1:15 a.m. after a bridge game. They drove him away in a red car, leaving his briefcase on the sidewalk near his chauffeur-driven Rolls-Royce.

Nine hours later, a German-speaking caller told the Amsterdam newspaper Het Parool: "We are the Red Army Faction. We have Caransa. You will hear from us."

A Dutch-speaking caller told another Amsterdam paper, Telegraaf, the abductors were demanding the queen's abdication and release of Knut Folkerts, 25, a Red Army Faction member detained for the slaying of a Dutch policeman in Utrecht on Sept. 22.

Folkerts is wanted in Germany on charges of taking part in the April slaying of prosecutor Siegfried Buback and the July killing of banker Jergen Ponto. He is also sought for questioning in the Sept. 5 abduction of industrialist Hanns-Martin Schleyer, who was found dead last week.

Dutch police have been searching for several other German terrorists believed to be in the Netherlands. Police in Sweden said acquaintances of Ponto reported seeing one of his alleged slayers, Susan Albrecht, in Stockholm on Thursday night.

Caransa owns a chain of hotels and other real estate valued at more thn $40 million. He was born in Amsterdam of a poor Jewish family of Portuguese descent and made his fortune selling army surplus equipment after the Second World War.

His parents and both brothers perished in Nazi concentration camps.

Meanwhile West German parliament has opened debate on new anti-terrorist legislation by the liberal coalition government and a package of even stronger measures by the conservative Christian Democratic opposition.

The government wants tighter firearms laws, swifter trials for terrorists and exclusion from the courtroom of defence lawyers suspected of trying to help their clients escape.

The opposition presented bills that would end force-feeding of prisoners on hunger strikes, permit tapping of suspected terrorists' telephones and give the supreme court sole authority to try terrorists.

Former chancellor Willy Brandt, chairman of the ruling Social Democrats, urged parliament to "act moderately," saying existing anti-terrorist laws needed stricter enforcement. He said terrorists would eventually give up their struggle "because they have the people and particularly the workers against them."

Referendums

Uncertainty PM's aim

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday he plans to ask Parliament for the power to hold federal referendum on such things as Quebec independence and the constitution in order to create "a great deal of uncertainty."

And, he added at a news conference, "I'm glad I did."

Trudeau was replying to a query asking him to clarify confusion surrounding his call for a federal right to sound out opinions through referendums.

Tht prime minister announced during the policy-previewing throne speech debate last week that he intended to introduce referendum legislation in the House during the current session.

Then he followed up the announcement last Friday with suggestions that a federal referendum on national unity might be conducted only in Quebec. Such a referendum, he said, would be legally binding on Ottawa.

Trudeau indicated last week that the referendum legislation is part of government strategy against Parti Quebecois plans to hold a provincial referendum on independence.

At his news conference, he made it clear.

"I had in mind creating a great deal of uncertainty."

UN condemns Jew outposts

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The UN General Assembly censured Isreael on Friday for establishing Jewish settlements in occupied Arab territories and demanded an immediate end to such practices.

With Israel casting the only "no" vote, the assembly adopted 131-tol an Egyptian resolution declaring the settlements "have no legal validity and constitute a serious obstruction" to Middle East peace efforts.

The United States — Israel's chief ally, which voted against a border anti-Israeli measure last year — abstained. President Carter has called the settlements illegal and an obstacle to peace.

Canada voted for the resolution, as it had last year, but expressed some reservations about a couple of paragraphs including one that made settlement problems a responsibility of the 15-country Security Council.

Sixty-two countries in addition to Egypt sponsored the resolution denouncing the outposts in the West Bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza Strip. It was the first assembly censure of Israel for the settlements alone.

The resolution also asks Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to contact the Israeli government to ensure the document's "prompt implementation" and to report to the assembly by Dec. 31.

Israeli government officials said the resolution harms the prospects of peace in the Middle East.

Earlier, Prime Minister Menahem Begin said Israel would not consider itself bound by any UN resolution which condemns the establishment of Jewish settlements in the occupied territories.

Math doesn't count to too many teachers

VANCOUVER (CP) — There are too many mathematics teachers in B.C. with only a minimal background in the subject, says a University of British Columbia professor.

David Robitaille, who headed a provincial government survey of students and teachers, said this week that about 25 per cent of elementary math teachers had had no post-secondary math courses.

The study, which questioned 3,000 teachers and 100,000 students in grades 4, 8 and 12, found that about 14 per cent of the teachers had no mathematics training.

"One of the disturbing things we found in the teacher questionnaire was that at the Grade 8 level, a large proportion of teachers had a minimal background in math," Robitaille told a UBC class.

"Too many people are teaching math just to complete their schedules — they may be language arts or physical education teachers."

He said the student portion of the survey found that fewer girls took a full 12 years of math classes than boys. Grade 10 mathematics is the minimum required for graduation.

'The performance by the group that had taken only Math 10 was rather disturbing because they performed poorly on all portions of the test," said Robitaille. "Two-thirds of that group were girls and that came as a surprise to me."

He said girls made up 65 per cent of the group that dropped math after Grade 10, while boys comprised 60 per cent of the Math 12 group.

"The purpose of the assessment was to find out how the (school) system is doing, rather than how individual students or the teachers are doing," he said.

The survey found that students not born in Canada and whose mother tongue is not English did better than native Canadians on all parts of the grades 8 and 12 tests, but the opposite was true with the Grade 4 test.

THIS YEAR'S King Fisherman Contest ends Sunday at midnight. Weigh-in stations are asked to submit all entries promptly.

Delesalle stands eighth in world meet

OVIEDO, Spain (CP) — Nikolai Andrianov of the Soviet Union won the men's combined event while Philip Delesalle of Victoria, placed eighth Friday on the opening day of the World Cup gymnastics meet.

Andrianov scored 57.45 points to lead a Soviet Union sweep of the top three places in the combined. He was followed by Vladimir Markelov with 57.40 and Roman Tkatchev with 57.35. Delesalle scored 56.10.

The World Cup is an invitational event featuring the top 18 ranked men and women in world gymnastics.

Delesalle showed dramatic improvement as a world class gymnast with his eighth-place showing. In the 1976 Montreal Olympics he placed 22nd against virtually the same opposition.

Delesalle, who at 19 is the youngest of the 18 gymnasts to qualify for the meet, finished fourth in the parallel bars, fourth in the high bars, seventh in the pommel horse, sixth in the vault, 12th in the rings and 13th in the floor exercise.

He also qualified in the high bar, parallel bars and pommel horse for Sunday's finals in individual apparatus events.

"I think I have matured a lot since Montreal," he said. "I hadn't been competing very long internationally before the Olympics but I realized there that I could compete with the best in the world."

Hawks and Rockies win to tighten division race

Chicago Black Hawks paired Vancouver Canucks Friday and Colorado Rockies moved closer to their Smythe Division rivals in the National Hockey League.

Backup goaltender Mike Veisor turned in a sparkling performance as the Black Hawks downed Cleveland Barons 4-2 in a penalty filled game at Richfield, Ohio and the Rockies blasted visiting Washington Capitals 8-1 at Denver.

The win moved Chicago one point ahead of the Canucks while Colorado is two points back of Vancouver and plays the Canucks tonight at Pacific Coliseum.

Chicago took 46 of the 62 minutes in penalties handed out in the first period but the Barons were unable to take advantage and scored only once despite seven power-play opportunities.

The Barons moved into the lead midway through the period on a power-play marker by Mike Fidler but Chicago tied the score a few minutes later on a power-play goal by Darcy Rota.

Veisor stopped 23 shots in the first period but had to face only five shots in the second period and gave up a goal to Kris Manery which put Cleveland ahead 2-1.

Chicago rookie Ted Bulley tied the score again with his first NHL goal, a power-play shot at 11:19 of the second period. And Pierre Plante put the Black Hawks ahead to stay with just 2:27 left in the period as a shot by John Marks deflected off a tangle of players in front of the net and Plante deposited it behind goaltender Gilles Meloche.

In the opening period Chicago received eight minor penalties, two majors and two misconducts while Colorado received three minors, two majors and one misconduct.

At Denver the Capitols scored after just 11 seconds of play on Walt McKechnie's unassisted goal.

But from then on it was all Colorado. The Rockies eight goals equalled the highest total in their history and the win was their most lopsided ever.

Washington's lead lasted exactly 48 seconds as Gary Croteau scored at the 59-second mark. A short-handed goal by Brian Lefley at 9:18 gave Colorado the lead.

The Rockies dominated the second period, building their lead to 6-1 on goals by Paul Gardner, Croteau, Barry Beck and Tom Edur. Colorado recorded 20 shots on goal during the second period while Rockies goalkeeper Doug Favell had to stop only five Washington shots.

Colorado added to its total at 3:50 of the final period as Lefley scored his second goal of the night. Ron Andruff closed out the scoring.

Tonight's Colorado at Vancouver game will be telecast on channels 2 and 6, starting at 5 p.m.

Penticton awarded Games

The city of Penticton has been chosen over seven other bidders to host the first British Columbia Summer Games next August, recreation and conservation minister Sam Bawlf announced Friday.

Bawlf said the Penticton bid demonstrated tremendous enthusiasm and included a list of thousands of people who have already volunteered to help the Interior city stage the games.

The games, to be held from Aug. 16 to 19, were expected to attract 3,000 athletes in 25 different sports. An estimated 47,000 people will participate in playoffs leading to the games.

The provincial government will spend $180,000 on the games and provide another $70,000 to the host community for capital costs.

Meanwhile, the government will send out invitations to bid on the 1979 B.C. Winter Games to about two dozen communities in the next few days.

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Friday that he had granted permission for suspended Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner to participate in the hiring and selection of a new manager for the National League club.

The Braves, who finished in last place in the NL West during the 1977 season, are seeking to fill the managerial spot after firing Dave Bristol earlier this week.

Turner is under a one-year suspension until March 23, 1978, for tampering with Gary Matthews of San Francisco while the outfielder still was under contract to the Giants. In addition to the suspension, Turner was fined and the Braves had to forfeit their first-round choice in last June's free agent draft.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Redskins probably will have Joe Theismann at quarterback in place of veteran Bill Kilmer on Sunday when the injury-riddled club takes on the improved Philadelphia Eagles in an National Football League game here.

Theismann, a four-year man who played with Toronto Argonauts after a successful career at Notre Dame, has done most of the work in practice sessions this week, a clear indication that he will be at the helm although coach George Allen says he will not make a decision until game time.

Philadelphia coach Dick Vermeil said Ron Jaworski likely will start at quarterback for the Eagles despite a broken thumb on his passing hand. However, should he run into difficulty, Vermeil has veteran Roman Gabriel ready.

Eight clubs left in title search

Five teams from the Greater Victoria high-school field-hockey league are still in the running for the Vancouver Island Senior High championship following opening-day action Friday in the 12-school round-robin at Lansdowne Junior High.

Mount Douglas, Norfolk House, Spectrum, Oak Bay and Parklands were among the eight teams advancing to quarter-finals, set to open at 10:30 a.m. today. The remaining four teams fight it out in a consolation round starting at 9:30 a.m.

Also moving to quarter-final play are Brentwood, Nanaimo and Cowichan.

The teams fought it out within four sections of three teams each, with two entries in each advancing. In section A, Mount Douglas blanked Brentwood 2-0, as Sharon Laturnus and Heather Kirker scored goals, the duplicated the score against Alberni as Miss Laturnus and Michelle Morrison collected one goal each.

Brentwood blanked Alberni 1-0.

Cowichan won twice in section B, defeating Courtney 4-0, then came right back with a 1-0 decision over Norfolk House as Allison Jones scored. Jennifer Bland scored the only goal in Norfolk's 1-0 win over Courtney.

Spectrum got by Nanaimo 2-1 as Susan Jay gained a pair of goals with Kathy Marshall replying, then drew 0-0 with Victoria High. Nanaimo's 1-0 win over Vic High sent the Victoria entry to the consolation round in Section C action.

Oak Bay and Parklands emerged victorious in section D, dropping St. Margaret's to the consolations. Gail Hoskins and Chris Monaghan scored three goals apiece as Oak Bay trimmed St. Margaret's 4-0 and blanked Parklands 2-0.

Following today's consolation and quarter-final rounds, semi-finals are slated for 12:30 p.m. with finals at 2:30 p.m. The top four finishers represent the Island in the B.C. championships at Kelowna, Nov. 3-5.

Spectrum wins but ace stopped

The Greater Victoria high school soccer league has not dealt kindly with Spectrum this week.

First, Mount Douglas Thistles eliminated second-place Spectrum from the race for the first division title with a 3-1 victory Tuesday. Then Esquimalt Dockers stumped league-leading scorer Tim Achtzner in his bid to extend a personal scoring streak Friday.

Even though Spectrum, now 7-2-1, eked out a 1-0 decision over the Dockers, Achtzner saw his string snapped at seven games, during which he pumped in 15 goals. His total of 18 tops all league scorers.

Pat Going scored Spectrum's lone goal Friday, after watching his scoring string of seven games go by the boards Tuesday against the Thistles.

The Spectrum-Esquimalt affair was the only first-division game of the day but Oak Bay Bays dumped Parklands Panthers 5-3 in second-division action.

Graeme Tolson, Paul Docherty, Ken Martin, Eddie Lowe and Mark Keith divided scoring for the Bays, who lead division II by a healthy four-points.

Reynolds Roadrunners and Belmont Braves scrapped to a 1-1 deadlock, with both goals coming in the first half. Brian Dominique converted a penalty kick for Roadrunners' goal and Bill Merriman replied for Belmont, slamming a team-mate's net-front cross into pay dirt.

The draw moved Reynolds into a third-place tie with the Panthers, the first time this season Reynolds has departed the cellar. Reynolds picked up its first win of the season Tuesday against Parklands

Caudwell, Collins claim top speedway awards

By REG REYNOLDS

For Jim Caudwell and Bob Collins Friday night was a night to enjoy the hard-earned spoils of winning seasons.

The veteran Victoria drivers carried off a big share of the silverware during the Vancouver Island Track Racing Association's annual awards banquet at the Empress Hotel.

They were the leading drivers in the Island championship series all season and were duly honored for their efforts. Caudwell, who finished second to Collins in the series standings, received four awards including the prestigious "driver of the year" award for the second straight year.

Collins was called to the podium three times and got his most satisfying reward from the Western Speedway fans who named him the most popular driver.

Considered one of the more gentlemanly drivers, Caudwell was honored by his peers in being named winner of the Dick Willoughby sportsmanship trophy and he added the super-stock championship race trophy and the best-looking super-stock award to his long list of honors.

Caudwell started racing at Western in 1967 and earned his first major award that year capturing stock-car "rookie-of-the-year" honors. He graduated to super-stocks in 1970, retired in 1972 but returned in 1975.

Collins, who was driver-of-the-year in 1975 and 1969 and sportsmanship winner in 1969, picked up the Island championship trophy for super-stocks and the Corby Cup, which is presented annually to the driver (any class) winning the most main events.

One of the most consistent performers over the past decade Collins, who is always in the top 10 at the end of the season, introduced the "pony cars" to the super-stock class this season and campaigned his 1968 Cougar to his first points championship.

Island hobby-stock champion John Robillard of Campbell River took the first major award up-Island in some years when he was named hobby-stock driver-of-the-year.

VITRA president Dan Wade was named "member-of-the-year" and was awarded the President's Cup. Russ Blackstock was selected "mechanic-of-the-year," Dave Johnson of Nanaimo captured the super-stock top rookie award and Pat Phillips of Victoria was named the outstanding hobby-stock rookie.

Johnson drove a '64 Ford to eighth place in the Island series while Pat Phillips piloted a '57 Pontiac to ninth-place finish.

The best-looking hobby-stock award went to Ken Alexander of Duncan while George Shillito of Victoria was picked for having the best-looking crew.

Victoria's Al Miller took home the hobby-stock championship race trophy and Alexander also received the promotors trophy.

Pats share east lead, Broncos top division

Regina Pats grabbed a share of first place in the Western Canada Hockey League's Eastern Division Friday night but Lethbridge Broncos broke free from a two-way tie for the top in the Central Division, taking first place all for themselves.

Darryl Sutter scored two goals before 4,001 fans in Lethbridge to lead the Broncos past Medicine Hat Tigers, 4-2. In Regina, the Pats rode a two-goal performance by Larry Ell to a 6-4 victory over Flin Flon Bombers and in the only other game, Calgary Wranglers downed Saskatoon Blades, 4-2.

Sutter scored what proved to be the winner at 16:20 of the second period, then added an insurance goal into an empty net with five seconds remaining in the game.

The Broncos outshot the Tigers 45-22, coming back from a 1-0 first-period deficit to lead 3-2 after two periods.

Lethbridge now stands two points ahead of second-place Billings Bighorns in the Central Division and four points in front of the third-place Tigers.

The Pats' victory moved them into a tie with the Bombers, each with 18 points.

A crowd of 2,117 home-town fans went away disappointed in Saskatoon as the Blades, already 12 points behind Regina and Flin Flon with a 3-10 record, allowed Calgary to go ahead 1-0 and 3-1 by periods.

Dave Morrison's two goals paced the Wranglers, who still inhabit the Central Division cellar.

CHICAGO (AP) — Veteran knuckleball pitcher Wilbur Wood signed a one-year contract to continue with Chicago White Sox, the American League baseball club announced Friday.

Hoop champions cease to exist

Home Lumber, a team that won the national senior A women's basketball title for the last two years and was a major power in the sport for a decade, is disbanding.

Coach Jack Lusk said this week the players made the decision at a recent meeting for "a variety of reasons . . . but mainly retirement."

The team, which played under a variety of names including the Maplettes, the Centennials, Western Homes and Home Lumber, took the national title six times, including four of the last six years.

The team relied basically on the same nucleus of players, including Mary Coutts, a member of all six senior championship teams as well as a member of a junior title-winning team. She is a former member of Canada's national team.

Taking part in five of the wins were former national team members Tiana Morris and Angie Dobie, the latter commuting from Nanaimo for practices and games.

Other team members include Lorna McHattie, Diedre Freethy, Rose Jossul, Donna Blackstock and Lorraine Tutte.

Lusk emphasized that sponsorship had no bearing on the team's decision, and said the Jawl brothers, owners of Home Lumber, were taken aback by the decision.

George Harknett will be wearing two hats today at Sandown Park — one as vice-president of Capital City Turf Club and the other as owner of two of the top thoroughbreds on the nine-race card.

The Victoria breeder sends Devil Darren out in the second race and presents his outstanding four-year-old filly Major Hike, in the feature seventh, the six-and-a-half furlongs Times Speed Handicap.

Major Hike won the event in 1976 and faces four challengers, although 11 were nominated earlier in the week.

On Friday, Victoria-owned Lee's Craig Seven and Saucy Verdict were scratched, leaving Rusty Scupper, Pesty Kid, Pickle Pie and Little John Brown, winner of the Colonist Handicap last weekend, to battle Major Hike.

It's believed to be the first time in recent history that three of five starters in a major stakes race at Sandown are Victoria-owned.

Friday's Formchart, Page 47

Pickle Pie, second in the Colonist, is owned by Derek Green, a Fraser McColl, owner of Lee's Craig Seven, also owns Pesty Kid.

"I'm sure that's a first," Harknett said Friday after the completion of a highly-entertaining eight-race card.

Harknett was disappointed that Lee's Craig Seven was scratched as he felt the four-year-old would set the pace in the $2,500-added event for three-year-olds and up.

"Major Hike will probably run off the pace and let the front-runners drop back to her," Harknett said.

Major Hike, purchased from Jack Diamond in 1976, is the top earner for Harknett, bringing home $26,635 this season from competing at Exhibition Park in Vancouver and Longacres in Seattle. She won four of 10 starts, including the $11,150 Cover Girl 'Cap in Vancouver, placed once, and was out of the money on only four occasions.

"We plan to run her once more at Sandown this meet then ship her to Santa Anita to campaign on the turf course," Harknett said. He added he would like to have the Wayne Isbister-trained filly compete for one more year then retire her for breeding purposes.

Major Hike has had only two starts at six-and-a-half furlongs this year, winning both by a nose, on May 14 and May 30 in Vancouver.

Rusty Scupper, owned by R. J. Bennett of Kelowna, has had a similar year while Little John Brown, Pickle Pie and Pesty Kid have had more starts at the shorter route.

Thursday grading of the Sidney oval left it in fine condition Friday and five of the eight winners went wire-to-wire on a fast track.

Dale Manning, who will ride Major Hike today, piloted Charlie George to a four-length victory in the feature seventh race, the United Way Appeal Lottery Purse. Scornful Pride came from well back to grab place money and Major's Dream was third.

The 4-7 combination returned the highest payoff of the day, $84.30 for a $2 quinella.

In the final race of the afternoon, Jesus Munoz booted Hardly Fair to a nine-length victory — the widest winning margin in the first six days of the 19-day meet.

The 2530 fans wagered $175,078, only $1,000 less than the corresponding day last year on a nine-race program.

BREAKAGE . . . Winner of the $1,000 top prize in the United Way Lottery was Irene Hungle of Shawnigan Lake . . . Racing-director Aubrey Davies expects several thoroughbreds to arrive here on the weekend, boosting the population at the track to about 305 . . . Today's nine-race card starts with first post parade at 12:30 . . . there should be fewer problems at the mutuels today as Doug Mitten and his crew are hitting mid-season form . . . Go Peg Go has been confirmed for the Remembrance Day feature . . . Bird of Courage and the Harknett-Bowman owned Ole Par were second and third in the Times Handicap last year . . . Munoz won twice Friday to move into a tie in the jockey standings with Alan Cuthbertson and Danny Williams, all with six victories.

Louis has aneurism

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Joe Louis, hospitalized last Saturday after being stricken with chest pains at his home, was flown late Friday to Houston for specialized treatment.

Officials at Sunrise Medical Centre, where Louis spent six days in the coronary care unit, said his ailment will be treated by noted heart surgeon Michael DeBakey.

Louis, 63, is suffering from a dissecting aortic aneurism. An aneurism is a weakness in the wall of an artery. The aneurism is believed to be in Louis' midsection, near his spine.

Hospital officials here also reported that Louis' condition improved Friday.

Vikings top dataTech

University of Victoria Vikings turned on the power in the second half to whip Victoria DataTech 102-77 in an exhibition men's basketball game at McKinnon Gymnasium.

Newcomer Rene Dolcetti, a transfer from Laurentian University, scored 22 points to pace the Vikings, who outscored their Senior "A" opponents 59-32 following the break.

Ian Hyde-Lay scored 16 points, Gary Budd added 12 and Ted Anderson and Bill Loos contributed 10 each for the Vikings.

Bob Burrows led DataTech with 24 points, Mike Bishop scored 13 and ex-Viking Jim Duddridge hit for 12.

The teams play a return engagement tonight at 8:30 in McKinnon Gym.

Trios earn 4-4 tie with Legion

Rob Wilson scored at 3:01 of the third period Friday night to give Oak Bay Trios a 4-4 tie with Esquimalt Legion in a South Island Junior "B" Hockey League game before 266 fans at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

After Trios took a 2-1 first-period lead on goals by Ed Garic and Brent Udel, Esquimalt came back to outscore Oak Bay 3-1 in the second period.

Brian Matvenko collected Oak Bay's remaining goal, while Terry Parsons sparked Oak Bay with two goals. Murray Allen and Gary Bechtold completed Esquimalt scoring.

Pau Vaeson steered away 40 shots in the Oak Bay net, while his counterpart Ron Allan saved 38 shots.

The tie enabled Esquimalt to move to a first-place tie with idle Saanich Braves, while Oak Bay moved to a tie for second with Fuller Lake Flyers.

Case of unusual legal representation

Colonist Correspondent

DUNCAN — The question of when one should be on the voters' list, or the case of the unusual legal representation, caused quite a stir at Cowichan Valley Regional Board offices Friday.

The strange turn of events came to light when an application for nomination papers from Mark K. Locan, university professor, was turned down and he was told he could not file because he was not on the voters' list.

The regional district office told him he could apply to a provincial judge for a court order and if successful, be placed on the voters' list and file papers.

Locan appeared at the board office Friday with the necessary court order and was placed on the voters' list.

The unusual and bizarre turn of events then came to light. According to board administrator Ralph Kier, the regional board knew nothing of Locan's court appearance and apparently a lawyer had been appointed by someone at the court to represent the regional board without the regional board's knowledge, and the court order was granted in Locan's favor.

Kier said the board now is consulting with its lawyers to see what can be done in this case.

North Island's Schoen Lake is part of beautiful new park

Northern Vancouver Island got a new provincial park Friday when Schoen Lake and 8,170 hectares (20,243 acres), surrounding it were declared the Schoen Lake Provincial Park.

In addition to the new Class A park, 4,172 hectares (8,745 acres) of parkland were added to the northwest corner of Strathcona Provincial Park.

The creation of the new park ends part of the long-standing dispute on the use of land in the Tsitika - Schoen region. All of the forest in the Tsitika-Schoen Valley have been under a moratorium for several years while the decision between conservation and logging was made.

Friday's announcement from Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf and Environment Minister James Nielsen noted that the forest in the Schoen Creek area would be released from the moratorium. About 9,300 acres are involved.

A further 84,839 acres will remain under the moratorium until an integrated management plan is approved.

Bawlf said creation of the park is the culmination of "an interest which began in 1959 when the provincial parks branch first examined the area and was made aware of its scenic and recreational potential."

The new park is part of the Insular Mountain Range with Schoen Lake lying at an elevation of 400 metres surrounded by forests and mountains, the highest of which is Mount Schoen at 1,862 metres.

Access to the park will be from the new North Island Highway now under construction. The park boundary near the west end of the lake is 12 kilometres east of Woss Camp.

Access to the eastern section of the park will be by a new logging road on the east side of Adam River.

"Visitors will find an area of virtually unspoiled wilderness," Bawlf said. "They will find hiking, camping, fishing and mountain climbing areas easily accessible. Rudimentary trails and camping facilities are already in place."

Bawlf said there were no definite plans for development of the new park but that improvements would be made as use demanded.

The addition to Strathcona Park basically comprises the inclusion of Gold Lake and the wilderness area surrounding it. It has been under consideration as a natural extension of Strathcona since 1969.

Within the new area are alpine meadows, mountain landscapes and natural grazing for the Roosevelt elk. Total size of Strathcona now is 231,384 hectares.

Campbell River's mayor flays overcrowded court

By JACK FOSSUM
Colonist Correspondent

CAMPBELL RIVER — Unless the provincial government does something about overcrowded court facilities in Campbell River, the judges may find themselves sitting on the bench out on the street one of these days.

The municipally-owned public safety building which houses the RCMP detachment and the courtroom is bursting at the seams. "The housing of our police force is our No. 1 priority. If we have to put the courts out in the street, that's a provincial worry," Mayor Tom Barnett, a longtime former MP, said at a recent council meeting when the matter came up for discussion.

Both the attorney-general and the minister of public works will be sent letters requesting immediate action on design and construction of a new Campbell River courthouse.

The lack of adequate court facilities was brought to the attention of the provincial cabinet when it met in Courtenay and Campbell River May 26, but to date nothing has been done about it.

The RCMP detachment is having increasing difficulties maintaining full operating efficiency due to lack of office space. The court facilities servicing northern Vancouver Island have been housed in the municipal public safety building since 1970.

In recent years it has become increasingly apparent that the building is no longer capable of meeting the needs of a rapidly expanding judicial system.

Court facilities have overflowed to the extent that court sittings are often held in the nearby municipal hall council chamber and the sheriff's office and probation facilities have had to find new locations in the downtown area.

"The only direct response we have had from the government is a letter from the facilities management unit of the attorney-general's ministry agreeing that a downtown location is desirable and stating that a study is underway," the mayor said in his report to council.

The courthouse building request was referred to a new corporate structure, the B.C. Building Corp., and council is growing impatient waiting for it to study the problem.

In his brief to the cabinet, Barrett stated lack of courthouse space is a source of inconvenience to the judiciary, court and administrative staff, crown counsel, lawyers and the public.

Campbell River should be the site of the next county court seat because the service area for its judicial system has been growing at a faster rate than the remainder of Vancouver Island, the mayor's brief said.

A possible site for the new courthouse is the Elm Street elementary school playground, now the location of North Island College. The attorney-general's department could negotiate with the school board for the land, which is no longer used as a playground, Barnett suggests.

Captain Cook celebration ideas include west coast cruise ship

By JOHN HENDERSON
Colonist Correspondent

PORT ALBERNI — A committee called together for the purpose will make a firm proposal to the city of Port Alberni that it participate in the Captain Cook bi-centennial celebrations next summer by whatever means seem appropriate.

To this end the committee will recommend that the city apply for the provincial grant of 20 cents per capita for the purpose, to be matched by an equal amount by the city itself, and appoint the committee as the co-ordinator of planning to oversee the spending of the funding.

To date the committee, called together by city Alderman George McKnight in his capacity as bicentennial representative for the Alberni-Clayoquot Regional District, is comprised of city council members and representatives of the chamber of commerce, the community arts council, the museum and historic society and others.

Its eventual makeup will be dependent upon which of the groups in the city takes an active role in the celebrations.

McKnight opened a recent meeting of the group with the suggestion that "the ball is in our court" to decide upon whether the area would observe the bicentennial celebrations, and in what manner.

There was general agreement that as the major port on the west coast of the Island the city should mark the occasion as prominently as possible.

During discussion of various alternatives, the meeting came up with at least three positive suggestions for the over-all celebration of the Cook bicentenary to be forwarded in a letter to the provincial tourist bureau.

First was to put in service some type of medium-sized cruise ship which could run between Victoria and the Nootka Sound site of Captain Cook's landing, calling in at Port Alberni and other ports, during the entire summer.

Second was to have at least two of the "tall ships" which the province has indicated it will have visit B.C. during the event call in at such ports in the province as Alberni so that local festivities can be built around their visit.

Finally, the committee recommended that a replica of a ship of Captain Cook's general period be built to visit up and down the entire West Coast of the continent to build interest in the bicentenary and the province.

Other discussions indicated that it was felt that it would be sound to look at what could be developed in the marine park currently being created at the foot of Argyle Street on the city's waterfront.

City Ald. Jim Robertson confirmed that the park would be completed by next spring but that no buildings had as yet been planned for it. Suggestions from a theatre tent to a replica of the Spanish ship Santiago were made on terms of uses to which the park could be put as part of the celebrations.

One item which the city already has at hand for a part in the event is publication of a book on the Nootka Indians, which has been recently completed by the local museum with 2,000 copies of the book printed. An even wider use of it would be incorporated in the planning.

Final item recommended by the committee was that the chairman immediately write all the service clubs and native Indian bands in the community inviting their participation and setting up another meeting.

Duke Point supply

Water body hoping

NANAIMO — The Greater Nanaimo Water Board is hoping to have its recommendations ready by Nov. 7 on the question of water supply for the proposed Duke Point development.

The water board met Thursday night to discuss the question of water supply for the proposed multi-million dollar port-industrial development

Much of Thursday's meeting was held in-camera, as the board considered the question of well versus watershed supplies and private versus public systems.

City council has asked the water board for its views on the water supply for the complex, being developed by the B.C. Development Corporation.

The city must decide if it wants to get involved in possible wells for the Duke Point water, or supply water from its Nanaimo River watershed. It can also decide to stay entirely out of the water supply, and let BCDC drill its own wells.

To be examined are the city's future water needs, and the current upgrading of the city water system, including the staged construction of a second water main from city reservoir supplies.

Promotion to Big Apple

Islander hits it big

PORT ALICE — John Saarma, a former Port Alice resident, has been named manager of technical and process control in the manufacturing technical staffs department of ITT Rayonier Inc.

For his new assignment, Saarma has transferred to Rayonier's executive offices in New York from the company's pulp mill in Port Alice, where he has been mill superintendent.

Saarma, 40 joined the Rayonier organization in 1962 as a process engineer at Port Alice. He became shift superintendent in 1965 and was promoted to technical superintendent in 1968.

The new technical and process control manager received a Bachelor of Applied Science degree from the University of British Columbia in Vancouver in 1962.

Saarma is a senior member of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association and a member of the Association of Professional Engineers of the province of British Columbia.

Tourist picture looking brighter

NANAIMO — Figures kept by the Nanaimo Tourist Bureau confirm that this year was a better one for tourists than 1976, but the chamber of commerce warns that it believes ferry strikes have a lasting and damaging effect on the tourist industry.

The bureau, in downtown Nanaimo, is run by the Chamber, with funds supplied by the city. About 20,000 tourists visited the bureau from May to September this year.

More than 1,200 visited the tourist information booth installed at Northbrook Mall.

But, said the bureau in its report, it estimates "that it takes about three years to get back the flow of tourist traffic lost during a transportation shutdown."

The bureau also had a word of praise for Minister of Travel Grace McCarthy.

"The bureau feels that her department has done much to assist tourism and the Island has had its fair share of publicity."

Looking ahead to next year, the bureau has announced that a hospitality seminar is planned for Nanaimo next spring. It is expecting a good tourist year for 1978, with Simtar Lines having announced that the cruise ship Fairsea will make Nanaimo a port of call during the summer, and with plans being made for the Captain Cook bicentenary.

Impact level sought on RCMP program

COURTENAY — A questionnaire to be circulated to teachers and students in Courtenay school will attempt to determine the effect of RCMP programs in the schools.

Constable Don Tonks, crime prevention unit, Courtenay RCMP detachment, sought and received school board approval.

Last year discussion classes, lectures on specific points of interest and involvement by Tonks in physical education classes, were all part of his program.

The questionnaire is an attempt to receive input from teachers and students in regard to this year's program.

Last year RCMP guard dogs demonstrated obedience for students while the dogmaster explained the types of work the dogs were called upon to perform.

This year, with an RCMP helicopter and a "batmobile" in the area, it is hoped to have demonstrations of each.

With approval for the circulation of the questionnaire, came compliments for the work done by Tonks. Trustees agreed the constable had bettered communication and relations between local youths and police.

Byelection needed, administrator says

NANAIMO — City administrator Ted Chace has confirmed that a byelection should be held to fill Nanaimo's sixth seat on the Nanaimo Regional Board.

Chace said that he has discussed the situation with provincial municipal affairs department officials, who told him they believed a byelection was necessary to fill the seat.

The Nanaimo Regional Board earlier this week refused to seat Ald. Nelson Allen, whom council had appointed to fill the seat.

Regional board chairman Paul Smith said that the board's lawyers and the municipal affairs department said the seat could only be filled with an election.

Allen said at the regional board meeting that he was prepared to run for the seat, but that he felt the byelection might not be necessary. He said some people were opposed to the expense of a byelection.

Allen placed sixth among elected aldermen in the race for regional board seats in last year's city elections.

If Allen is the only candidate for the seat, a poll would not be necessary, and he would be declared elected by acclamation. The other two city aldermen, who are not regional directors, Sandy MacKay and Alex Ferguson, plus Mayor Frank Ney, would also be eligible to run for the seat.

'Too-old' apprentice appealing

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man who at age 31 was declared too old to finish a pipefitting apprenticeship program launched a British Columbia Supreme Court chambers application this week to have the ruling overturned.

Russell Burns, now 33, of Courtenay, had successfully completed a pre-apprenticeship plumbing and steamfitting program when he was hired as an apprentice plumber with a Campbell River firm on in August, 1975.

But when a plumbers' union representative learned Burns was on the job, but not registered with the Piping Industry Apprenticeship Board, he was asked to apply. Registration was denied and he lost his job.

After receiving a complaint by Burns, the B.C. Human Rights director, Kathleen Ruff, ordered a board of inquiry investigation.

The board found that Burns was refused entry into the apprenticeship program because he did not fall within the age guidelines, 18 to 25 years, but ruled the union not guilty of discrimination.

Stephen Keleher, counsel for Burns and the Human Rights director, told Mr. Justice H. E. Hutcheon that the PIAB should be held subject to Section 9 of the code which outlaws discrimination by "trade union, employers' association or occupational association."

Hutcheon reserved decision.

Immersion plans heard soon

French program hailed

By DEREK RHIND
Colonist Correspondent

DUNCAN — A group of Cowichan Valley parents is meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Quamichan junior high school to discuss a French immersion program for School District 65.

Guest speaker will be Rita Fillingham, a teacher in the Coquitlam French Immersion program. Henry Doherty, French co-ordinator for the Greater Victoria school district and a former Duncan teacher, will also be on hand to briefly outline the immersion program in Victoria.

Everyone interested in the Cowichan valley is invited to attend.

Pat Hocker, spokesman for the Concerned Parents Group, said Friday that "total French immersion for English-speaking children was first begun in 1965 and has been rapidly expanding ever since. Most commonly, it is instituted at the kindergarten level and for the first two years, the language of instruction is French. English subjects are introduced at about the Grade 2 level."

The children quickly and effortlessly learn the second language because they are unhampered by self-consciousness and love the songs, games and repetition that make learning easier.

By the end of kindergarten, they can speak in simple sestences and understand the teacher's instructions.

She said that immersion children experience a slight lag in acquiring English reading skills, word knowledge and language arts since they have been learning another language and are not introduced to English until Grade 2, but they quickly catch up and by Grade 3 or Grade 4 at the latest are equal in all subjects to their English counterparts.

As well as getting "two languages for the price of one," a common experience in many European countries, immersion children have been found to be more creative than their counterparts in English classes.

In one study, it was found that immersion children in their sixth year were able to fully indentify not only with their own ethnic group, but with Canadian and European French groups as well.

Many investigators feel, too, that learning another language helps develop an awareness of communication skills in mother tongue.

Ms. Hocker said the success of French immersion is due for the most part to the positive reaction of the parents and children involved.

Last year there were three such programs in B.C. This year the number has increased to six. Nanaimo started immersion in September and has two kindergarten classes; Victoria has had the program for five years and now is up to grade 4.

Immersion can be started at a later level and is being done successfully in grades 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10 in other parts of Canada.

Shopping centre discussed

NANAIMO — Four hours of work this week by city council's shopping centre committee moved the proposed Woodgrove Shopping Centre land-use contract from draft number six to draft number seven.

City planning director Bill Mackay said that the committee, with the city's solicitor and the solicitor for Woodgrove, worked until 11:30 p.m. going over the land-use contract clause by clause, making and suggesting changes.

Results of the meeting should be incorporated into the land-use contract in a week or two, and the committee is hopeful of having the land-use contract ready for council's consideration within the next month, Mackay said.

Woodgrove, a proposed regional shopping centre costing about $30 million, would be located at the corner of the Island Highway and Aulds Road, north of Nanaimo.

Twins veto Mauch's move to Angels

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Twins president Calvin Griffith has confirmed that he rejected a request by manager Gene Mauch to leave the Twins and manage California Angels.

"Mauch talked to a number of people, and then he came up to my room during the World Series and wanted out of his contract," Grifiith said "He wanted to go to California."

"I told Gene that I didn't give a damn, that I didn't think it would be good to have a manager who felt he would rather be somewhere else."

"But I also told him I would have to go back to Minnesota to talk to the rest of the club officials, to talk to the family and find out how they felt about it.

"Mauch approached Gene Autry (California owner) and he approached my son Clark (a Twins vice-president) before he talked to me. My first reaction was to let him go, but why should I be a nice guy?

"Why should I lose a manager who everybody raves about, who is popular with the fans here? I talked it over with the family. We decided that since we have him under contract, we want Mauch as our manager. After all, we gave into a lot of special considerations to get Gene signed to a contract. Three years is something he wanted."

Griffith told Autry Wednesday that he was refusing permission for the Angels to talk contract with Mauch.

The Twins' president said Mauch, former Montreal Expos manager, wanted to move to the Angels for two reasons — proximity to his Palm Springs, Calif., home and a belief that the Twins would not be able to sign star outfielders Larry Hisle and Lyman Bostock.

The two players have played out their options and will go through the re-entry draft Nov. 4, but the Twins will continue to try to sign them.

"Mauch agreed that I had made very good offers to both Hisle and Bostock, but I also think he is pessimistic about our chances without them," said Griffith.

Romania appeals

LONDON (Reuter) — Romania has appealed Ilie Nastase's ban from the 1978 Davis Cup tennis competition. A Davis Cup newsletter said the appeal probably would be heard in Paris in January. Nastase was reported to the Davis Cup committee for allegedly using "very base and vulgar language during a Cup tie against Britain in their European zone match.

LANDLORDS & LEGAL RENT INCREASES.

To ensure a rent increase is legal under the new Residential Tenancy Act, a notice of rent increase, given during November or after, is valid only if:

(1) the notice is given on the form provided by the Rent Review Commission, and,

(2) a copy of the form is submitted to the Rent Review Commission within 7 days of notifying the tenant.

(3) a prospective tenant is advised of any outstanding notice.

These 3 stipulations apply to all residential tenancies, including those exempt from the 7% rent increase limit.

Rents must be rounded to the nearest dollar for all increases taking effect on or after March 1, 1978.

Charges for additional occupants must be discontinued as of January 1, 1978. A landlord who may experience financial hardship as a result of this discontinuance must apply to the Rent Review Commission before January 1, 1978 to retain the charges.

Landlords may apply to the Rent Review Commission at any time for an increase greater than 7%.

Copies of the new Residential Tenancy Act are available from the Queen's Printer, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, V8V 4R6 at a cost of 45¢.

Too many workers are being taken for a ride.

It's happening far too often. Somebody forgets. Somebody doesn't pay attention. Somebody knows his job so well he could "do it blindfolded".

We see the results.

Job-related injuries and deaths continue to occur at a depressing rate. And there's one person who can do a lot to change that.

You.

If you see a job hazard, remove it or report it. If you should wear protective equipment, wear it. If you're not sure how to do something safely, ask. It's your life.

Your health. It's up to you to protect yourself.

Regions probe panel named

A five-member committee has been struck to study the role of regional governments in B.C.

Chairman of the committee will be Phil Farmer of Kaleden, an eight year chairman of the regional board of Okanagan-Similkameen. He was also one of the original members of the Municipal Finance Authority.

Joining him on the committee will be Rendina Hamilton, Penticton; Alfred Hood, Victoria; Daphne Phillips, Dawson Creek, and Ron Thompson, Galiano Island.

Executive secretary to the committee will be Dick Danby, former senior administrator for the UBC faculty of commerce.

The committee's terms of reference will allow it to seek briefs from interested parties and to hold public hearings throughout the province.

The committee is expected to report its findings to the minister in 1978.

Seatbelt squeeze on now

The warning period for wearing safety belts is over.

The provincial government announced Friday that it had advised all police officers in the province "to ensure compliance" from this point on.

Seat belts became mandatory in B.C. on Oct. 1 but police were advised to take it easy in the early going until drivers had become accustomed to the new law.

The authorities now feel the "learning" period has been long enough. The maximum fine is $100.

Trudeau backs raids as PQ office break-in bared

Sometimes the law 'has to be broken'

Canadian Press

OTTAWA — Police sometimes have to break the law in the interests of national security and the law may have to be changed to make their actions legal, Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday.

Trudeau's statement came on the heels of the revelation that in 1973 members of the RCMP broke into the offices of the Parti Quebecois and stole computer tapes bearing a party membership list and financial data.

At his weekly news conference after the raid was exposed, Trudeau said the right of the police in some cases to use wiretaps and search warrants may not be enough. They may have to go beyond tha law.

Conservatives and New Democrats alike condemned the RCMP break-in.

Solicitor-General Francis Fox had told the House earlier Friday that the RCMP had stolen the tapes from PQ offices in Montreal Jan. 9, 1973.

Conservative House leader Walter Baker challenged the government to broaden the mandate of a royal commission inquiry into illegal RCMP activities to "get at the question of ministerial responsibility."

"We will get beyond the investigation branch and the part that the solicitor-general and his colleagues played" in illegal acts, Baker told the Commons.

Fox said he has referred the matter to the attention of Mr. Justice David McDonald, head of the royal commission inquiry that Baker said should be permitted to explore how much federal politicians and senior civil servants knew about this incident among others.

Baker asked if there could be anyone "who believes that in a city like Ottawa, where the public service, national agencies such as the RCMP, cabinet ministers and the business community are always communicating, there was no knowledge in the upper levels of government."

Fox had said that senior RCMP officers did not learn about the 1973 operation until this week and that his two preceding ministers had not known of the incident either.

Baker's reaction: "There is no one who would believe that they could be so incompetent as not to know, and even if they were so incompetent, then they should not hold that office."

NDP leader Ed Broadbent said Friday that charges will have to be laid against RCMP officers involved in the break-in.

Broadbent, in Regina when the disclosure was made, said it was an extraordinary development with extremely serious implications.

"If the break-in was authorized by senior officials, and I assume it is judged to be that by the solicitor-general . . . then all those up the line would be liable to charges under the Criminal Code," Broadbent said.

Referendums

Uncertainty PM's aim

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday he plans to ask Parliament for the power to hold federal referendums on such things as Quebec independence and the constitution in order to create "a great deal of uncertainty."

And, he added at a news conference, "I'm glad I did."

Trudeau was replying to a query asking him to clarify confusion surrounding his call for a federal right to sound out opinions through referendums.

The prime minister announced during the policy-previewing throne speech debate last week that he intended to introduce referendum legislation in the House during the current session.

Then he followed up the announcement last Friday with suggestions that a federal referendum on national unity might be conducted only in Quebec. Such a referendum, he said, would be legally binding on Ottawa.

Trudeau indicated last week that the referendum legislation is part of government strategy against Parti Quebecois plans to hold a provincial referendum on independence.

At his news conference, he made it clear.

"I had in mind creating a great deal of uncertainty."

'Civil War'

Customs plays the game

WASHINGTON (CP) — Thanks to a change of heart by zealous customs officials, Canadian board-game fans will get a chance to try their luck in a U.S.-produced game on the political contest between separatist and anti-separatist forces.

Copies of the game were unloaded Friday at a Toronto-area wholesaler's depot after being shipped from Simulations Publications Inc. (SPI) of New York.

An SPI spokesman said, however, two advance copies of the game were seized by Canadian customs officials a week earlier under laws prohibiting the import of "treasonable, seditious, immoral or indecent" material. They were returned later.

Part of the problem may have been the game's title — "Canadian 'Civil War.'" As the quotes in the title suggest, the game is not SPI's usual simulation of military conflict, but rather a game of politics.

Two innovation's accompany it — 10,000-word summary of Canadian history and a 1,500-word summary in French of game rules.

The game divides political forces into four schools of thought, ranging from advocates of a stronger federal government to separatists, and gives each equal abilities to win over any Canadian interest group or geographic area.

As a seeming afterthought, game rules include provision for a highly-abstract, simplified, brief military "end-game," with a note by SPI designers that any such conflict is extremely unlikely.

Dutch multi-millionaire Europe's latest hostage

AMSTERDAM (AP) — Kidnappers seized a Dutch-Jewish multimillionaire Friday and the West German Red Army Faction claimed responsibility. A telephone caller demanded release of a jailed German anarchist and abdiction of Queen Juliana, apparently as ransom for the magnate's freedom.

The abductors struck as police throughout Europe hunted 16 Red Army Faction anarchists wanted in West Germany for the slayings of its federal prosecutor, a kidnapped industrialist and a banker.

Witnesses said about five persons overpowered Maurits Caransa, 61, as he left Amsterdam's Continental Club at 1:15 a.m. after a bridge game. They drove him away in a red car, leaving his briefcase on the sidewalk near his chauffeur-driven Rolls-Royce.

Nine hours later, a German-speaking caller told the Amsterdam newspaper Het Parool: "We are the Red Army Faction. We have Caransa. You will hear from us."

A Dutch-speaking caller told another Amsterdam paper, Telegraaf, the abductors were demanding the queen's abdication and release of Knut Folkerts, 25, a Red Army Faction member detained for the slaying of a Dutch policeman in Utrecht on Sept. 22.

Folkerts is wanted in Germany on charges of taking part in the April slaying of prosecutor Siegfried Buback and the July killing of banker Jergen Ponto. He is also sought for questioning in the Sept. 5 abduction of indistrialist Hanns-Martin Schleyer, who was found dead last week.

Dutch police have been searching for several other German terrorists believed to be in the Netherlands. Police in Sweden said acquaintances of Ponto reported seeing one of his alleged slayers, Susan Albrecht, in Stockholm on Thursday night.

Caransa owns a chain of hotels and other real estate valued at more thn $40 million. He was born in Amsterdam of a poor Jewish family of Portuguese descent and made his fortune selling army surplus equipment after the Second World War.

His parents and both brothers perished in Nazi concentration camps.

Meanwhile, West German parliament has opened debate on new anti-terrorist legislation by the liberal coalition government and a package of even stronger measures by the conservative Christian Democratic opposition.

The government wants tighter firearms laws, swifter trials for terrorists and exclusion from the courtroom of defence lawyers suspected of trying to help their clients escape.

The opposition presented bills that would end force-feeding of prisoners on hunger strikes, permit tapping of suspected terrorists' telephones and give the supreme court sole authority to try terrorists.

Former chancellor Willy Brandt, chairman of the ruling Social Democrats, urged parliament to "act moderately," saying existing anti-terrorist laws needed stricter enforcement. He said terrorists would eventually give up their struggle "because they have the people and particularly the workers against them."

UN condemns Jew outposts

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The UN General Assembly censured Israel on Friday for establishing Jewish settlements in occupied Arab territories and demanded an immediate end to such practices.

With Israel casting the only "no" vote, the assembly adopted 131-to-1 an Egyptian resolution declaring the settlements "have no legal validity and constitute a serious obstruction" to Middle East peace efforts.

The United States — Israel's chief ally, which voted against a border anti-Israeli measure last year — abstained. President Carter has called the settlements illegal and an obstacle to peace.

Canada voted for the resolution, as it had last year, but expressed some reservations about a couple of paragraphs including one that made settlement problems a responsibility of the 15-country Security Council.

Sixty-two countries in addition to Egypt sponsored the resolution denouncing the outposts in the West Bank of the Jordan River and in the Gaza Strip. It was the first assembly censure of Israel for the settlements alone.

The resolution also asks Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to contact the Israeli government to ensure the document's "prompt implementation" and to report to the assembly by Dec. 31.

Israeli government officials said the resolution harms the prospects of peace in the Middle East.

Earlier, Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Israel would not consider itself bound by any UN resolution which condemns the establishment of Jewish settlements in the occupied territories.

Math doesn't count to too many teachers

VANCOUVER (CP) — There are too many mathematics teachers in B.C. with only a minimal background in the subject, says a University of British Columbia professor.

David Robitaille, who headed a provincial government survey of students and teachers, said this week that about 25 per cent of elementary math teachers had had no post-secondary math courses.

The study, which questioned 3,000 teachers and 100,000 students in grades 4, 8 and 12, found that about 14 per cent of the teachers had no mathematics training.

"One of the disturbing things we found in the teacher questionnaire was that at the Grade 8 level, a large proportion of teachers had a minimal background in math," Robitaille told a UBC class. "Too many people are teaching math just to complete their schedules — they may be language arts or physical education teachers."

He said the student portion of the survey found that fewer girls took a full 12 years of math classes than boys. Grade 10 mathematics is the minimum required for graduation.

"The performance by the group that had taken only Math 10 was rather disturbing because they performed poorly on all portions of the test," said Robitaille. "Two-thirds of that group were girls and that came as a surprise to me."

He said girls made up 65 per cent of the group that dropped math after Grade 10, while boys comprised 60 per cent of the Math 12 group.

"The purpose of the assessment was to find out how the (school) system is doing, rather than how individual students or the teachers are doing," he said.

The survey found that students not born in Canada and whose mother tongue is not English did better than native Canadians on all parts of the grades 8 and 12 tests, but the opposite was true with the Grade 4 test.

THIS YEAR'S King Fisherman Contest ends Sunday at midnight. Weigh-in stations are asked to submit all entries promptly.

Bigger port 'dead duck' —alderman

Victoria Ald. William Tindall recently attended a seminar on Western Canadian ports and says he came away with the distinct impression that Victoria's days as a port city were numbered.

Tindall
. . . cruises a hope

The seminar was held in Vancouver and was attended by shipping company officials and government representatives.

Tindall said there was general agreement that Victoria was last on the list of Vancouver Island's nine ports. The experts, he said, predicted that Nanaimo would become the island's major port.

Tindall said Victoria's importance as a port city was already declining before fire destroyed the Ogden Point warehouse this summer.

Since then, business has been diverted to other ports and Tindal doubted Victoria would ever get it back.

He said Victoria's only chance was to capitalize on its potential for cruise ships.

Vancouver was port of call for 100 cruises last year, compared with only 28 in Victoria. There was no reason Victoria shouldn't be included in the schedule of every cruise ship coming to Western Canada, Tindell said.

Although he hated to be pessimistic, he couldn't help but get the message from the seminar that plans for expanding Victoria's port facilities were "a dead duck," he said.

"That, at least, was the general view of the symposium," he added.

'Spring of the 50 MPs'

Tap women's mainstream for lobby, 'give society a mighty shove' our way

By STEPHEN HUME
Colonist Reporter

Next spring there could be 50 women MPs in Parliament if the women's movement had the "mainstream of women" behind it, feminist and journalist Lisa Hobbs of Vancouver said Friday.

"It's time for the formation of a women's electoral lobby," she told an overflow audience of about 250 women at the University of Victoria's Elliot building.

She urged women to consider the electoral lobby during workshops at the two-day Women's Conference, sponsored by Victoria and UVic Status of Women Action Groups.

"BY THIS TIME next week," she said, there could be chapters of the lobby on the West Coast and in at least two other Canadian cities.

She said it was time for women to consider new tactics in their struggle for social equality.

The present social structure will not change unless women are represented in government and "give society a mighty shove in the direction we want it to go."

Women must share "total and equal representation at the government level" before change will take place.

"This means equal representation on the great issues of the day — uranium sales, nuclear disarmament, international banking, national unity, law and criminal reform — these are the things that change lives, yet we have no say in them," she said.

"I'm not saying we have to vote as one voice on these issues. I'm saying that now we have no voice in these issues."

HOBBS SAID it was a fact that the women's movement didn't have the "mainstream of women" behind it, and women should ask themselves why.

By mainstream, she said, "I'm not talking about the women who have a live-in housekeeper and who take their kids to the daycare in a taxi when it rains.

"I'm talking about the army of women you see on the bus every day coming from work, facing more work at home.

"New tactics must be implemented, devoid of the rhetoric of revolution. We should consder seeking the support of the mainstream of women . . . we need the sympathy and wholehearted support of every woman voter in the country.

"The effort women must make in this day and age to get the smallest piece of the pie is staggering," she said.

"The present commercial and industrial structure is anathema to the smooth functioning of the family.

"IT IS NOT DESIRABLE to all women to work. It is only desirable if the support structures are there — daycare and wage security — and they don't exist.

She opened her talk by saying, "I don't have an unreserved admiration for Freud, but I hold that he was right when he said that the two great tasks of a man and a woman were to love and to work.

"Love frees us to be creative. Our freedom to work in the occupation of our choice enhances our capacity and ability to love," she said.

The "male-dominated media has taken advantage of our predicament and has turned the movement into a caricature, and will do so at every opportunity," she said.

She said women have been taught to feel ashamed of themselves, and taught that it was a weakness to feel the "satisfaction of a love affair, and the tenderness and affection women feel for men and for other women."

"THE BATTLE will be won not by the goodwill and sudden perception of men, but by social forces today that are moving toward an inevitable change in the roles of men and women."

She urged women to "take control" of these forces and "move thoughtfully and calculatingly forward to gain control of our entire lives . . ."

That's it for me —Bourque

Saanich alderman Joe Bourque created a little breathing room in a very crowded Saanich election contest by announcing Friday that he would not be seeking a third term on council.

Bourque said the demands of his family and his job did not leave enough time to devote to council as well.

Noting that Saanich faces "the critical stages in its growth and development," Bourque expressed confidence in incumbent members of council and endorsed another candidate, Geoffrey Vantreight.

Bourque gave him high marks to his colleagues on council for their support of municipal bikeways and the Garth Homer Achievement Centre.

Bourque also said he found press coverage during his years on council to be fair.

"I have never been misquoted, nor can I find any fault with the coverage provided in Saanich."

He intends to continue as board chairman for the G. R. Pearkes Clinic and as finance chairman for the Garth Homer Achievement Centre.

Bourque's departure from council means that at least one seat will be open to a newcomer. Incumbents who intend to make another try on Nov. 19 are Mayor Ed Lum and aldermen Fred Severson and David Paterson.

One other incumbent, Sandy Noel, said Friday night that he would announce his intentions today.

Challengers in the contest are James Maxwell for mayor, and Jack Fry, Richard Gauthier, Hal Knight, Howard Sturrock and Vantreight for aldermen.

Nominations close at noon Monday.

Job tracker sets sights on Quebec

If he could say after 12 months that through his efforts 200 jobs were created, he'd be happy, says Barry Mayhew, Greater Victoria's first industrial development commissioner.

Mayhew, who will take up his new duties Dec. 1, is somewhat reluctant to commit himself to exact figures and predictions.

But he did outline his priorities at a press conference Friday morning.

Exparision of existing industries and attraction of technological industries with a high labor content are at the top of his priority list.

Mayhew told reporters that Quebec would be a "very fertile ground" for him to convince companies that Victoria was a good place to move to.

Asked to elaborate, however, Mayhew said he wouldn't try to "take advantage of someone else's problems" by luring industry away from Quebec at any cost.

But the fact remained, he added, that a lot of Quebec firms were contemplating relocation because of that province's uneasy political and economic climate.

He singled out the pharmaceutical industry as one possible candidate for location in Victoria, although he didn't have any specific company in mind.

Mayhew said he would give early attention to the problem of Victoria as a port city. Retention of existing port facilities and, he hopes, expansion at a later date, would be one of the things he'd be looking at.

Mayhew admitted that he felt "a certain pressure" to produce visible results during his first year, because future financing of his office hadn't been secured.

Mayhew will have a budget of $65,500 for the first year. Half of that amount is financed by the provincial government, the other half by the four core municipalities.

Before zeroing in on specifics, Mayhew said, he would gather all available data about the region's economic base.

Ald. Larry Ryan, who with Ald. Frank Carson has fought for months to get financing for the establishment of an industrial development commissioner's office in Greater Victoria, said a survey of the health of existing industry was important before Mayhew could begin working on attracting new business and expanding the present economic base.

"His main task will be to stop the decay of the region's economy," Ryan said.

He said Mayhew would be given as free a hand as possible and political interference would be contained.

Restaurant worker robbed of $500

Esquimalt police are still investigating a holdup early Friday morning which netted a lone gunman $500.

A man lurking in shadow near the door of the A and W Restaurant, 860 Esquimalt Road, accosted employee Robert Bell as he was leaving with the night's receipts at about 1:30 a.m. and pointed a rifle at him, demanding that the cash box be handed over.

Bell gave the robber the box and the man fled, police said.

The cash box was found minutes later in the middle of the 800-block Old Esquimalt Road. The $500 in the box was made up of bills and silver, Det.-Sgt. Douglas Sproxton of the Esquimalt police said.

It was the second armed robbery in Greater Victoria in less than three days.

A lone gunman wearing a Halloween mask and carrying a pistol got away with about $5,000 Tuesday afternoon from the B.C. Teachers' Credit Union, 3023 Shakespeare.

Victoria city police are still working on that case, which is not believed to be connected with the Esquimalt holdup.

Moving the mountain

Mountain looming in background of Government Street, facing south from Yates Street intersection, isn't normally as prominent as it is in this photo, nor are lamp standards so close together. A 400 mm telephoto lens has done the trick. Mountain is on Olympic Peninsula about 25 miles across Juan de Fuca Strait.

Munro-Pollen showdown is 8 tonight at arena

Greater Victoria's political showdown of the year, the Donald Munro-Peter Pollen matchup for the federal Conservative nomination for Esquimalt-Saanich takes place tonight at the Memorial Arena.

The meeting opens at 8, and voting is not expected to take place until 9:30 or 10, a party official said Friday.

Munro, a former diplomat, was first elected to the Commons in 1972 and was re-elected in 1974. Pollen is a former Victoria mayor.

Police probing kidnap mystery

The head of Victoria city police detective division said Friday he was treating a reported abduction of a young woman Tuesday night as a serious matter but didn't rule out the possibility of a hoax.

Insp. Angus Stewart said his men were actively working on the case but was puzzled because there have been no reports of any disappearance of a young woman matching the description given by Helen Gillie, who said she saw the incident.

Mrs. Gillie told police she was driving along May Street shortly before 11 p.m. Tuesday when she spotted a black van pull over and cut off a young woman who was walking across the street at an intersection on Linden.

The van, described as black with two bubble windows on the back doors and a half moon rising in clouds on the side, contained at least two men who jumped from the back, grabbed the girl, ripped her clothing and punched her before hauling her into the back of the van.

The victim, Mrs. Gillie said, was screaming, "Who are you? . . . would you stop it . . . Oh God, somebody help me . . . help . . ."

One of the men then jumped onto the hood of the witness' vehicle and intimated in vulgar language that if she stayed there she'd also be a rape victim, Mrs. Gillie reported.

She described one of the men as "a savage-looking person."

After putting her car in reverse and stepping on the brake pedal, which caused the man to fall off, she saw the men push their victim into the van and the vehicle speed off, almost before the two men could close the back doors, indicating there was at least one other person in the van.

The victim was described as 18 to 20 years of age, with her hair in a pony tail and wearing a yellow jacket and blue jeans.

The two men she saw are described as heavy-set with dark complexion and slight with fair complexion and a wild, unruly Afro hair style. Both were estimated to be in their 20s.

Ex-director planning comeback

Albert Beasley, who served as Capital Region director from 1965 to 1971, will try to make a comeback.

Beasley announced Friday that he'll seek election to the regional board as representative for View Royal. That will assure a contest, since incumbent director Patricia Massy says she will seek re-election.

Beasley said View Royal was facing "the most critical period" in its history, and he would be able to help the community make the right decisions in the next few years.

Beasley was View Royal's fire chief for 21 years from 1948 to 1969.

He has been involved in numerous amateur sports associations and was chairman of the View Royal Parks Board from 1974 to 1976.

Helmcken Split battle rages on

By PAUL DE GROOT
Colonist Reporter

A little of the old, and a little of the new, will be on the table next Wednesday at a special general meeting of the Victoria General Hospital Society.

The new will be the hospital's future — a spanking new 300-bed hospital planned for Helmcken Road which will eventually be expanded to 469 beds, according to present plans.

The architect for the hospital as well as others involved in its planning (with the exception of the prime mover, Health Minister Robert McClelland, who has very wisely elected to find another commitment for that day), will attend the meeting and give the society its first official look at what the new building might be like.

It is probably the old, however, that will generate the most interest from the society's membership — namely the battle over the Helmoken Road site, and the question of the split hospital facility.

That question dominated the society's annual general meeting last April, and caught the hospital board by surprise. The society's anger resulted in its rejecting any names including those of three incumbents, put forward by the official nominating committee, and electing four new board members from the floor.

Board member Dr. Eugene Kaellis served notice at a board meeting on Thursday that the split hospital issue cannot be ignored by the board.

He reiterated his stand of last month's board meeting — that he would abstain from any votes relating to the split hospital — by telling the board that he would dissociate himself from a board policy position that was to be included with the agenda at the special meeting.

That statement says, after listing some supporting clauses, that "one modern, single hospital as a replacement for the present Victoria General Hospital should be constructed on one site as "expeditiously as possible."

"If staging is required, it should be in accordance with the recommendation of the hospital consultant. Upon completion the present hospital should be phased out for acute in-hospital care purposes."

The statement does not follow from its supporting clauses, and puts forward an unrealistic position, Kaellis said. There is going to be a split hospital the way things are going, he noted.

Further checking showed the statement was passed at a Jan. 27 board meeting, before the heated annual general meeting in April, and before four new trustees, including Kaellis, were elected to the board.

With that discovery, the board began scouting around for something a little more current, and came up with a position adopted after the annual general meeting which affirmed the society's stand against the split hospital, and urged the government to bring forward some specific commitments on both the old and new hospital facilities.

Wednesday's meeting will be held in the Newcombe Auditorium at 8 p.m., with a 10:30 p.m. termination deadline.

Halloween Special From Walt Disney

It is Halloween Eve at Disney Studios as night watchman Jonathan Winters routinely makes his rounds, sadly resigned to the fact that he's missing all the holiday excitement and those wonderful trick-or-treaters.

A strange noise suddenly attracts him to the prop room where movie and TV paraphernalia is kept. He is greeted there by a vast collection of unusual items including a skeleton, a cigar store Indian, hats, a suit of armor and stuffed animals. His imagination gets the better of him as he gleefully roams from one item to the next, creating hilariously absurd characters and situations. In a matter of moments he becomes a snake charmer, a fireman faced with a water shortage and a quack doctor examining a skeleton.

But Winters' improvisational romp is cut short by a mean old Jack O'Lantern hiding out from trick-or-treaters inside a crystal ball. The nightwatchman carries on a spirited debate with the pumpkin about Halloween, illustrating his points with classic Disney cartoons: Lonesome Ghosts (1937), Trick or Treat (1952), Pluto's Judgement Day (1935) and The Legend of Sleepy Hollow (1949). His argument proves convincing in a surprise ending that has the pumpkin exchanging places so he can join the Halloween festivities.

"Halloween is all year 'round for me. I dress up everyday," says Winters. But for the first time, he becomes a pumpkin.

"I don't think there's a field around that grows pumpkins like that," he said.

Performing the metamorphosis was make-up artist Robert Schiffer, who aged Burt Lancaster 55 years for Birdman of Alcatraz, and whose credits stretch from A Night at the Opera through My Fair Lady to Camelot.

Winters sat for an hour under latex and plaster to make the facial impression used to create the Pumpkin-head mask.

"It's a spooky experience. They put straws in your nose and that's the only way you can breathe. You feel your whole face shrinking. It becomes quite heavy and your head drops. You can't talk or see and you don't know if you're ever going to get out of it," Winters recalled.

Describing the over-all experience as "challenging and great fun," Winters said, "my body felt strange. I was secure with my head because I already knew I was a pumpkin mentally. There's a lot of seeds up there — some gone."

Winters stars in Halloween Hall of Fame, the special Wonderful World of Disney program Sunday evening, on 2 at 6 p.m. and on 5 at 7 p.m.

Kids Write the Scripts

The platform for the future screenwriters of Canada — Pencil Box, the CBC-TV series where the kids write the stories — is now in its second season.

Pencil Box, seen Tuesdays at 4 p.m. on channels 2 and 6, receives possibly the greatest number of scripts in its daily mailbag, than any other TV series. The stories, written mostly by 8-12-year-olds, have been coming into the Ottawa production unit of Pencil Box by the 1000s from kids all across Canada.

All are read by series creator Noreen Young and by writer Juli Voyer. They, along with producer Rod Holmes, chose 100 for adaptation on this season's Pencil Box. And they're already beginning to start to choose for next season, the stories that will be put into script form and then receive dramatic treatment either with actors, puppets, mime, masques or film animation.

Each story runs about two-three minutes and there are approximately seven on each of the new season's 13 programs.

The subjects aren't 'your-usual-front-row-centre-fare.' It's not unusual to get stories about pizzas, teeth, combs that don't want to comb hair, talking ships. Many of the stories are about disasters, ghosts, monsters of all shapes and sorts or extraterrestial beings and events. But they do reflect the private world and interests of Canadian youngsters.

Noreen, who feels very personally involved in the series, says most of the stories are written at an age before the writers have learnt to become critical of themselves. "They're not inhibited. They're honest."

She says many of the contributions are from kids in the rural areas of Canada with lots coming from distant points in Newfoundland, and the territories and northern U.S. She said the parent and adult authority figures depicted in the stories are busy, busy, busy, with little time and are given dialogue like, "Don't bother me, I'm too busy".

Referring to Pencil Box, Noreen said, "In 10-15 years, some of the best writers of Canada could be drawn from former Pencil Box contributors."

PAYOFF PUZZLE

Correct Answers to Last Week's Puzzle

CLUES ACROSS:

1. LIVING not diving. LIVING is the stronger answer, since there is little reason for mother to worry about ordinary high diving.
7. MOTTLE not bottle. When a pattern of colors is MOTTLED, such as it is in marble, it is prized for the handsome variety. Most bottles are utilitarian, with only a relatively few created for handsome design.
10. FATE not mate. Basically, the question of who one's mate will be is part of the bigger question of one's FATE.
12. FINE not nine. There is no logical reason the collection should be arbitrarily set at nine.
14. MOOD not moon. Metaphorical "dark clouds" make for a black MOOD. Rather than being dulled or darkened, the moon is apt to be obscured altogether by dark clouds.
15. FORD not fork. He could stop anywhere, of course, but a FORD (suggesting a pleasant location with refreshing water, etc.) seems more appropriate to the theme of the clue.
16. HEAD not herd. It would be a question of a pastoral scene, rather than of a herd strictly as a subject in itself. Also, aptly, the fineness of the HEAD, in a portrait, would be evident to most people.
18. PRIG not prim. The clue suggests the sort of thing said with spite, in which connection "PRIG" is more convincing.
19. TIRED not timed. "Marathon" suggests the idea of getting TIRED. Also, a runner is timed from start to finish.
22. ROOTS not riots. There are cases of tree ROOTS causing a certain amount of damage to nearby buildings. It is the case that rioters can be actively destructive, rather than that "riots" can "tend" to be so.

CLUES DOWN:

2. VOCATION not vacation. Since it implies work, VOCATION is very apt. It is quite enough to suppose that a vacation might prove exacting. (Why "more" so than expected?)
5. STEAM not steal. If he has to cook, a man tends to fry, etc., rather than STEAM food. To steal anything (why food?) is generally out of the question; it isn't that it "just wouldn't occur to many a man" as if it might be a reasonable idea if it did occur.
6. NEEDS not seeds or weeds. Some NEEDS (e.g., for expensive replacements) come up all too quickly. Whether fast growing or not, weeds (or weed seeds) are a nuisance without reference to the rapidity with which they come up. Reeds not favored.
11. BITE not kite. "The idea of getting" a BITE links up with angling. For "kite," the clue would have been perfectly adequate without its first four words — which are for "BITE."
13. TRAILER not trainer. "Employed for a purpose" means used (in a more or less instrumental sense), favoring TRAILER. A trainer would simply be "employed" as a person is employed.
14. MUTTER not matter. In the fact that people matter, there is nothing to suggest that they are apt to be trying to the patience, etc. Strictly speaking, every person matters.
18. PLAY not plan. The idea is to PLAY on the weakness, not merely to plan to do so.

John Hearn's Collectibles

I am frequently asked to explain the difference between a collectible and an antique.

Neither is easy. Purists can nail down an antique as anything over 100 years old as defined by Customs Authorities — but anything? A 100-million-year-old fossil is undeniably antique but that is surely not what we mean. In practise, every definition has to be challenged. My own is any object made before the first world war which was originally intended to be ornamental as well as useful. A collectible, on the other hand, is anything anyone wants to collect regardless to age. It is also something which was never made with a collector in mind; something which was manufactured in large quantities and discarded in almost equally large quantities on the assumption that they would never be worth anything.

Two perfectly good examples would be a grandfather clock which is likely to have been kept long after it has stopped working because it was furniture — and an icebox which would be sent to the dump as soon as the family bought a fridge. Today both are valuable. The grandfather clock because it is furniture and probably a great clock, and rich with allusions to the past —and the icebox because there are so few of them left.

I was reminded of this while looking through a trade journal and being astonished, as always, by the strange things which people collect. For example: Cereal premium such as Lone Ranger badges and Superman buckles and, in the same category, Crackerjack premiums. It is hardly conceivable that either collections could ever become valuable but the fun of tracking them all down is immense — and endless. Take Crackerjack. They have been using premiums since 1912 and to this day they still have over 300 of them on the go at any one time — and these are constantly changing, thus making it almost impossible for anyone ever to get the same premium twice. This one is for collectors with an immense appetite for popcorn. Crackerjack. by the way, uses up some 10,000 tons of raw corn every year!

Other collectibles include early plastic jewellery — Victorian costume pieces made of a mixture of sawdust and glue; pocket knives with naked ladies on the handle, fruit box labels, Zeppelin stamps, pre-plastic poker chips, cigar bands, stock certificates, Bogart memorabilia, licence plates, corkscrews, and old aluminum coffee pots. But still to me nothing is more amazing that barbed wire — a matter of fascination not to the odd eccentric but to thousands of enthusiasts.

Motorcycle Jumpers Compete

Seven international jumpers from five different nations — the United States, France, England, Czechoslovakia, and Germany — will vie for the title of the World Motorcycle Jumping Champion, as sanctioned by the American Motorcycle Association. The event will be held at Orange County International Raceway in Irvine, Calif., Oct. 28, and be featured on Channel 7 Saturday at 3:30 p.m.

Jumpers representing the United States are Rex Blackwell of Phoenix, Ariz., Dick Stone from Sacramento, Calif., and Gary Wells of Houston, Texas. Representing France will be Alain Prieur; from Czechoslovakia is Karel Soucek; and Eddie Kidd from Great Britain.

Each jumper will attempt two jumps — the first about 100 feet over 20 cars, and the second about 110 feet over 22 cars. Prize money for firstplace is $20,000, second is $10,000, third is $5,000, fourth is $4,000, $3,000 for fifth place, $2,000 for sixth, and $1,000 goes to the seventh place finisher. The winner will then attempt a $5,000 bonus jump for a world mark of about 120 feet over 24 cars. The existing AMA sanctioned mark is 117 feet over 23 cars.

In the U.S. Jumping Championship at the Astrodome last March, Blackwell edged out Wells for the title on the bonus jump by virtue of a higher overall points total. All the jumpers are scored on a five to 10 point range for accuracy, bike control, take-off, and landing technique.

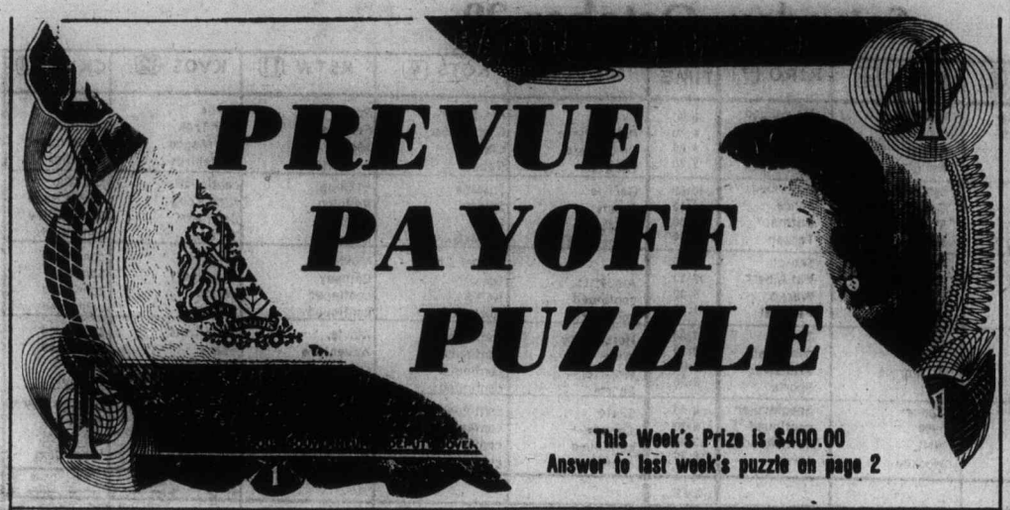
PREVUE PAYOFF PUZZLE



This Week's Prize is $400.00
Answer to last week's puzzle on page 2

CONTEST RULES

1. Solve the Prevue Payoff Puzzle by filling in the missing letters to make the words that you think best fit the clues. To do this read each clue carefully for you must think them out and give every word its true meaning.

2. Check the word list. It has all the correct answers plus some you will have to eliminate.

3. You need not be a subscriber to this newspaper in order to enter. You may submit as many entries as you wish on the entry blank printed in this newspaper or exact-sized, clear, hand-drawn facsimiles of the printed entry blank. NO MECHANICALLY PRODUCED, PRINTED, MIMEOGRAPHED, etc. copies of the entry blank will be accepted. Each entry must contain the contestant's name, address and phone number or it will not be accepted.

4. Anyone is eligible to enter this contest except employees (and members of their families) of Victoria Press Ltd.

5. All entries MUST be mailed and bear a postmark. The paper is not responsible for entries lost or delayed in the mail. Entries for each week's contest not received for judging by 12 noon the following Wednesday are not eligible.

6. To qualify you must write your answer to one of the clues on the outside of the envelope. See coupon for instructions.

7. Prevue will award the current prize to the contestant who sends in an all correct solution. If more than one all correct solution is received the prize money will be shared equally. If no all correct solution is received, $50 will be added to the following week's prize.

8. There is only one correct solution to each puzzle and only the correct answer can win. The decision of the judges is final and all contestants agree to abide by the judges decision. All entries become the property of Prevue. Only one prize will be awarded to a family unit.

9. Everyone has the same opportunity to win for EVERY QUALIFIED ENTRY WILL BE CHECKED and the winner announced. No claiming is necessary.

10. Entries must be mailed to Prevue Payoff Puzzle, Victoria Press Ltd., Box 300, Victoria, B.C. V8W 2N4. One entry per envelope.

11. Prevue reserves the right to correct any typographical errors which may appear during the puzzle game.

12. Puzzle clues may be abbreviated and such words as AN, THE and A omitted.

PREVUE PAYOFF PUZZLE is the intriguing word puzzle game the whole family will enjoy and have an opportunity to win a big cash award every week!

THIS CROSSWORD is not a game of chance or a draw. It tests your knowledge of words and pays off for EVERY correct solution. All you have to do is complete each of the words in a criss-cross format. Clues are provided . . . even a word list which has all the correct answers, plus some you'll have to eliminate. But there are no trick words or guessing . . . careful thought will make you a winner! TV MAILBAG

By THOM MEAD

HOLLYWOOD — The TV Mailbag:

Q. I would like to know some background information on Kristy McNichol who plays Buddy on "Family," and where can I write to her? — M.R., Jefferson City, Mo.

a. Kristy McNichol, who co-stars as Buddy, the bright, very much aware youngest member of the Lawrence family in ABC's "Family," was born Sept. 9, 1962, in Los Angeles. She began her professional career at the age of six, first in commercials and then as a juvenile dramatic actress. She is the sister of 14-year-old actor Jimmy McNichols.

Kristy has appeared in "Bionic Woman," "Sara," "Love American Style" and starred in two ABC Afternoon Specials, "Fawn" and "Me and Dad's New Wife." She also was a co-starring regular in the series "Apple's Way." She is currently appearing in the motion picture "Black Sunday."

Kristy, her mother and brother live in Burbank, Calif. Her off-screen interests include sports and animals.

You may write Kristy in care of 20th Century-Fox, P.O. Box 900, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90213.

Q. Who was the man who played the lead in "Rawhide" opposite Clint Eastwood? — G.J., Everett, Wash.

A. The lead role was played by Eric Fleming.

Q. Where can I write to Kevin Tighe, who plays Roy Desoto on "Emergency?" — L.M., Scottsdale, Ariz.

A. You should write to Universal Television, 100 Universal City Plaza, Universal City, Calif. 91608.

Q. Is there any chance of "Bewitched" coming back on ABC, CBS or NBC? — B.T., Holts Summit, Mo.

A. The original "Bewitched" is in syndication and it is highly doubtful any of the major networks will resurrect the series.

Q. I have heard that the "New Mickey Mouse Club" is going off the air. Is it true? Also, where can I write to the Mickey Mouse Club? — M.C., Jefferson City, Mo.

A. Because of the high cost of production, the "New Mickey Mouse Club" is being cancelled. You may write to Walt Disney Studios, 500 S. Buena Vista St., Burbank, Calif. 91503.

Q. In watching the credits of "Baa Baa Black Sheep," I noticed the names of James Whitmore Jr. and Dirk Blocker. Are they related to the actors James Whitmore and Dan Blocker? Also, what roles do they play in the series? — C.K., San Pedro, Calif.

A. Whitmore is the son of the stage and screen star and Blocker is the son of the late Dan Blocker, who starred in "Bonanza." The younger Whitmore plays the role of Gutterman on "Baa Baa" while Blocker plays Bragg in the series.

Questions of general interest will be answered in the column. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies. Inquiries should be sent to Thom Mead, TV Mailbag, in care of Prevue, Box 300, Victoria, B.C. V8W 2N4.

Guests, Recipes Vie for Laughs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sometimes, the recipes are as funny as the guests on Bruno Gerussi's CBC show, Celebrity Cooks.

Comedian George Kirby once produced a dish that started out something like this:

Pour a can of pork and beans into a large pot. Cover with a layer of salami, then a layer of cheese slices. Top with a layer of Champagne cheese and cook for five or 10 minutes. Then stir it up and add bourbon to taste as it simmers. The brandy goes in just before it's dished out.

The dish is called Ghetto Delight.

Davy Jones of the Monkees got everything out of a can for his tetrazzini except the processed cheese. That was one meal neither Gerussi nor Sue Morton, the show's resident chef, would attempt to salvage.

The show moved west last fall because it's a lot easier for Gerussi to commute between Vancouver and nearby Gibsons — where they film his other show, The Beachcombers — than Ottawa, where he once turned out osso bucco braised veal shanks with gremolata.

Many viewers prefer to watch comedian Buddy Knox marinate some pork tenderloin not bad for a guy who likes fried bologna sandwiches or author and columnist Eric Nicol backhand some spaghetti noodles into a pot while Gerussi takes care of the sauce rather than the soap opera fare available on other channels in mid-afternoon.

Gerussi and Morton try the recipes for each show in advance so that guests like Marty Gillan, who relied on what his wife had taught him the night before, won't get camera-shy if the dish doesn't turn out just the way mom always made it.

Besides, nobody expects a couple of courses to be ready in 12 minutes unless it's a burger and fries to go.

Still, there have been some epicurean delights for the studio audience to fight over. Judy LaMarsh's kasha and tabboulah salad, which she usually serves with chicken Kiev and mushrooms and a bowl of sour cream with freshly-chopped dill on the side, was one winner.

Another was Jack Krushchen's braciola, a masterpiece that would have fed 50, whipped together with veal, pork, beef and tomatoes — and 16 cloves of garlic — in a cauldron.

Spotlight on Movies

Days of Thrills and Laughter, on 2 at 11:30 a.m. Charlie Chaplin is among the stars of the silent screen included in this compilation of film clips from comedies and thrillers. (1961).

Ghost in the Invisible Bikini, on 11 at noon. A ridiculous combination of horror stories and scantily clad beauties. It's intended as a spoof, but the laughs are far apart. (1966).

Tarzan Escapes, on 11 at 2 p.m. Johnny Weismuller is Tarzan, and Maureen O'Sullivan is Jane as they take on a white hunter trying to bag Tarzan. (1936).

One Million Years B.C., on 12 at 7:30 p.m. Raquel Welch may be the sexiest cave queen yet, but the movie is silly nonsense, with grunts and groans the main dialogue. (1967).

Monte Walsh, on 8 at 8 p.m., 5 at 9 p.m. and 6 at 11:20 p.m. Lee Marvin is a middle-aged cowboy who finds the west is no longer wild. Some well-portrayed characterizations lift the movie above the plot. (1970).

Earth II, on 12 at 9:30 p.m. An orbiting space station is threatened by a nuclear attack in this science fiction movie, which, at the time of its release (1971), was rated highly for its special effects.

The Counterfeit Traitor, on 11 at 10 p.m. Suspenseful tale based on fact of a businessman approached by the British to pose as sympathetic to the Nazis, in reality spying for England. Excellent performances by William Holden and Lilli Palmer. (1962).

Bless the Beasts and Children, on 7 at 11 p.m. Interesting if not totally successful story about a group of problem boys from an expensive ranch camp who set out to free some captive buffalo earmarked to be shot for sport. (1971).

LEE MARVIN stars as the rugged cowboy who must face the fact that his way of life in the West is drawing to a close in the movie Monte Walsh, scheduled on 8 at 8 p.m., 5 at 9 p.m. and 6 at 11:20 p.m. Saturday.

The Illustrated Man, on 12 at 11:30 p.m. Three of Ray Bradbury's sci-fi short stories are portrayed, with Rod Steiger and Claire Bloom. (1969).

What's The Matter with Helen?, on 13 at 11:30 p.m. Two widows with a questionable past run a Hollywood dancing school, where murder forms a dance macabre. Debbie Reynolds, Dennis Weaver. (1971).

A Tale of Two Cities, on 2 at 11:45 p.m. Dicken's classic tale of the French revolution, this time with Dirk Bogarde, Dorothy Tutin. (1958).

The Malta Story, on 4 at 11:45 p.m. British pilot falls in love with a Maltese girl on that bomb striken island during the war. Not up to Alec Guiness's usual standards. (1954).

McCabe and Mrs. Miller, on 8 at 12:10 a.m. A gambler and a prostitute team up in a frontier city. Warren Beatty, Julie Christie. (1971).

Klute, on 5 at 1 a.m. Donald Sutherland is the small town detective looking for a missing person in New York city. Jane Fonda won an oscar for her performance in the film. (1971).

Fright, on on 13 at 1 a.m. Susan George is a terrifed babysitter in this thriller. Honor Blackman (of the original Avengers) is also in the cast. (1971).

The Fall of the Roman Empire, on 6 at 1:20 p.m. Overly long, poorly written and generally inept spectacle. The action sequences are impressive, if not familiar, but the cast is defeated by the idiotic things they have to do and say. (1964).

Over the Moon, on 2 at 1:45 a.m. Elaborate production about a couple planning a shoestring honeymoon — until she inherits a fortune. (1939).

The Girl in the Red Velvet Swing, on 8 at 2:55 a.m. Soap opera overtones mar this dramatization of a sensational murder of the 1900s when Harry K. Thaw murdered famed architect Stanford White over his wife. (1955).

Today's Highlights

KCTS Auction, on 5 at 1:30 p.m. Goods and services are sold to viewers who phone in the highest bids in the second annual eight-day fund-raising auction.

Horse Race, on 8 at 2 p.m. The third running of the Carling O'Keefe Invitational Handicap, telecast from Toronto's Woodbine Race Track.

Skate Canada, on 8 at 4 p.m. Top-ranking amateurs from 14 countries compete in Moncton, N.B. Saturday: Women's free skating and ice dancing. Sunday at 5 p.m.: Men's free skating. Sunday at 7 p.m.: Highlights.

Dr. Seuss, on 4 at 8 p.m. The ever-popular, always-hated Grinch decides to strike terror in the hearts of the people of Whoville on Halloween night. On the way down his mountain, he meets a spunky lad named Ukariah and the two find themselves in a strange world filled with monsters, spooks and creepy things.

Spotlight on Movies

The Young Philadelphians, on 5 at 10 a.m. Good performances, especially by Robert Vaughn as a rich young man framed on a murder charge (1959).

Isle of the Dead, on 11 at noon. Greek general on a small island is enmeshed with vampires and witchcraft. Eerie thriller has some good effects, including Boris Karloff, Ellen Drew, (1945).

Ship of Fools, on 7 at 1 p.m. Superb film follows a group of passengers travelling on a ship enroute from South America to Berlin, just before the Nazi outbreak. Excellent cast, including Vivien Leigh, Simone Sigret, Oskar Werner, is topflight. (1965).

Abbott and Costello Meet Frankenstein, on 11 at 1:30 p.m. You have to be an Abbott and Costello fan — or Bela Lugosi fan — to enjoy this one. (1948).

Dracula's Castle, on 11 at 3 p.m. A spoof that doesn't really work, but tries to get all the vampire movie traditions into one castle in the southwestern U.S. (1969).

Tarzan's Secret Treasure, on 12 at 5 p.m. Another of the Weissmuller Tarzans, this time defending his gold deposits from rapacious explorers. (1941).

From the Earth to the Moon, on 12 at 8 p.m. Scientist discovering a new source of energy plans to send a rocket to the moon. Jules Verne sci-fi adventure with Joseph Cotten, George Sanders. (1958).

Thunderbolt and Lightfoot, on 4 at 9 p.m. Young drifter saves the life of an older bank robber, then joins him in his life of crime. Clint Eastwood, Jeff Bridges. (1974).

Bite the Bullet, on 13 at 9 p.m. Gene Hackman, Candice Bergen, James Coburn are involved in a 700-mile horse race across the U.S. southwest. Good action, scenery. (1975).

In Cold Blood, on 5 at 11:30 p.m. Truman Capote's best seller is dramatized in this 1967 movie of two youths who mudered a family on the Kansas plains in 1959.

Dark Passage, on 7 at 11:30 p.m. Accused of murdering his wife, Humphrey Bogart has to break out of jail to track down the real killer. (1947).

Mission Mars, on 12 at 11:30 p.m. Quickie sci-fi, with poor plot, indifferent action. (1968).

The Extra Day, on 2 at 11:40 p.m. Adventures and aspirations of a bit player in a film studio. Well acted, different comedy drama with Richard Basehart, Simone Simon. (1956).

McCabe and Mrs. Miller, on 6 at 11:50 p.m. See Saturday movies for details, on 8 at 12:10 a.m.

Unfaithfully Yours, on 4 at midnight. Sophisticated comedy about a symphony conductor who suspects his wife's infidelity. Where the script falters, Rex Harrison's acting ability comes to the rescue. (1948).

The Fall of the Roman Empire, on 8 at 12:10 a.m. See Saturday movies for details, on 6 at 1:20 a.m.

They Got Me Covered, on 7 at 1:30 a.m. Bob Hope is a bungling newspaperman involved in an intrigue-filled nest of spies and double agents. Dorothy Lamour, Otto Preminger. (1942).

The Girl in the Red Velvet Swing, on 6 at 2:45 a.m. See Saturday movies for details, on 8 at 2:55 a.m.

Knights of the Round Table, on 8 at 3:25 a.m. Much is made of the love triangle between the lovely Guinevere, King Arthur and Sir Lancelot in this piece of pageantry. (1953)..

IF HIS MOTHER, who was power hungry and evil, had left him to his soldering instead of making him Emperor of Rome, Tiberius (George Baker) would have been much happier and a lot of murders would never have been committed in I, Claudius, the 13-part BBC serial running on Channel 13 Sundays at 7 p.m.

Spotlight on Movies

The Day of the Jackal, on 8 at 12:30 p.m. Frederick Forsyth's novel of a hired assassin and his plot to shoot de Gaulle has fast action and ingenious twists throughout. It's being shown in two parts, with the conclusion at the same time Tuesday. (1973).

The Ghost and Mr. Chicken, on 11 at 1 p.m. Typesetter who wants to be a reporter stumbles into a murder case. As a vehicle for Don Knotts, this comedy should please his fans; for others, it's pretty silly. (1966).

The Stalking Moon, on 5 at 3 p.m. Suspense thriller set in turn-of-the-century Arizona has a killer stalking Gregory Peck and Eva Marie Saint. (1969).

Sharon: Portrait of a Mistress, on 5 at 9 p.m. A career woman falls in love with an impetuous young single man after a succession of affairs with married men. Trish Van Devere, Patrick O'Neal. (1977).

Terror by Night, on 4 at 11:30 p.m. Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce are Holmes and Watson as they investigate murder and larceny on a train. (1946).

How to Commit Marriage, on 7 and 12 at 11:30 p.m. Class of humor in this farce is typified by Bob Hope playing golf with a chimp. Jackie Gleeson also injects some of his style of humor. (1969).

The Naked Spur, on 6 at 12:10 a.m. Three bounty hunters on the trail of an outlaw, with lots of rough-and-tumble. James Stewart, Robert Ryan. (1953).

Dr. Phibes Rises Again, on 8 at 12:10 a.m. Vincent Price is at his spine-tingling best as an evil scientist seeking immortality for his late wife. (1972).

Anzio, on 7 at 1:30 a.m. Stock story of soldiers trapped behind enemy lines, this time set in the Second World War. Wooden script, less than exciting action. (1968).

The Premature Burial, on 8 at 1:55 a.m. Edgar Allan Poe's story of a man who lives in morbid fear of being buried alive is acted out by Ray Milland, Hazel Court. Some good psychological scares in this horror tale.

The Fly, on 6 at 2:10 a.m. Superior sci-fi thriller with a literate script for a change, plus good effects as a scientific experiment is miscalculated causing a man to turn into a mutation. (1958).

Today's Highlights

Waltons, on 8 at 7:30 p.m. A two-hour special focusing on the preparations for the birth of Mary Ellen's baby and the young woman who feeds her full of backwoods superstitions.

Superspecial, on 2 and 6 at 9 p.m. Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster spoof TV commercials and spaghetti Westerns in their second comedy show of the season.

Man Alive, on 2 and 6 at 10:30 p.m. Viktor Frankl, a 74-year-old Swiss psychiatrist who spent several years in Nazi concentration camps, is interviewed.

WHY IS THIS WOMAN SMILING? Penny Jamor (Judy Kahan) and Tom Hartman (Greg Mullavey) wonder what's behind the sweet smile deceptively worn by Eleanor Major (Shelley Fabares) in the continuing saga Forever Fernwood, week nights on 12 at 11 p.m.

Spotlight on Movies

The Day of the Jackal, on 8 at 12:30 p.m. Concluding half of this movie is shown today. For details, see Monday movies, on 8 at 12:30 a.m.

Istanbul Express, on 11 at 1 p.m. Fast women and deadly assassins mark this melodrama as Gene Barry copes with being a secret agent. (1968).

The Banana Splits in Hocus Pocus Park, on 5 at 3 p.m. The cartoon characters are up to their usual zany antics in this feature film—strictly for the pre-teen set. (1972).

Terror on the 40th Floor, on 4 at 11:30 p.m. Partygoers panic as flames spread through a blazing skyscraper. If you saw The Towering Inferno, don't bother with this one. (1974).

The Darwin Adventure, on 6 at 12:10 a.m. Biographical feature has Nicholas Clay portraying the naturalist whose theories on evolution shook society. (1972).

Stand Up and Be Counted, on 8 at 12:10 a.m. Hollywood discovers women's lib, but insists on adding the usual bunch of stereotypes. Too many old gags that lampoon the tenets of the movement. (1972).

Cutter, on 7 and 12 at 12:40 a.m. Private detective Peter DeAnda is sent to look for a missing pro quarterback in this mystery yarn. (1972).

The Subject Was Roses, on 6 at 2:10 a.m. Screen adaptation of a Broadway show about a young man who returns from the Second World War only to find his quarrelling parents still engaged in battle. (1968).

Titanic, on 8 at 2:10 a.m. Hollywood's version of the famous tragic event, the sinking of the sink-proof Titanic. Personal dramas are unfolded before the climax arrives when the ship hits the inevitable iceberg. Good performances stop the situation from becoming too maudlin. (1953).

Walk on the Wild Side, on 7 at 2:15 a.m. A muddled, botched-up drama based on the seemy side of life in New Orleans where Barbara Stanwyck plays the madam of a house in the quarter. (1962).

Today's Highlights

Special Treat, on 5 at 4 p.m. Five-Finger Discount — a 13-year-old girl shoplifts to overcome boredom in her new California surroundings.

CBC Reports, on 7 at 8 p.m. The Battle over Panama — a report on the Panama Canal treaty with views from supporters and opponents.

Today's Highlights

Laugh-In, on 6 at 7 p.m. Variety special featuring cameo appearances by Frank Sinatra and Cindy Williams. Also starring Flip Wilson and Jim Giovanni.

Fortunes, on 2 and 6 at 8 p.m. A report on the political power of oil, seen from an Arab point of view.

Musicamera, on 2 and 6 at 8:30 p.m. The World of Noel Coward — A profile of the sophisticated Briton.

Passionate Canadians, on 2 and 6 at 9:30 p.m. The Group of Seven concludes, following the artists from 1920 to 1930.

Dean Martin, on 5 at 10 p.m. Dean Martin Celebrity Roast with victim Dan Haggerty. Roasters include Denver Pyle, William Conrad, Abe Vigoda, Jimmie Walker and Rich Little.

Spotlight on Movies

On the Riviera, on 11 at 1 p.m. Comedy starring Danny Kaye in two roles; an American entertainer and a French hero. (1961.)

Lady L, on 5 at 3 p.m. A laundress (Sophia Loren) works her way up to a title after a series of romantic-comic misadventures with an anarchist (Paul Newman) and a nobleman (David Niven). (1965.)

Breakheart Pass, on 7 at 9 p.m. Alistair MacLean's novel-turned-movie about murder, confusion and the Old Northwest. Charles Bronson plays an undercover agent. (1976).

Open Season, on 13 at 9 p.m. Suspense-drama about three mentally disturbed Vietnam veterans who kidnap an innocent couple and use them as game on a hunting trip. (1974.)

The Heartbreak Kid, on 6 at 12:10 a.m. Comedy about a marriage that dissolves on the honeymoon and the blonde that makes it interesting. Charles Grodin, Jeannie Berlin, Cybill Shepherd. (1972.)

Our Man Flint, on 8 at 12:10 a.m. This super-gimmicked high-style spoof of the James Bond superman benefits from the suave presence of James Coburn Coburn, as Flint. It's all tongue-in-cheek spy stuff kept bouncing along at a rapid clip. (1966.)

The Dion Brothers, on 6 at 2:10 a.m. Two rustic brothers plan a robbery to set themselves up in business. Lots of violence and dark humor. (1974).

The Centrefold Murders, on 8 at 2:10 a.m. Murder tales takes a hand in promotions at a financially-troubled magazine publishing house. (1975.)

Pendulum, on 7 at 2:15 a.m. George Peppard stars as a tough police captian suspected in the murder of his wife and her lover. Filmed in Washington, DC. (1969.)

The Cavera, on 8 at 3:25 a.m. Second World War adventure about six men and a woman trapped in a German munitions dump. John Saxon. (1965.)

Spotlight on Movies

The House That Wouldn't Die, on 8 at 12:30 p.m. Old fashioned haunted house yarn provides some chills. It takes a seance to discover some facts about the macabre goings-on. The cast, including Barbara Stanwyck, Richard Egan, plays it straight. (1970).

No Highway in the Sky, on 11 at 1 p.m. Absent-minded professor insists a new commercial airliner is not safe. Very good mixture of suspense and gentle comedy, excellently played by James Stewart, Marlene Dietrich. (1951).

The Impossible Years, on 5 at 3 p.m. Stage hit about a psychiatrist who has problems with his offspring turned into a jeering, unattractive vehicle for David Niven and a cast deserving of better things. (1968).

Wild Rovers, on 7 and 12 at 1:30 p.m. William Holden's crisp, strong performance as a cowboy on the shady side of 50 makes this unusual western drama interesting. He and Ryan O'Neal make an unlikely pair as they team up for a bank robbery and the inevitable getaway to Mexico. (1971).

Kansas City Bomber, on 6 at 12:10 a.m. Racquel Welch in a numbered jersey and all the phoney slam-bang excitement of the roller derby might interest a few diehard derby devotees, but those who also expect a plot or decent writing will look and listen in vain. (1972).

The Bofors Gun, on 8 at 12:10 a.m. Grim sessions at a British army camp in postwar Germany, with a superb performance by Nicol Williamson as a tragically misfit Irish soldier. A poignant climax. (1968).

Texas, on 7 at 1:35 a.m. Two wandering cowpokes (William Holden, Glen Ford) take different trails, one with a pretty ranch girl, the other with an outlaw band. Fine lusty western, with some hilarious comedy sequences. (1941).

One of Our Spies is Missing, on 6 at 2:10 a.m. The Man from U.N.C.L.E. — two-part version run together. The story is about a rejuvenation formula, and the various groups out to steal it. (1966).

North to Alaska, on 8 at 2:10 a.m. Magnificent scenery, which suffers on the small screen, outweighs the plot which spoofs its own familiar far north style with good humor. (1960).

Today's Highlights

Magazine, on 7 at 9 a.m. Profiles of ERA opponents Phyllis Schlafly and Stormy Dent.

Vancouver, on 13 at 7 p.m. Highlights of the Peter Frampton concert in Vancouver.

Aspen, on 6 at 9 p.m. Debut of a three-part mini-series about illicit affairs, political corruption and murder trial set in Colorado in the mid-60's.

Playboy's Playmate Party, on 4 at 12:40 a.m. Playboy' 1977 Playmate of the Year is the main even of an evening at Hugh Hefner's Mansion West.

TALENTED CANADIAN ACTORS Donnelly Rhodes (right) and Jonathan Welsh star as hard-hitting police officers Nick Raitt and Glenn Olsen in CBC-TV's police-adventure series Sidestreet, programmed Sundays at 9 p.m. Rhodes and Welsh turn in strong performances as policemen dedicated to community service, in ten full-hour programs, featuring such guest stars as Micheline Lanctot, Leslie Nielsen, Barry Morse and Jack Duffy.

Spotlight on Movies

The Tin Star, on 11 at 1 p.m. Expertly made western mixes humor with suspense, and a standout performance by Henry Fonda as a wily bounty hunter who helps a young sheriff clean up a town. Superior of its type. (1957).

Seven Brides for Seven Brothers, on 5 at 3 p.m. Delightful musical, as six fur-trapping brothers come to town to find brides. There's a kidnapping and a chase through the snow as well as a great many musical numbers before the happy conclusion. (1954).

The Incredible Hulk, on 7 and 21 at 8 p.m. Based on the comic book character, the story is about an eccentric professor whose experiments turn him into a monster with superhuman strength. (1977).

Predators of the Sea, on 11 at 8 p.m. Documentary of marine life, narrated by Bill Burrud. (1977).

The Two Faces of Dr. Jekyll, on 7 at 11:30 p.m. Still another version of the R. L. Stevenson story. Paul Massie is the troubled scientist whose life is far from sunny even with Dawn Addams. (1961).

Impulsion, on 13 at 11:30 p.m. The bright young thing of the jet set takes on a tawdry tinge in this melodrama exploring the seemy side of the bright life. (1972).

The Call of the Wild, on 6 at 12:10 a.m. Adaptation of Jack London's story of a man and his dog's adventures in the Klondike hasn't got too much of the dog. But there's enough love and adventure to please most audiences. (1935).

Cleopatra, on 8 at 12:10 p.m. As a spectacle, this elaborate production has few equals, but as historical drama, it leaves something to be desired. Acting ranges from good (Rex Harrison) through uneven (Elizabeth Taylor) to bad (Richard Burton). (1963).

The Girl Who Couldn't Lose, on 13 at 1 a.m. Julie Kavner is the librarian whose knowledge makes her a winner on a quiz show, but stands her in poor stead when it comes to coping with personal relationships. (1975).

Sherlock Holmes Faces Death, on 2 at 1:05 a.m. Basil Rathbone is again the famous detective, with Nigel Bruce as Watson. This time, they almost become pawns in a murder case where a chess board is the clue. (1943).

Homicidal, on 7 at 1:15 a.m. Tedious thriller, where the few scary moments get lost in a welter of halfplots. (1961).

The Glass House, on 6 at 2:10 a.m. As a deterrent to crime, this Truman Capote prison drama is hard to beat — a shocker to the core, besides being a savage indictment of the North American prison system. Raw, gutsy — and vicious. (1972).

Hush, Hush, Sweet Charlotte, on 6 at 3:40 a.m. A macabre, absorbing drama about the conniving plan by cousin Olivia de Haviland and her old beau Joseph Cotton to do pitiful Charlotte (Bette Davis) out of her valuable property. (1965).

Anne of the Indies, on 8 at 4:10 a.m. A lady swashbuckler, yet — but smart direction and some fast action makes the nonsense easier to swallow. Good fare for adventure devotees. (1951).

Today's Highlights

PC Convention, on 2 and 6 at 6 p.m. A report from the 1977 Progressive Conservative Party Convention held Nov. 3-6 in Quebec city.

Something Ventured, on 2 and 6 at 9 p.m. First of a three-part documentary about people who attribute their success to hard work, imagination and free enterprise. Tonight: a painter, snowmobile creator, founders of the Toronto Sun and a student at B.C.'s Outward Bound School.

Battle of the Network Stars, on 4 at 9 p.m. ABC, CBS and NBC celebrities compete at athletics. Gabriel Kaplan (ABC), Jimmie Walker of (CBS) and Dan Haggerty (NBC) are the team captains.

11:20 p.m. Nightcap—Who is the real Jack Lemmon? Behind the diverse characters Lemmon has portrayed in films is a composer and Gershwin buff who would have turned to music if he had not experienced instant movie success. Also, The Stranger, by Albert Camus — Part VI.

FM Network

4:04 p.m. Arts National — Host: Karin Wells. From Ottawa, the ninth of 14 Mondays of the Beethoven Festival, co-sponsored by the National Arts Centre and the CBC at Festival Canada. Today: Quartet, Op. 59, No. 3 in C major; Trio, Op. 121A in G major.

8:04 p.m. Ideas — Referendum Canada: A Country at the Crossroads. A view of our country; of Quebec; how we treat our rebels; the propaganda war between the PQ and Ottawa; Pierre Trudeau and Rene Levesque, former friends; Hydro Quebec and its power . . . the mighty Liberal Party; the legacy of October, 1970, in both Canadas.

TUESDAY
AM Network

8:30 p.m. Touch the Earth — The best in folk, country and roots music with international recording artist Sylvia Tyson and broadcaster Doug Lennox. Tonight: A feature on the Glendale Fiddle Festival held this past summer in Cape Breton. Tim Wilson has prepared a colourful soundscape of this event which climaxes with 150 fiddlers playing together in a medley of Cape Breton's jigs and reels. Also on the show, hear a feature on Sudbury's "Northern Lights" folk festival.

11:20 p.m. Nightcap — After artist Pietro Annigoni painted the queen, he became the most sought-after portrait painter in the world. He talks about some of his subjects. Also, an interview with American sculptor Korczak Ziolkowski who is carving a monument to Chief Crazy Horse on a mountain in South Dakota. Also, "The Stranger," Part VII.

FM Network

8:04 p.m. Ideas — "Friedrich Wilhelm Nietzsche: 1844-1900." A dramatized biography of the 19th century German philosopher, called the father of existentialism. About his painful life, and its effect on his work, subsequently misused by the Nazis. Also, interviews with Walter Kaufmann and other experts. The dramas are by James Nichol.

9:04 p.m. The Best Seat in the House — (Extended this occasion). "Introit, Offertory and Alleluia." Liturgy for the Feast of Christ the King: music partly Gregorian Chant, partly modern polophony.

FM Network

8:04 p.m. Ideas — Television: A Surrogate World. The 25th anniversary of TV in Canada. A cause for celebration? We view the TV generation — what we watch; news, action, adventure, sitcoms, game shows, comedy, kids shows and specials. Who owns the . . . networks, and who should? What values are transmitted? Violence? Power politics? Fear? Fun? What about pay TV and border wars? U.S. domination of the system? An evaluation of this century's most significant art form and addiction by Norman Lear, George Gergner, Norman Campbell, Al Johnson, Jack Leonard, Morris Wolfe, Robert Sklar, Wallace Westfeldt, Mark Frieman, plus other critics, producers, power brokers and favorite TV stars. The series was prepared by Joyce Nelson.

THURSDAY
AM Network

8:04 p.m. Playhouse — "Bandit and the Mayor," a seven-part comedy written by David Harriman and Arthur Samuels about a boxer dog named Bandit who thinks he's Humphrey Bogart (he watches a lot of late night TV). Bandit controls the thoughts and actions of his master, Otis Kennelworth, for whom he acts as campaign manager in the mayoralty election in Crawford's Corners, Ontario. Otis wins and Bandit becomes the power behind the mayor's chair, so to speak. With Nick Nichols as Bandit and Tom Harvey as Mayor Kennelworth. Music by folksinger Ben Steinberg. Taped in front of an audience at the CBC Hamilton Festival and at Toronto's Colonnade Theatre. Conceived, produced and directed by Marc Stone. Tonight: Episode V.

FM Network

8:04 p.m. Ideas — "Five Faces of Communism" — A first-hand look at modern Eastern Communism, unloved by intellectuals, workers and even bureaucrats, unable to inspire the young, or give goods to the old. Prepared in London from material gathered in Iron Curtain countries by Michael Dobbs, BBC and The Guardian, and Gwynne Dyer, Sandhurst lecturer.

9:04 p.m. Special Occasion — "Daughter of the Regiment," opera in two acts by Donizetti, taped at the Canadian Opera Festival in Toronto, Oct. 16.

FRIDAY
AM Network

11:20 p.m. Nightcap — Italian tenor Luciano Pavarotti talks about his many operatic roles and the differences between the high C's in various arias. Also, "The Stranger," concluding episode.

FM Network

11:04 p.m. A Little Night Music — From Montreal, with host Bob Harding. Overture: The Merry Wives of Windsor (Nicolai) (The BBC Symphony, Colin Davis conducting); Fenton's Aria: Hark, Listen to the Lark (Nicolai) (Nicolai Gedda); Adagio for Clarinet and String Quintet (Wagner) (Members of the Vienna Octet); Violin Concerto in E Minor, Op 64 (Mendelssohn) (Henryk Szeryng and the London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Antal Dorati); Toccata in C Major, Op. 7 (Schumann) (Anton Kuerti, pianist).

Spacious, Rustic Split Level

Here's a contemporary three bedroom design which offers a number of amenities establishing a tone of luxury and open air spaciousness. The rustic exterior impression is in keeping with the almost rural openness of the indoor areas.

Four steps lead up from the sunken entrance foyer to the large L-shaped living-dining combination. The living room has a charming bow window and window seat, and the dining area leads onto the rear sundeck via optional sliding doors.

The U-shaped kitchen and breakfast nook may be closed off from the dining room — providing seclusion for entertaining.

The large family room, down three steps from the nook, connects to the rear patio and has a corner stone fireplace with a barbecue grill built in on the patio side.

A downstairs vanity bath, a laundry-utility room and a workshop to the rear of the two car garage complete the conveniences built into this design.

A partial basement under the kitchen and living-dining area and the unfinished room on the main floor allow abundant space for future expansion. This latter area, for example, could be developed into a den or office space for the professionally-oriented family.

Plan for Design No. 70-1239 may be obtained at a cost of $60 for the first set and $9 for each additional set, plus $4.00 for postage and handling. B.C. residents please include 7 per cent sales tax.

Send for the current edition of Select Home Designs Series No. 34 featuring imaginative decorating and home improvement ideas plus 350 quality home plans of every type. Available for $2.25 ($1.75 plus 50 cents postage and handling). To order these items please send cheque or money order payable to the Home of the Week. Address to: Home of the Week, c/o Victoria Press, 382 West Broadway, Vancouver, B.C. V5Y 1R2.

SOAP OPERA SCENE

JADA ROWLAND VET ON SOAPS

By STEVEN SCHEUER

NEW YORK — Soap opera actors generally fall into one of two categories — the first is comprised of actors who are confident and crusading in the constant battle to be on equal footing with prime-time TV stars, while the second group is made up of actors who seem slightly apologetic about doing a soap and talk about all the other career irons they have in the fire. Jada Rowland, who plays Carolee Simpson Aldrich in "The Doctors" (NBC), fits neither category, which makes her an original.

Jada has been acting since she was six, and is now in her early 30s. Her relationship with soaps began at age 11 when she worked in such popular radio serials as "Road of Life" and "The Second Mrs. Burton." Then Jada was cast as Amy in the TV soap, "The Secret Storm," a job which lasted 20 years, on and off.

"I'm probably one of the few actresses in soaps who actually played the same character over such a prolonged period. Some people try to make more of it than it really was. It was a job, one I enjoyed while I was doing it, but I really can't attach more importance to it than it deserves," the actress said, while working on crocheted squares destined to become an Afghan for her two-year-old son.

* * *

Jada's career began when Katharine Cornell, one of the reigning queens of the American Theatre during the '30s and '40s, discovered her in a school play and cast her in "That Lady." Many other Broadway outings followed, along with the soaps on radio and TV.

"When I left acting, I did it fully," and Jada. "By the same token, when I felt I was ready to return, I called my agent and said, "I'd like to go back to work. See if they still want me.'"

The answer, of course, was affirmative, and Jada is now gracing "The Doctors" with her seasoned talents.

CHANNEL CHATTER

Handsome John James, who plays Tom Bergman in "Search for Tomorrow" (CBS), had been given the Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval, in a manner of speaking. Lee Anne Wimberly, age 19, the winner of Good Housekeeping's "All American Natural Beauty 1977" title, has chosen John as her escort for a whirlwind New York date, which includes dining and dancing. If real life follows the soaps, there could even be a bit of romance.

* * *

Meanwhile, Larry Haines, who plays Stu Bergman, John James's father in "Search," is cast in another father role — this time on prime-time. Larry will play Mr. Bonino to Lynnie Greene's Maria Bonino in the new series, "On Our Own," in an upcoming episode . . . Nancy Addison, who is Jillian Coleridge in "Ryan's Hope" (ABC), has won one of the plum acting roles of the season. She has been cast as Gabrielle Legett, in the upcoming CBS mini-series based on Dashiell Hammett's "The Dain Curse." Nancy is in some very good company — her co-stars include James Coburn, Jean Simmons, Jason Miller and recent Oscar-winner Beatrice Straight . . . If you live in or near Sullivan, Ill., you have a treat in store. Three TV soap leading ladies will appear in a production of "Vanities" in the Theatre in the Park, from October 27 to November 13. They are Marie Masters (Dr. Susan Stewart) and Judith Chapman (Natalie Hughes) of "As the World Turns" (CBS) and Maeve McGuire, who is Nicole Drake in "Edge of Night" (ABC) . . . Remember Shane Nickerson, the young lad who played young Billy in "Guiding Light"? Well, he's working quite a bit on nighttime TV. He has been seen in a recent two parter on "Carter Country" and will be in a forthcoming "Rafferty" segment.

Two "women's novels" this week, neither of which came well recommended by other reviewers. I wouldn't quarrel with the general verdict in the case of A Population of One, by Constance Beresford-Howe, but as for Carol Shields' latest novel, The Box Garden — well, not to put too fine a point on it, one can only conclude that those critics who panned it must have been using oatmeal for brains.

But more of The Box Garden later. First let's take a look at the successor to Mrs. Beresford-Howe's hugely successful The Book of Eve, which was, for anyone who came in late, that charming story about the lady who walked out on her husband the day her first old-age pension cheque arrived.

A Population of One is the story of a 30-year-old English teacher and is "the second in a series of three linked novels." The first, of course, was The Book of Eve, while the projected third novel "will deal with a much younger woman."

It sounds a neat, tidy and sociologically fruitful scheme, but as with a great many best-laid plans, something has gone awry. The heroine of A Population of One is not really 30 years old, she's closer to an arch 45. Freed at last from implausible filial bondage, she moves to Montreal with two objectives: to land her first job as a college teacher and to marry "or at the very least to have an affair." In an unwitting parody of Goldilocks and The Three Bears she meets three men: one too old, one too young and one in the middle range who seems "just right." Like the sexual ignoramus she is, she has a fling with the middle one, ignores the young one and settles for the old one, when any reader over the age of 10 could have told her that she should have ignored the middle one, had a fling with the young one, and settled down with the old one.

The chief trouble with A Population of One, then, is the Stupidity Problem. The heroine is also encumbered by the author's insistence on linking her with Lucy Snowe, the teacher-heroine of Charlotte Bronte's Villette. This literary affectation, far from enlarging the story, comes across as so much excess baggage and makes us wish we'd stuck with Bronte, who was never guilty of the Canadian cop-out ending.

All this seems a great pity, for Mrs. Beresford-Howe has a deft touch with dialogue and a witty way with characterization. (Sample: "Archie still stands rigid with disapproval, like some old emperor who has just detected a smell of drains.") Mrs. Beresford-Howe has confessed she hadn't planned the outcome of The Book of Eve, it "just happened." Perhaps, with A Population of One, she simply tried too hard.

Until last spring, Carol Shields was largely unknown. Then Small Ceremonies, her first novel, won her glowing reviews and the Canadian Authors' Association Award for fiction. Now her second novel, The Box Garden, has appeared, and if you can believe the critics, it's back to the boonies again.

But don't believe them. The Box Garden is a fine novel in its way, with much to reward the discerning reader. The trick is to remember that Charleen Forrest, Shields' heroine, speaks only for herself. When Charleen deprecates herself, which she does thoroughly and often, she is not voicing Shields' opinion of her, nor the opinion of any of the other characters. She is not at all an unlikable character, unworthy of our attention. Rather, she is a character in the process of growth who manages to achieve a small but genuine triumph.

Carol Shields has been compared to Jane Austen, and it's true that in Emma, Austen tackled a somewhat similar problem. Yet the writer Shields most resembles, to my mind, is Alice Munro. Each knows how to dissect and reassemble her material down to the last detail, although where Munro tends to pinpoint emotions, Shields concentrates on thoughts.

The Box Garden is witty in the same way that it is attractive — between the lines. (Charleen, for example, is a poet. Rejected by her husband and her mother, she finds solace in the arms of an orthodontist.) Charleen's literary opinions of the "pome people" are rather a bore, but Shields' painstaking efforts to get every last detail to ring true are not. For the sort of reader who appreciates Dorothy Sayers, or whose fondest ambition is to solve the Listener crossword puzzle, The Box Garden should prove an exceptional pleasure.

A POPULATION OF ONE, by Constance Beresford-Howe. Macmillan. $9.95.

THE BOX GARDEN, by Carol Shields. McGraw-Hill Ryerson. $9.95.

Everything Came up Roses

By JACK SCOTT

Conflict of one kind or another, so they say, is an essential ingredient of any good story, fact or fiction, and this may account for the bland and ho-hum quality of the late Bennett Cerf's memoirs of a long and happy life.

It isn't just that his reminiscences as a publisher and public figure are devoid of conflict, but the fact is that Cerf was a splendidly adjusted man, that success came easy to him, that his broad smile was a reflection of an amiable, nice and uncritical man.

It is probably the only recent autobiography — partly from his diaries, partly from tape-recorder responses in 20-odd sessions — that makes no reference to the psychiatric couch. Obviously Bennett Cerf never had a loose mental screw, a refreshing, if somewhat soporific, change from the lives of other famous men.

Cerf had a wide circle of friends, a great many of them in the public eye. Those he didn't like he "adored," to use one of his own favorite words. Nothing he attempted ever failed, mainly because he never attempted anything that kept him awake at night. He was almost too good to be true and certainly too good to leave behind a controversial book. He emerges from this one as a thoroughly likable, even enviable, man, but very little more.

★ ★ ★

His own estimate of a busy and purposeful career is to be found in a concluding paragraph: "I've had a very happy life. I've been as lucky as can be — lucky to have Donald (Kopfer) as my partner and Phyllis as my wife, and to have two sons of whom I am very proud. My health has been fantastic . . . I can't say this too often — that a little humor can make life worth living. That has always been my credo. Somebody once asked me, 'what would you like your epitaph to be?' I've always said that I'd like it to be: 'He left people a little happier than they were when he came into the room'."

Cerf's public image, created by his regular appearances as a panellist on the television game show, What's My Line?, as a literary columnist whose tread was always light, his books of anecdotes, jokes and puns and his crowded schedule on the lecture circuit, turns out to be very much like the private Cerf. If he had any deep thoughts they're not to be found in his memoirs.

He loved and cultivated celebrities. He thoroughly enjoyed his own notoriety. He had so many anecdotes and jokes reprinted by The Reader's Digest that DeWitt Wallace, who founded the magazine, gave Cerf a yearly stipend to pick up anything he might write. That nothing he ever wrote or said was even slightly memorable, a truism also of The Reader's Digest, does not make him a less pleasant man.

★ ★ ★

After an apprenticeship with the erratic and brilliant Horace Liveright, Cerf, with Donald Kopfer, bought The Modern Library, which grew into the prestigious and prosperous Random House (hence the title) and exposed him to a stable of famous authors, a source for most of his anecdotes.

Many of these stories have been told before in the recent rash of biographies of writers — no lack of psychiatry there — but Cerf writes engagingly of those he unabashedly admired. That all of them were Random House properties is coincidental.

Of Eugene O'Neill he wrote: "Eugene O'Neill was a great man, a great American playwright. He had a streak in him, too, of boyish enthusiasm that didn't seem to fit. He loved talking about the old days and the sea chanteys he had sung. Then that sombre, beautiful face of his would light up and you really loved him very, very much indeed. A man like this comes along maybe once in a generaion."

★ ★ ★

Of Quentin Reynolds: "I went down to one of the courtroom sessions (when Reynolds sued Westbrook Pegler for libel). People fought to get in because everybody hated Pegler and loved Quent Reynolds. It was really the case of the villain and the hero. Pegler was always finding communists under the bed. The time I went was one of the great days, because Louis Nizer — Quent's lawyer and just becoming famous — confronted Pegler on the witness stand and demanded, 'Do you think this is a Communist statement, Mr. Pegler?' He read a long paragraph. Pegler said, 'It certainly is. That's typical Communist propaganda.' Nizer said, 'Mr. Pegler, I got that out of one of your own columns. You wrote it.' Well, the case was over right there."

Of Sinclair Lewis: "Her was a case of a man who ke on writing too long. His la two books were dreadful an should never have bee published, but how can you sto a once very successful autho from writing if he wants to co tinue? Some authors just g played out and know when t stop, but there are many wh keep on after they have nothi more to say."

★ ★ ★

Of John O'Hara: "In h work O'Hara was the tr professional, always in co plete control of what he was d ing. Before he wrote anythin he had planned it and kne what he wanted to say: I could stop in the middle of sentence and go to sleep, a the next day get up and fini the half-done sentence he'd l in the typewriter."

As a publisher, as he was everything, Cerf was sound a orthodox. His earlier views, f example, on the success of t paperback books is no demonstrably true and of i terest to any book-lover.

★ ★ ★

"I don't believe that pap backs will ever destroy ha bound publishing," he opine "First of all, most people w love good books want to ke them in their libraries. Pap back books are not made last, and the type is usually t small for people to read co fortably. The paperback h actually benefited publishing more ways than one. Selli reprint and other subsidia rights is now what keeps a of hardened publishers fr going bankrupt . . . also pap backs encourage the read habit . . . so new readers a created. . . ."

"At Random," it can seen, is something of a hod podge, more a portrait of an gratiating, uncomplicated n than anything else, but, such, altogether nice.

E. D. WARD-HARRIS

Because she's a Mitford, Jessica tells a droll story

As someone once remarked, the Mitford family always seemed to regard the rest of the world, and everything that happened in it, as a huge joke put on for their benefit. The joke is certainly on us, because five of the six sisters became famous, and three of them notorious, and it always takes a moment to remember who is who and which was responsible for what.

Let's see. Diana married British fascist leader Sir Oswald Mosley in Germany, in the presence of Hitler, Goering, and Frau Goebbels. Unity became a member of Hitler's inner social circle, and shot herself in the head when Britain and Germany went to war.

When Diana and Unity (and their parents) became Nazi-lovers, Jessica turned left, ran away from home in her teens and went to Spain to join Churchill's nephew, Esmond Romilly, who was fighting against Franco. They were subsequently married, and in 1939 went to the United States. When war broke out Esmond, leaving the pregnant Jessica in New York, came to Canada, joined the RCAF, and was killed in action in 1941.

Jessica remained in the U.S., married a lawyer, a Jew from the Bronx, and joined the Communist Party, all of which must have flabbergasted her youngest sister, Deborah, who had become Duchess of Devonshire, and intrigued her eldest sister, Nancy who, in a series of successful semi-autobiographical novels, had become the leading baiter of the older generation — and the originator of the private Mitford cosmic joke.

Just when we had managed to categorize this rum lot, Jessica confused everything by writing a best-seller, The American Way of Death, an expose of the U.S. funeral industry. Now, no one could remember whether Jessica Mitford had written Love in A Cold Climate, The Pursuit of Love, or Noblesse Oblige, or whether Nancy Mitford was responsible for Hons and Rebels.

Nancy Mitford intended to straighten things out in her autobiography, but illness precluded her writing it, and now she is dead — and the literary torch has passed to Jessica.

Jessica wrote of her early life in Hons and Rebels (titled Daughters and Rebels in the American edition) and she now provides more glimpses of her family in a new book, A Fine Old Conflict — a typical Mitford corruption of "T'is the final conflict" from the Internationale.

Jessica Mitford is proud to have been a Red Menace during the frightful McCarthy years, and although she has left the Party she remains an unrepentant Communist.

The chief interest of A Fine Old Conflict is the author's description of what it was actually like to be a Party member in America, when the Russians were good guys fighting Hitler, then in the era of Cold War and the Un-American Activities Committee. Here is life in a cell: the rigidity, camaraderie, discipline, excitement, boredom, danger.

Because she's a Mitford, she tells the story in a human, relaxed fashion, mixing the serious with the funny, and in the telling she makes us know and feel how in those days the Communist party could naturally be perceived — even by someone so individualistic, so disinterested in "the dialectic," and so unsuited by both background and temperament — as the right home for impassioned anti-Fascism and anti-racism, as the most practical outlet for her activist energies.

MITFORD . . . the Red days.

What makes this book so readable is the clever manner in which Ia Mitford intertwines her experiences as a dutiful Party member with stories of her immediate family, husband, Yiddish mother-in-law, son and daughter — a wonderful bunch of extroverts.

Her husband Bob, whose roots are Central European Jewish, and who is as passionately American as he is Communist, emerges as a delightful character, tolerant of his wife's ineptitude as a housewife and joyously studying Stephen Potter's One-Upmanship in preparation for his first meeting with his ducal in-laws.

We read, also, of the empress-to-empress meeting between Jessica's mother, Lady Redesdale, and her mother-in-law, Mme. Aranka, Park Avenue milliner, to say nothing of the splendid and loving companionship of Constancia, daughter of the first marriage, and Benjamin, son of the second.

Each time we pause to wonder how such an irrepressibly humorous person could survive the discipline and ponderous jargon of the Communist Party, the author, seeming to sense that this would occur, flashes back to her childhood to reveal her combat training with her violent-tempered father, Lord Redesdale (legend has it that he gnashed his way through four sets of false teeth), who Nancy Mitford called "one of Nature's Fascists", her awesomely reserved mother, and her extraordinary sisters.

For all its funny passages, A Fine Old Conflict is a serious book, a penetrating look at the American Communist Party during its salad days and after, and an explanation of how Communist activism paved the way for the civil rights battles of the sixties and the consolidation of gains during the seventies. The story is made palatable for the average reader thanks to Jessica Mitford's superb sense of humor, something that is as alien to most Communists as personal freedom.

Jessica Mitford became a writer by necessity. When she formally left the Party in 1958 she tried to get a job, but every firm demanded a college degree. She not only didn't possess a college degree, she had never had any schooling other than elementary lessons given by governesses. So she turned to writing in despair.

Just how good a writer she is as hard to determine, for by her own admission she receives a lot of help. A "book committee" of talented friends vet everything she writes, and she generously credits her husband with supplying half — and the best half at that — of the material for The American Way of Death. Knowing this, one can discern the assistance given by husband and friends in this latest book.

But none of this really matters because it's the Mitford touch that makes the book sing. And it's the Mitford name that will sell it, just as Noblesse Oblige is always credited to Nancy Mitford, when in fact she was only one contributor, along with Evelyn Waugh, John Betjeman and others, including Professor Alan Ross, whose U and Non-U essay sparked the whole project.

Having got the communist bit off her chest, I sincerely hope that Jessica Mitford will now get down to writing the full story of her incredible family. Nancy dramatized the family in The Pursuit of Love (in which Jessica appears as Linda, the kindest of the girls), and we're now ready, if not panting, for the factual story of the odd home, ruled by a violent and eccentric father, whose awfulness made it inevitable that the Mitford children should later display the habit of rebellion from convention and authority.

A Worthy Memorial for a Unique Man

By JULIAN REID

When Loren Eiseley died last summer, I experienced the loss as an almost tangible amputation, as if a part of myself were lost with him. I had met him only once, and then less than casually — but I had also immersed myself, long and deep, in that dense and marvelously evocative prose of his, and had struggled hard to communicate its enchantment to classes of only half-comprehending freshmen.

And so, it seemed, I had come to know him more intimately than any merely physical acquaintance could ever have brought about. He had touched me to the marrow; his distinctive perspective on existence had become assimilated into mine. And now he was dead. I mourned a stranger to whom I had spoken once only — and then hardly more than a word.

He was dead — but, like any inspired artist, he had left behind a monument. In particular, he had bequeathed his single venture into formal autobiography: All the Strange Hours, originally published in 1975, two years before his death. And now, posthumously, this haunting volume has been reincarnated in the shape of an unprepossessing little paperback, gray ink densely packed onto sleazy gray paper. Yet it is a worthy memorial, for the man's soul shines through.

Mind you, this is not autobiography in the conventional sense. Eiseley was always an intensely private person; and by temperament he was generally concerned with teasing out the timeless universals masked behind the particulars of time and place. Here as elsewhere, he has entrusted comparatively few of the day-to-day specifics of his existence to paper.

"A bone-hunting man," Eiseley once termed himself — and, being by profession an anthropologically-oriented palaentologist, he was unquestionably that. But, unlike most of his fellow-scientists, he did not rest content with the mere unearthing of bones. His true concern was always with the forces which once had animated them: those dark primal energies that make dead matter live.

ALL THE STRANGE HOURS: The Excavation of a Life, by Loren Eiseley. John Wiley. $3.

Indeed, he was less a scientist than a poet: a prober into the innermost mysteries of life and of being. He was obsessed by Time and the debris it strews in its passing, eternally haunted by those twin specters of life-shaping chance and irremediable change. And it is from this perspective that he approaches the real subject matter of All the Strange Hours — the enduring mystery of the human condition.

For Eiseley, this mystery began in the Lincoln, Nebraska, of 1907 — where he was born, as he puts it, "a changeling, an autumn child surrounded by falling leaves." His father was a limp-willed failure, his mother a fiercely unstable paranoid "whose blasted sense of beauty had been expended upon the saloon art of prairie towns."

His childhood was seared by those inexplicable agonies which frequently beset the sensitive young innocent. "Terror, anxiety, ostracism, shame: I did not understand the words. I learned only the feelings they represent." He grew up "free as only very wild things are both solitary and free," the lonely victim of an ambiguous birthright — as, in our own differing ways, are we all.

His father's death cast him loose into eight years of shiftless adolescent wanderings through the restless landscape of Depression America. "It was a time of violence, a time of hate, a time of sharing, a time of hunger. It was all that every human generation believes it has encountered for the very first time in human history." It almost overpowered him. But finally, with a desperate jerk of pure determination, he broke free and found something of a haven in the more structured world of a university science department.

Yet at heart he remained a solitary wildling, for the shaping forces of his destiny had early made their mark. "I was born in the central plains," he informs us, "compacted out of glacial dust and winter cold. I see animal faces as readily as though I sat with my mother's one blighted gift in a Cro-Magnon cave . . . My eye is round, open, and undomesticated as an owl's in a primeval forest — a world that for me has never truly departed."

Few authors have more aptly encapsulated the essential quality of their special vision. And few could have struck off a more hauntingly appropriate image than that in which Eiseley describes that twilight impulse that led him to embark upon this retrospective excavation into his own prehistory.

EISELEY
. . . primal energies

"Oncoming age," he wrote, "is to me a vast wild autumn country strewn with broken seed pods, hurrying cloud wrack, abandoned farm machinery, and circling crows. A place where things were begun on too grand a scale to complete . . . I have aimed to bespeak, in some fashion, the autumn years of all men. My pages contain what I could still make out of this cloud-swept landscape."

The end result of his striving was this strangely compelling book — a fitting legacy for a visionary gifted with an owl's-eye-view of life. Loren Eiseley is dead; but here, as in his other writings, something of the unique yet profoundly universal quality of his very special vision endures to haunt us. All the Strange Hours is one of those rare volumes which leave the reader forever richer for having been privileged, however briefly, to share in the life-shaping essence of another man's mortality.

Small-timers, Big Heist

By FRED BARNES

The two cases most frequently mentioned as super-crimes of the modern era are England's great train robbery and the Brink's holdup in Boston.

The story of the train robbery has been fully told, but it has taken 27 years to savor the full flavor of the Brink's job.

Now that feat is accomplished by novelist Noel Behn (The Kremlin Letter). Behn and his publishers took the obvious, easy route by paying four of the six surviving gang members to tell their stories in great detail.

This makes some of the information a little suspect since crooks have egos big enough to fill any balloon, and imaginations to match. But Behn shows every sign of having carefully cross-checked the stories and done his own homework. When he is doubtful of a point, even a major point, he doesn't hesitate to indicate the fact.

Fumbling Gang

Just what is the cost of a crime such as this? How widespread is the effect?

Well, it took six years and 11 men to steal $2,700,000. During that period, other related crimes netted another $1,500,000. And the six-year effort of the FBI, Boston municipal police, Massachusetts state police, and dozens of co-operating forces, cost the staggering total of $29,000,000!

Most unbelievable of all is the fact that the men involved were, without exception, minor criminals, non-violent members of the lower reaches of the underworld. It is incredible that a group of shoplifters, bootleggers, bookies and alcoholics should band together to fumble their way into safecrackings, armed robberies and, finally, America's greatest robbery.

The 11 involved grew from a hard core of seven — Tony Pino, his brother-in-law Jimmy Costa, Sandy Richardson, Jimmy Faherty, Specs O'Keefe, Stanley Gusciora, and Mike Geagen. There was never any intention, or any real need, to add to this group.

But as the months and years moved by, one member after another kept suggesting, and pressing for, additions. Gradually, with no pattern, there appeared on the scene Jazz Maffie, Joe McGinnis, Henry Baker and Joe Banfield.

It was Specs O'Keefe, feeling himself abandoned by the gang and in real danger in prison with the statute of limitations running out, who finally told the story to the FBI. Although the Pino gang had been under suspicion all along, senior officials of the FBI intended to feel that these "punks" could never have conceived and carried out the robbery.

This is the story of Anthony Pino, a little man growing portly early in life, and with years in prison behind him. He had an imagination that knew no bounds, one that flowered so well and often that even his gang members never knew what was fact and fancy. Although he made his living mainly by shoplifting, he became a capable safecracker. But to him $5,000 was a big haul, and he never gave up his three-man shoplifting organization right up to the Brinks holdup.

This book has some fascinating insights into the criminal mind. As the net closes and the police come closer, Pino has only one fear. He remembers that the last time police picked him up, he was badly shamed after being forced to strip down to ragged underwear.

Determined that this wouldn't happen again, he rises early in the morning and takes a bus downtown. The stores are not yet open so he lines up in front of a department store having a big sale. Going inside, this man who may have been involved in crimes netting as much as $15,000,000, shoplifts six pairs of shorts, then adds some socks for good measure and goes home to await the police.

Pino, of course, is the mastermind. No one else makes a contribution that comes even close to being a major assist. Tony first begins to think of Brink's after watching Brink's trucks moving in and out of their warehouse in Boston. At first it is little more than a morbid fascination with all those trucks and all that money.

Never Connected

Then Tony wonders what he will find if he starts following the trucks on their rounds. What he gets is a timetable of their runs and a remarkably precise schedule. This leads to a series of safecrackings at the small firms where the trucks deliver regularly the afternoon before payday. The gang begins to form and build, and the robberies escalate. But, to the end, as far as anyone can learn, Brink's and the police never connected the happenings or suspected a conspiracy that would lead after six years to the great robbery.

Brink's is a very real picture of the life and times in the underworld of a major American city. Much of it is told in the precise, tape-recorded words of the criminals themselves. It forms an intriguing and realistic word picture.
